COURT OF WARDS ACT AMENDMENT.

THE HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER presented the report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Court of Wards Act, 1879, and in doing so he said there were only two points necessary to be noticed now. The minor alterations made by the Committee were sufficiently set out in the report. The first of the two points was the alleged discrepancy between the Indian Majority Act, passed by the Council of the Governor-General, and the Court of Wards Act of this Council. Before the matter was laid before the Select Committee an informal meeting was held, principally to discuss this question. It was purely a question of law, and it happened that, of the four legal gentlemen of whose assistance the Committee were able to avail themselves, two held one opinion as to the construction of a certain expression in the Indian Majority Act, and these were the two law officers of the Government, while two held the other opinion. The expression in the Majority Act was "every minor under jurisdiction of the Court of Wards." The opinion of the learned Advocate-General and of the Legal Remembrancer was that this expression in the Indian Majority Act embraced every minor upon whom that Court might stretch out its hands and take charge of his property, if, in the exercise of its discretion, it thought right to do so. If the view of these legal officers was correct, then the way in which the expression was used in the Majority Act had the effect of leaving the Court of Wards to declare whom they should consider to be minors for the purposes of that Act, and therefore there was no discrepancy between the two Acts and no alteration was required in the present Bill. On the other hand the two learned gentlemen opposite (Mr. Ameer Ali and Baboo Peary Mohun Mookerjee) were of opinion that the expression in question in the Indian Majority Act embraced only minors of whose person and property the Court had actually taken charge in the exercise of its discretionary jurisdiction. If so, there was certainly some difficulty in reconciling the two Acts; but then this Council had not the power to clear up the doubt by putting an authoritative construction on the words of the Majority Act.

On these considerations, and giving that weight to the opinion of the law officers of Government, who happened to be agreed, which was officially due to them, the Select Committee had not thought it necessary to introduce any provision on this head into the present Bill.

The next point was that the Committee had omitted the proposed section 55A as unnecessary. It was the section by which MR. DAMPIER had proposed to give authority to the Court of Wards to allow any ward to bring a suit, as if that ward were not in charge of the Court. The consideration of this section led the Committee to look somewhat deeply into the general law, and the result was that it was held by those most competent to give an opinion, that, as the law stood, there was no necessity for a specific provision of the nature of the one he proposed; cases such as MR. DAMPIER had intended to meet were already met, Wards of Court, who are not minors, being already under the general law competent to institute certain suits independently of the Court of Wards, and the managers of their estate. That being the general effect of the law, it had not been found necessary to put in any provision to secure it.

He saw one point looming at a distance, regarding which he might perhaps have to propose an amendment. It was this. It had been represented that for the purpose of executing a certificate, the manager of a ward's estate was, under the Public Demands Recovery Act, in the position of a plaintiff decree-holder. Now, after a certificate had been made for the recovery of a certain sum due to the ward's estate, and before it was fully executed and satisfied, suppose the estate of that ward passed away from the jurisdiction of the Court, how was that certificate to be sued out? Who was then legally competent to take such steps as were necessary to go on executing it? That was a question which had been raised. He had in an informal way consulted two authorities on the subject; one said it was as clear as possible; the decree being made, the Collector could go on executing it even after the estate had passed out of its hands, and the Collector would make over the amount realized to the proprietor who had come into possession of the estate. The other legal luminary said it was palpable that the proprietor in possession of the estate was the successor in title to the manager, and that, under the general law, he would be entitled to take such steps as were necessary for executing these certificates.

This was purely a legal question, and MR. DAMPIER did not like to rush in where the angels feared to tread, and he proposed to give the subject further consideration and to obtain more formal opinions before the next meeting of the Council.

The HON'BLE PEARY MOHUN MOOKERJEE said he had the honour of serving on the Select Committee, but he regretted that he could not agree with the learned law officers of the Government or of the majority of the hon'ble gentlemen of the Committee in thinking that the Court of Wards Act or the Indian Majority Act gave the Court of Wards any thing like a prospective jurisdiction with respect to persons who had passed the age of eighteen years and had not completed the age of twenty-one years. He thought that the standards of majority, fixed by the two enactments, related to classes of persons differently situated, and that they did not conflict with one another; but as the majority of the gentlemen who formed the Select Committee were of a contrary opinion, he subscribed to the report of the Committee. But since signing the report he had consulted the authorities on the subject, and he had been confirmed in his opinion by the rulings of the highest authorities, he meant of the Privy Council and of a full Bench of the High Court. He thought that a person after he had attained the age of eighteen years was beyond the jurisdiction of the Court of Wards. He stated this simply because he wished it to be understood that he did not subscribe to the opinion expressed in the 2nd paragraph of the report of the Select Committee.

The HON'BLE AMIR ALI said that as he had the honour of serving on the Select Committee he might be allowed to say a few words to explain the dissent he had recorded. The reasons which compelled him to differ from his hon'ble colleagues were contained in his dissent, and he was not going to trespass at any length on the time of the Council. He was sorry to find the opinion of the law officers of Government were against him with reference to the meaning which was to be attached to the words "under the jurisdiction of the Court of Wards" in section 3 of the Indian Majority Act. They were of opinion that these words vested in the Court of Wards a prospective jurisdiction, and that consequently there was no conflict between the provisions of Act IX of 1875 and the Court of Wards Act. The opinion of the law officers of the Government was entitled to the greatest weight, but he (MR. AMIR ALI) could not bring himself to agree in the view that the word "jurisdiction" in the Indian Majority Act had a different meaning from the word as used in other Acts. He thought a reference to some of the authorities mentioned already by his hon'ble friend (Baboo Peary Mohun Mookerjee) would show that in every instance in which the question had been discussed the term had been construed to imply an actual and not a prospective and possible jurisdiction. His hon'ble and learned friend the Legal Remembrancer had mentioned to him that in section 11 of the Court of Wards Act and Act XL of 1858 the word was used in the sense which Mr. Allen was inclined to put upon it, but a careful examination of the sections referred to by him had confirmed MR. AMEER ALI in his conviction that the words "under the jurisdiction of the Court of Wards" meant under the actual jurisdiction or charge of the Court of Wards and did not include persons who had attained their majority under Act IX of 1875. The analogy which was sought to be drawn from the expression "jurisdiction of the civil court" did not appear to him to be correct. The jurisdiction of the civil court was an actual jurisdiction, exercised with reference to all persons and at all times. Everybody was subject to that jurisdiction unless specially exempted, whereas nobody was subject to the authority of the Court of Wards unless specially declared to be so or the charge of his or her property was taken by the Court of Wards.

The HON'BLE KRISTODAS PAL said, lawyers, like doctors, differed; he did not profess to be a lawyer, but as a Member of the Select Committee, he took a common-sense view of the question raised. If there was a conflict between the law of the Indian Council and the Court of Wards Act, it was not in the power of this Council to remedy that conflict. The Select Committee had not touched the law one way or another, and had not therefore in any way added to the difficulties which might be at present experienced. Such being the case, he thought the paragraph which had been inserted in the report of the Select Committee would not in any way alter the present position of things. If the Government, in its executive capacity, thought that the two laws ought to be reconciled, it should move the Legislative Council of the Governor-General to amend the Majority Act. But in his opinion it was not competent for this Council to do anything in the matter.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER said, with reference to remarks which had just been made, that he entirely agreed with the Hon'ble Member who spoke last.

He observed that the Hon'ble and learned Member who spoke first said more than once that one of the constructions of the Indian Majority Act was held by the majority of the Members of the Select Committee, as well as by the law officers of Government. MR. DAMPIER begged leave to say that he had in this matter pinned his official faith on the opinion of the Government law officers.

He was satisfied that, whichever of the two constructions was correct, nothing that this Council was competent to enact would be of practical use. Any conclusion which he might arrive at as to the correct construction must therefore be a sterile conclusion, leading to no results. He had not therefore thought it necessary to examine the merits of the rival constructions as he would have done had any result depended upon his vote.

The Hon'ble MR. ALLEN said, as one of the Members of the Select Committee, and particularly as one of those by whose advice it acted, he thought it right to state why that Committee had determined to make no change in the Bill in respect to the matter under discussion, and the explanation lay in the answer to the question who was a minor under the jurisdiction of the Court of Wards. The difficulty arose not as to the meaning of any words in any Act passed by this Council, but as to the meaning of words used in the Indian Majority Act of 1875 which was passed by the Council of the Governor-General. The words of section 3 of that Act were—

“Subject as aforesaid, every minor of whose person or property a guardian has been or shall be appointed by any court of justice, and every minor under the jurisdiction of any Court of Wards shall, notwithstanding anything contained in the Indian Succession Act, or in any other enactment, be deemed to have attained his majority when he shall have completed his age of twenty-one years and not before.”

The question was as to the meaning of the words “under the jurisdiction of any Court of Wards.” The learned Advocate-General's opinion (and the only opinion which seemed to MR. ALLEN the correct opinion) as to the construction of these words was that a distinction must be drawn between the words “under the jurisdiction of the Court of Wards” and the words “under the charge of the Court of Wards.” The opinion maintained by his friends on the opposite side appeared to him to depend entirely on the loose way in which the word “jurisdiction” was used in this country. Every person who had any functions to perform was said to have a “jurisdiction,” and thus we heard of a dāk runner's “jurisdiction” and a chowkidar's “jurisdiction,” and other “jurisdictions” of a similar kind in which the word was used in a most slovenly manner. But the exact meaning of the word was to signify, prospectively, a possible control, thus every person was under the jurisdiction of that court which had the dictio juris—the right of declaring what was jus in cases in which he was concerned; therefore the jurisdiction of the Court of Wards must extend to those persons over whose affairs the court had a dictio juris, that is to say all those minors who held entire estates paying revenue direct to Government. The qualification therefore was that of every minor zemindar holding an entire estate whether his property had or had not been taken charge of, he was under the jurisdiction of the Court of Wards: and consequently the Committee could see no conflict between an Act of the Governor-General, which expressly, in the case of persons under the jurisdiction of the Court, extended the age of majority to twenty-one years, and an Act of this Council which stated that in the case of those subject to the Court of Wards, a minor was a person under twenty-one years of age. The expression “under the jurisdiction” occurred in another Act of the Governor-General in Council, namely Act XL of 1858 which made provision for the custody and protection of the property of minors not under the jurisdiction of the Court of Wards and who did not hold entire estates paying revenue to Government. Section 2 of that Act provided that the care of the persons of all minors (not under the protection of the Court of Wards) and the charge of their property should be “subject to the jurisdiction of the civil court.” The expression in that section was almost identical with the expression in the Indian Majority Act, but MR. ALLEN never heard that the section was supposed to refer merely to persons whose property had been already taken charge of by the civil court: clearly, it contemplated the possibility of the property being taken charge of by the court, and not necessarily that it had been actually taken under it. It was not advisable to explain the meaning of the words in question by reference to an Act of this Legislature, because it might be said that it was not competent for this Council to amend or explain an expression used in an Act of the Council of the Governor-General. But a case had just been put in his hands which was relied upon by the hon'ble member opposite as giving the opinion of the Privy Council to the effect that the age of majority for all minors must be taken at eighteen years.* The point of the decision on which reliance was placed appeared to Mr. ALLEN not to affect this question at all, except in a very remote way, and even there their Lordships of the Privy Council drew a distinction and based their decision on the express words of a Regulation. They said,—

* Jumona Dassya vs. Bamason-dari Dassya. I. L. R. 1 Calc. 289—296.

“The only remaining point was that taken by Mr. Doyne to the effect that although Govind Chunder may have been of the age of discretion according to the Hindu law as prevailing in Bengal, he was still a minor under the 2nd section of Regulation XXVI of 1793, and that under the 33rd section of the prior Regulation, X of 1793, he could not make the adoption without the consent of his guardian. The last-mentioned enactment prohibits a disqualified proprietor from making an adoption, except with the sanction of the Court of Wards, and it has been determined by the sudder court in the case cited—Anundmoyee Chowdrani vs. Sheeb Chunder Roy—(1) a case which afterwards came here, though not on the same point, (2) that the prohibition applies equally to an authority to adopt and to an actual adoption. But the words of the 33rd section of Regulation X of 1793 would seem to confine its operation to persons who are under the guardianship of the Court of Wards.”

(1) S. D. A. (1855), page 218.

(2) Section 9, Moore's I. A. 287.

This objection was overruled it is true, but the basis of their Lordships' opinion was that section 33 of Regulation X of 1793 limited the incapacity to those who were under the guardianship of the Court of Wards, that is to those whose property was in charge of the Court of Wards and to whom the Court of Wards stood in the place of guardian. The judgment went on—

“And we have the judgment of Mitter, J., to the effect that where a minor is not under the Court of Wards but has attained years of discretion according to the Hindu law, he is capable of executing such an instrument as this. Rajendra Narain Lahooree vs. Saroda Soonsuree Dabee 3). If, then, the case actually turned upon this point, their Lordships' opinion would have been that Govind Chunder was not incapacitated from executing this instrument by reason of his not having attained the age of eighteen years.”

(3) 15 W. R., 513.

The question was not then, the validity of the adoption, but whether a disqualified landholder could execute an instrument giving power to adopt, and the Privy Council in thinking that he could, relied on the words of Regulation X of 1793 which limited the prohibition to adopt, to those persons who were actually under the guardianship of the Court of Wards. There therefore did not appear to Mr. ALLEN to be any difficulty as to the meaning of the words “under the jurisdiction of the Court” in the Indian Majority Act, and even if there was, he did not see how this Council could in any way remove the obscurity, unless, indeed, it should declare that eighteen years was to be the age of majority of minors under the Court of Wards. But as he had already said he did not think there was any ambiguity in the words of the Indian Majority Act, and he thought it very desirable that the age of majority for proprietors of estates paying revenue direct to Government should not be reduced under twenty-one years.

AMENDMENT OF THE EXCISE ACT.

THE HON'BLE MR. REYNOLDS presented the report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend “The Bengal Excise Act, 1878.” He said he did not propose at this meeting to ask the Council to take the Bill into consideration. He would only mention that he had since received a communication from which he found that the Board were not thoroughly satisfied with the 4th section of the Bill as it stood, and it was possible that at the next meeting of the Council he should have to propose some amendment of that section.

AMENDMENT OF THE CALCUTTA MUNICIPAL CONSOLIDATION ACT.

THE HON'BLE KRISTODAS PAL presented the report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend “The Calcutta Municipal Consolidation Act, 1876,” and in doing so he said the modifications made by the Select Committee were fully set forth in the report, and he need not therefore trouble the Council with a detailed statement of the alterations made. It had been his misfortune to differ from his colleagues on some important points, but he would take an opportunity to notice them when the Bill would be brought up for settlement of its clauses. There were, however, one or two points which he might now notice. One of the most important objects of the Bill was to give power to the Commissioners to take up land for the reclamation of bustees. When he applied for leave to introduce the Bill, he endeavoured to explain the procedure under which a bustee might be reclaimed by the Corporation under the existing law. That procedure, he might say, was two-fold. First, the Commissioners were required to serve notice on proprietors of land, calling upon them to carry out certain improvements which might be recommended by their Sanitary Officer; these proprietors might be required to make roads within bustees for the admission of conservancy carts, to introduce drainage and water-supply, to lay out huts in proper order, and to make other sanitary arrangements. If the proprietors did not carry out the orders of the Commissioners, they were competent to carry out such improvements at the expense of the Municipality and to recover the expense afterwards from the owner. That was one procedure. The other mode of procedure was very much the same, with this difference, that the scheme of improvement was not to be brought into operation till the condemned bustee had been reported upon by two competent independent medical gentlemen. If the Health Officer reported a bustee to be particularly unhealthy, and if the Commissioners thought fit, they might call upon two independent medical men to report on the bustee. These gentlemen were required to set forth a scheme of improvement which might partially or wholly be adopted by the Commissioners, who were competent to require the owner to carry out all the improvements they might order. If the owner neglected to carry out the improvements, the Commissioners were competent to carry them out and to recover the cost from the owner. The expense might be so heavy that, perhaps in some cases, the proprietor of the bustee might not be able to meet it. It had therefore been considered hard to enforce the Act in cases in which the owner might be too poor, or might find the undertaking to be unremunerative. The best course in such cases, he thought, would be for the Municipality to take up the land and pay proper compensation to the proprietor. As BABOO KRISTODAS PAL had mentioned to the Council on the occasion he had referred to, he had pressed this point on the Council when the Municipal Act of 1876 was under consideration, so this was not the first time he ventured to bring the subject before the Council. At that time it was thought that the extensive powers given to the Commissioners by the Act might first be tried, and if they were found to be insufficient, they might be subsequently extended. When introducing the Bill, he read to the Council an extract from a letter of the Government, in which His Honour the present Lieutenant-Governor recommended that the Commissioners might take up land for the improvement of bustees, and sell or lease it as they thought fit in order to recoup themselves. The Commissioners had also come forward with the same suggestion in a letter to the Council, and accordingly provisions had been introduced in the Bill to give the Commissioners the necessary powers. The Select Committee had, however, so hedged in the provision as to prevent the Commissioners from arbitrarily exercising the power or embarking in land speculation. The amended Bill provided that no unhealthy area should be taken up by the Commissioners unless independent medical testimony was obtained as to the unhealthiness of the locality concerned. The bustee must be first reported upon, specially by two competent medical men before it could be included in any scheme of improvement by the Commissioners under the provisions of the Bill; the Commissioners would then consider the scheme of improvement recommended, and lay it before the Lieutenant-Governor for consideration and sanction, and after obtaining such sanction, might take measures to acquire the land. Within two years of the acquisition of the land, the Commissioners should either carry out the scheme of improvement at their own expense or make arrangements for carrying out the improvement by other persons. And within five years from the time of the commencement of the improvement, and seven years from the date of purchase of the land, the Commissioners must sell the land unless the time was extended by special order of the Lieutenant-Governor. So that the Commissioners would not be competent to hold the land they might purchase for the profit of the Corporation: this provision of the Bill would act as a check upon the acquisition and improvement of land, for, as fast as the Commissioners might acquire or improve any land, they would be bound to sell it; they must not hold land for the pecuniary benefit of the Corporation. The object, as he had stated before, was simply to assist the Municipal Corporation in carrying out more effectually the reclamation of bustees. This provision, BABOO KRISTODAS PAL hoped, would be doubly beneficial. In the first place it would assist the Commissioners in carrying out sanitary improvements; in the next place it would help proprietors of bustees, who might not have the means of carrying out improvements of large magnitude; they would receive fair and sufficient compensation for the land they possessed, but which they were not able to improve. He thought these sections, on the grounds he mentioned, were fair and equitable to all parties concerned, and most important from a sanitary point of view.

The next section to which he would refer was the section about drug shops. He believed there was no difference of opinion on the point that there ought to be some provision for the proper regulation of shops where medicinal drugs were exposed for sale. The Bill provided for the proper registration of drug shops, next for their proper supervision by the Health Officer of the Town, and thirdly for the employment of certificated compounders for the dispensing of medicines in those shops. It had been pointed out to him that as the section had been worded it would include Indian drugs which were used for the preparation of indigenous medicines, and if certificated compounders were insisted upon for the sale of such drugs, it would offer serious impediment to trade and to the indigenous system of medicine. In order to meet this objection, the Committee had inserted the words "drugs recognized in the British Pharmacopœia, not being also articles of ordinary domestic consumption." It, however, happened that Indian drugs had been included in the British Pharmacopœia which were not articles of domestic consumption; other drugs were also included which were used both for domestic consumption and medicinal purposes in this country. It would be very hard if, by any words in this section, the trade in Indian drugs should be fettered in any way. These drugs were very cheap, they were sold by small druggists, they were used by Indian Kobirajes and Hakeems, and most of them were comparatively innocuous, and if any obstacle were thrown in the way of the sale of such drugs, it would be a serious inconvenience to the public. BABOO KRISTODAS PAL would therefore take the opportunity, when the clauses of the Bill would come up for consideration, to ask the Council to consider whether some explanation should not be attached to the section which might exclude from its scope drugs which might be used for indigenous medicine.

He need not notice the other amendments made by the Select Committee, because they were more or less explained in the report; he would now present the report, leaving the detailed consideration of the clauses of the Bill for the next sitting of the Council.

APPOINTMENT OF A BURIAL BOARD FOR CALCUTTA AND ITS SUBURBS.

THE HON'BLE MR. MACKENZIE moved that the Bill to provide for the appointment of a Burial Board in Calcutta and its Suburbs be considered for settlement in the form recommended by the Select Committee. He had, with the permission of the President, last week, postponed this motion in order to give time for the receipt of further communications to the circular which had been issued. He had during that time received several further replies, and he was happy to say that two of the largest bodies interested—the Roman Catholic community and that of the Church of England—were entirely satisfied with the provisions of the Bill as they stood. Practically, he might say, that the Non-Conformists, as far as he had been able to discover, were also satisfied. One or two suggestions had been thrown out, but he did not consider it necessary to make any change in the substance of the Bill in consequence of those suggestions. As the Bill was worded, there was nothing in the section providing for the constitution of a Burial Board to compel the Lieutenant-Governor to appoint only laymen as additional members; it was quite open to His Honour to appoint either laymen or clergymen. That met one objection which had been taken by his correspondents. Another point was this. It was suggested that Non-Conformist bodies should be allowed to elect their own representatives. That, however, appeared hardly practicable, for the Government had no definite knowledge of the number of bodies who claimed to be represented; it would be difficult to lay down rules for the conduct of elections, and, on the whole, it would probably be found best that the power of appointment be left with the Lieutenant-Governor, who would consider the interests of the leading bodies and choose men who might be considered fairly representative. Another suggestion, which had been made, was that all the Government burial-grounds should be placed under the Board. The intention was that all such burial-grounds should be placed under the Board, but the Bill had been made discretionary, because new burial-grounds might be opened out which it might not always be convenient to place under the Board. Therefore, MR. MACKENZIE thought that on this point also there should be a discretion left to the Government. The only other suggestion which had been made was as to section 10. Several gentlemen had suggested that all private burial-grounds ought to be brought compulsorily under the jurisdiction of the Board. The Government had not heard how such a provision would be received by the proprietary and managing bodies concerned; and here also MR. MACKENZIE thought it would be best that the Bill should be left open. On the whole, therefore, he did not see any reason to ask the Council to make any change; but in section 3, he would move to insert, after "Senior Chaplain of St Johns," the words "Church in Calcutta."

The motion was put and agreed to.

On the motion of the HON'BLE MR. MACKENZIE the Bill was then passed.

The Council was adjourned to Saturday, the 2nd April.

FORMATION OF CLASSES FOR THE TRAINING OF COMPOUNDERS.

GENERAL DEPARTMENT—EDUCATION.

Calcutta, the 30th March 1881.

RESOLUTION.

READ the following papers regarding a proposal to establish a class for the training of compounders in the medical schools of these provinces:—

Letter to the Surgeon-General, Bengal, No. 499T, dated the 8th November 1880.

Letter from the Surgeon-General, Bengal, No. 42, dated the 5th January 1881.

Letter to the Director of Public Instruction, No. 45, dated the 18th January 1881.

Letter from the Director of Public Instruction, No. 1771, dated the 14th March 1881.

The rapidly increasing number of Government dispensaries and of private shops for the sale of medicines has brought prominently to notice the want of a system of training for the persons employed as compounders in these institutions. The only compounders' class in Bengal is to be found in the Mitford College at Dacca, and it is stated that but little benefit is derived from this, as the boys attached to it, as soon as they acquire the smallest smattering of knowledge, quit it for private employment.

It is clear that some security to the public against the results of ignorance and carelessness on the part of the dispensers of drugs and medicines is required. The Municipal law of Calcutta is now being amended so as to make the employment of certificated compounders compulsory in the druggists' shops of the town. A similar provision will probably find a place in the Bengal Municipal Act when that also comes under revision. It is incumbent upon Government therefore to provide the means of instruction and training for persons intending to practice as compounders. For this reason, and with this view, the Director of Public Instruction was requested to frame a scheme for the establishment of compounders' classes in connection with the medical schools at Sealdah, Dacca, Patna, and Cuttack.

In consultation with the Surgeon-General, the Lieutenant-Governor is now pleased to direct that compounders' classes be opened at these institutions on the following plan :—

(1.) Candidates for admission to the classes should be from 17 to 20 years of age.

(2.) They should be able to read and write Bengali well, and should know arithmetic up to the Rule-of-three. Their knowledge of English should suffice to enable them to read prescriptions and printed labels and to write labels for medicines dispensed. The Middle English and the Middle or Lower Vernacular Scholarship certificates should be accepted as qualifying candidates for admission; while the elementary knowledge of English required should be tested by the Superintendent of the School. Candidates having no departmental certificates should be specially certified by the Inspector of Schools. In case of applications being received in excess of the number of vacancies, the preference should be given to candidates holding departmental certificates.

(3.) The course of instruction should consist of practice in the compounding-room for one year. Candidates should be allowed, if they desire it, to attend the regular lectures in Materia Medica and Pharmacy, though the Lieutenant-Governor has some doubt as to how far such attendance will be really profitable. It would no doubt be useful if some simple instruction could be given to the compounders' class in Materia Medica and the properties of drugs, and Sir Ashley Eden would be glad to see some arrangements made, if practicable, for this purpose.

(4.) On the completion of the course, an examination should be held in the reading and writing of prescriptions, and in the compounding and dispensing of medicines; and a certificate signed by the Superintendent of the School should be given to those who pass. This certificate will be recognised as sufficient for the purposes of the Municipal Act. Those who fail may, on the special recommendation of their teachers in each case, be sent back for another three or six months' instruction in the subjects of failure, and be subjected at the end of that period to further examination.

(5.) The size of the class should be determined in each case by the Superintendent of the School according to his estimate of the probable number of pupils that can be efficiently taught.

(6.) At the Sealdah School the fee payable by each pupil attending the compounders' class will be Rs. 10. Of this sum, the Head Compounder will, in the case of each successful candidate for a certificate, receive Rs. 4. At Patna and Dacca fees will be levied at the rate of Rs. 5 a head from each pupil, of which the Head Compounder will get Rs. 2 for each successful candidate. As the demand for compounders is said to be limited at Cuttack, the Lieutenant-Governor does not see any necessity for creating a supply artificially by the payment of a stipend; but in the event of any candidates presenting themselves, they should be admitted to the class on depositing Rs. 4 as caution-money. All fees should be paid in advance.

(7.) The fees thus levied will provide remuneration for the Head Compounders at each school for the extra duties now imposed on them, and will also cover the cost of drugs used in teaching, and the expenses of the examination. In the case of the Sealdah School, the Lieutenant-Governor sanctions the employment, in addition to the present staff, of an assistant compounder on Rs. 16 per mensem.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

A. MACKENZIE,

Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

RESOLUTION ON THE REPORT OF THE BOARD OF REVENUE ON THE ADMINISTRATION OF THE OPIUM DEPARTMENT FOR THE YEAR 1879-80.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.—MISCELLANEOUS REVENUE.

Calcutta, the 4th April 1881.

RESOLUTION.

READ—

A letter No. 182B, dated the 8th March 1881, from the Officiating Secretary to the Board of Revenue, submitting the reports of the Opium Agents of Behar and Benares for the year 1879-80.

The Lieutenant-Governor regrets again to be obliged to notice the delay which has occurred in the submission of this report by the Board of Revenue. Both the reports from the agencies are dated the 30th November, but were not forwarded to Government for more than three months after that date. Only once in the last few years have the reports reached the Bengal Secretariat within three months of their despatch from Ghazipore and Patna. The Lieutenant-Governor trusts that the Board will endeavour in future to avoid this delay, which cannot really be necessary for the satisfactory preparation of the Board's covering letter.

2. The following statement shows the cultivation and produce in each agency for the last two years :—

SEASON.						Land sown for cultivation.	Net cultivation.	Produce at 70° consistence.
BEHAR.						Beeghas.	Beeghas.	Mds.	s.	c.
1878-79	500,371	415,289	41,268	1	4½
1879-80	473,550	461,086	53,593	23	1
Increase						45,797	12,325	21	12½
Decrease						26,821
BENARES.
1878-79	416,015	395,820	56,636	35	8½
1879-80	451,641	438,531	15,475	37	0½
Increase						35,626	42,711
Decrease						11,160	38	8

It appears that, while there was a decrease of 26,821 beeghas in the area sown for cultivation in the Behar Agency, the actual cultivation was more than in 1878-79 (when there occurred an extensive failure of crop) by 45,797 beeghas, and the net produce, at a consistence of 70°, was greater by over 12,325 maunds than in 1878-79. The additional area thus put under crop lay chiefly in unirrigated tracts, the total unirrigated area cultivated being 123,104 beeghas against 81,911 in 1878-79. In the Benares Agency a decrease of 11,160 maunds is apparent in the net produce, notwithstanding the fact that there were 35,626 beeghas more brought under cultivation, and that the area of net cultivation was greater by 42,711 beeghas in the year under review than in the previous year.

3. The decrease in the area sown in Behar is said to have been due in some parts to sickness among the cultivators and murrain among the cattle, and in some to the fact that extensions have been already pushed too far; but generally speaking the Agent attributes the falling off to the disheartening effect of two bad seasons, the reduction in the price of the crude drug from Rs. 5 to Rs. 4-8 per seer, and the increasing remunerativeness of other crops. Special attention is drawn to the formidable rivalry of sugarcane in the region south of the Ganges, consequent on the adoption by both European and native manufacturers of a system of advances enabling the smaller cultivators to grow this remunerative crop, which, owing to its occupying the land for the whole year, was formerly only taken up by the more substantial ryots. The Government of India has already, on the Lieutenant-Governor's suggestion, raised the price of crude opium to the old figure, but the Agent doubts whether this will suffice to secure extensions to really profitable lands or even bring about the recovery of such lands where already lost. The Board consider that improvements calculated to increase the popularity of the cultivation might be made in the present system of advances and adjustment of accounts, and the Lieutenant-Governor will be glad to see attention given to this matter. He is not, however, prepared to accept the view now again put forward by the Board that Government should, in order to secure such popularity, refrain as a matter of course from recovering its advances whenever the season turns out to be unfavourable. The assumption made in the report that advances on account of sugar cultivation, indigo cultivation, and the like, are not recovered from the cultivators when the crop fails rests on no basis of fact. Remissions are no doubt made by private capitalists who grant advances, when it appears good policy to do so, and Government is always ready to treat liberally those who take State advances when a real necessity for concession exists, but nothing could be more demoralizing to the ryots than to encourage the idea that they may take advances freely in the certainty that if they fail to work them off they will be as a matter of course remitted. The results of the Government orders for recovery of those balances of 1877-78, which the Board would have indiscriminately remitted, prove that no injury is done by judicious firmness in dealing with this question. All needful remissions have been sanctioned, while the interests of Government have not been sacrificed.

4. In the Benares Agency every endeavour was made under the orders of the Government of India to extend the cultivation, and a net increase of nearly 60,931 beeghas was obtained over the settlements of the previous year. Unfortunately, a severe epidemic of fever broke out, many of the cultivators who had taken advances died, and many more were disabled from cultivating the amount of land for which they had taken settlement. The result was that the net area cultivated fell short of that settled by 22,867 beeghas. There is, however, no reason to anticipate any disinclination to cultivate the poppy in these provinces. The crop continues to be popular, and further extensions are, under the orders of the Government of India, going on in the current year.

5. One of the main differences between the cultivation in Behar and Benares is the large proportion of unirrigated land in the former agency. In the year under review there were in Behar 1,23,104 beeghas unirrigated, while in Benares only 10,091 beeghas came under that category. There are large tracts north of the Ganges in Behar where well-irrigation would, owing to the large amount of alkali in the soil and in the sub-soil water, only serve to destroy the crop. But it seems probable that more might be done in the way of well-making in tracts where this peculiarity of soil is less marked, and the Lieutenant-Governor has noted with satisfaction the results of Mr. Tytler's efforts to encourage the making of permanent wells in the Aliganj sub-district. Mr. Tytler deserves great credit for the interest which he has shown in well-irrigation. The Agent should, as he proposes, impress upon district officers and others the importance of this matter and sanction advances freely where required. During the year only Rs. 11,294 were given in advances for wells in Behar. In Benares Rs. 9,894 were advanced, most of the area cultivated being irrigated already.

6. The Lieutenant-Governor is glad to observe the promptitude with which all officers of the Behar Agency carried out the orders of Government for the introduction of maps and registers after the pattern of those which had been previously in use at Benares.

7. The experiment of issuing miniature licenses to each cultivator having proved successful in the Ghazipore and Faizabad sub-agencies, the Board have ordered its extension to the whole of the Benares Agency and to the Gya and Aliganj sub-agencies of the Behar Agency. The object of the system, as given in paragraph 36 of the Board's report, is as follows:—"To supply each cultivator with an extract from the combined license issued to the lumberdar. Each cultivator is thus provided with a separate record of his own transactions with the agency, and this is equally convenient to the officers of the department when testing measurements, or on any other occasion when enquiries may be necessary, which otherwise can be avoided by the excuse that the lumberdar, license and all, is absent from the village. A further merit which is claimed for this system is that it is a safe check on illicit cultivation under cover of a joint license which cannot always readily be checked with the area of the different plots under crop." The Lieutenant-Governor desires that it may be noticed in next year's report, how far the system has proved successful in the districts to which it has now been extended.

8. As regards the weather in the Behar Agency, especially in the districts on the north of the Ganges, the year was very favourable. Anticipations which were at one time entertained of a blight were not realized, and the moderate rain which fell in February, though injurious to the manufacture of leaves, and causing some reduction in the consistence of the drug, did more good than harm by bringing on the plants which, owing to the lateness of the rains in the previous year, were in a backward condition. In Benares, on the other hand, although the season commenced well, the rains in February were so heavy as to injure the strength and productiveness of the plants, and were followed by unusually early hot winds that scorched up the crops of the later sowings and reduced the outturn.

The following table shows the average outturn per beegha in both agencies for the last five years :—

	BEHAR.		BENARES.
	Seers.	Chittacks.	Seers.	Chittacks.
1875-76	5	13½	6	4
1876-77	4	14½	6	9
1877-78	3	5½	5	13
1878-79	3	15½	5	7½
1879-80	4	10½	4	0½

The year under review is the first in this period in which the average outturn from Behar has surpassed that of Benares. The decline in the Benares average since 1875-76 seems to justify the inference that in the desire to extend cultivation inferior land has been taken up.

9. The total deliveries of opium at the Patna Factory, taken at 70° consistence, amounted to maunds 53,593-23-1¼, or maunds 12,325-21-13 over last year. From Benares, Patna received maunds 8,073-14-9¼ for excise opium and lewah. The factory made 31,118 chests of provision opium at 74° and 75°, against 29,786 in 1878-79, and 3,318½ chests of excise opium against 3,297½. The deliveries of free pussewah rose from maunds 46-7-2½ in 1878-79 to maunds 942-23-6½ equivalent to dandatta (70°) maunds 323-27-9¼. The quality of the opium was generally good. Maunds 6-4-1½ were confiscated as adulterated after being passed by Sub-Deputy Opium Agents as good, against maunds 4-31-9½ last year. There was a large increase in the number of deliveries of opium marked as 'suspected' by the district officers, indicating greater strictness in examination, and the quantity on which fines were imposed rose from maunds 86-37-15 to maunds 435-29-8. The total quantity confiscated was maunds 21-11-3 against maunds 16-4-5 in 1878-79. The Board, in paragraph 13 of their covering letter, refer to the successful results of the recently sanctioned payment of commission to the headmen and ryots of Nepalese villages to induce them to bring in their opium for sale. This is a matter that does not, however, properly belong to the year now under review.

10. In the Benares Agency the net outturn at 70° consistence was maunds 45,475-37-0¼, or less by maunds 11,160-38-8 than in 1878-79, showing a decrease in outturn of 24·54 per cent., although the area under crop was 8·56 per cent. greater. These results are attributed entirely to the unfavorable weather. The quantity of opium sent in as suspected was maunds 116-25-9 against maunds 122-5-6 last year. The amount actually confiscated out of this was maunds 35-20-3 against maunds 21-32-13. Fines were imposed on maunds 655-28-5 against maunds 709-13-8. There was an increase (from maunds 4-28-5½ to maunds 5-3-2) in the amount of opium passed as good by the out-stations and found at the factory to be adulterated. The Agent, however, believes that in the most serious case the jars had been tampered with in transit. The deliveries of pure pussewah were maunds 172-18-4 against maunds 8-21-7 last year. The Agent here believes that the orders sanctioning a commission of one rupee per maund for free pussewah brought in had a good effect in encouraging its separation. The Behar authorities, on the other hand, attribute the larger quantity delivered in this year to the fact that the season was favorable to the production of pussewah. It is too soon yet to decide whether the grant of commission has really done good, and it should be continued during the current year. The Ghazipore Factory made 21,851 chests of provision opium against 20,175 in 1878-79, and 177 chests of excise opium against 2,308. The bulk of the cakes ranged between 69.50° and 70° consistence, none being lower than 69.50°.

11. The total expenditure of the year was Rs. 1,06,35,352 in Behar against Rs. 83,42,062 in 1878-79; and in Benares Rs. 92,73,815 against Rs. 1,12,52,285.

12. The progress made in the collection of the outstanding balances in Behar is extremely satisfactory. The balances of 1877-78 originally amounted to Rs. 6,49,052. These were reduced by the end of 1878-79 to Rs. 2,13,166. Of this sum, Rs. 16,403 have been remitted under the orders of Government; the remainder, with the exception of Rs. 3,383, which it is expected will shortly be realized, has been recovered. Rs. 9,537, outstanding from 1878-79 are in process of realization, and the balance of the year under review amounts to Rs. 10,914 only. Of this sum Rs. 10,550 are due from the Monghyr Agency, where the crop suffered much from hail-storms. In Benares the Agent anticipates that about half the outstanding balances, amounting to some Rs. 30,000, will be realized. The Lieutenant-Governor approves of the instructions given by the Board to the Agent with regard to the recovery of these balances.

13. The tables given do not show the total number of cases of smuggling detected during the year. The number of prosecutions instituted in the Benares Agency is given as 855, in 766 of which convictions were obtained. The amount realized as fines was Rs. 13,198-3-6, and that given in rewards Rs. 15,950-12-9. These numbers are throughout below those of the previous year. In Behar it is stated that 45 cases of opium-smuggling were successfully prosecuted, in which the offenders belonged to the Patna Division. Of the 59 persons concerned in these cases, 41 were imprisoned, and were under the standing orders of Government brought to Bankipore Jail, in order that they might be identified. The Agent, however, reports that in the majority of cases the prisoners evaded recognition by giving false names and addresses. The Board are of opinion that there must have been some want of zeal or intelligence in working out the plan of identification. The subject is one of some importance, and the Lieutenant-Governor would wish to have a special report as to the system now pursued, with such suggestions for its improvement as may occur to the Board and the Agent. Some explanation of the extraordinary difference in the number of cases reported in the two Agencies is also called for. It appears doubtful whether the figures for Behar are complete. No tabular statement of opium cases is given as in the Benares report.

14. The report by the Principal Assistant of the Behar Agency, on the work of the Patna Factory and the improvements effected there in the course of the year, has been read with great interest. Dr. Shepherd deserves the cordial thanks of Government for the numerous and important improvements effected in the factory arrangements. It is hoped that the measures adopted by him for the careful supervision of cake-making and packing will do something towards removing the cause of the complaints now made in China of the defective condition of the Behar opium on arrival there. The whole question of packing and storing provision opium has, however, recently been exhaustively dealt with by Government on the report of the Special Committee appointed to consider the matter, and the orders of the Government of India on the subject are now under issue.

15. No new chests have been turned out by the Patna saw-mill during the year under review. This is ascribed to the large amount of alterations and repairs necessary to bring the old chests into conformity with the prescribed specification, and to the non-receipt of dovetailing machinery from England. Mr. Girling, the Superintendent of the Saw-mill, has again rendered good service in improving the machinery for preparing and fitting the chests and in conducting the operations of his department.

16. From the statement (F) in the appendix, it appears that 28,200 chests of Patna-made opium were sold during the year at an average per chest of Rs. 1,361-0-7 against Rs. 1,188-11-7 in the previous year, the average cost per chest being Rs. 308-11-1 against Rs. 251-15-5. Of Benares opium 21,851 chests were sent to the Presidency, but the results of sales are not given. The average cost of each chest was Rs. 350-5-10 against Rs. 356-3-6. The attention of the Board is invited to the remarks on the incompleteness of the annual statements embodied in the Resolution on the Report for 1876-77, and to the instructions contained in Government order No. 685T, dated the 26th June 1878, as to the mode of exhibiting the results of sales, and giving uniform statistics for the two agencies. The reports still leave something to be desired in this respect.

17. The thanks of Government are due to both the Agents for the intelligent supervision exercised over their respective charges. Mr. Carnac has been particularly zealous in giving effect to the orders of the Government of India regarding the extension of cultivation in his Agency. The Lieutenant-Governor also notices with satisfaction the commendation bestowed by the Board and by the Agents on the work done by Drs. Shepherd and Durant. The last paragraph of the Board's letter will be forwarded to the Appointment Department of this office for information.

The mean pressure, temperature, &c. are deduced from the traces of the barograph and thermograph, and from observations made at 6h, 10h, 16h and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No. 26, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The direction of the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The month of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

c overcast, g gloomy, d drizzling rain, t thunder, p passing temporary showers, p dew.

N.B.—In the Weekly Report from 20th to 26th March 1881, read 3.5 lbs. instead of 35 lbs. as the highest pressure of the wind on one square foot during the seven days.

NOTE.

Barometric Pressure.—The pressures in column 2 of the above table for all stations below 500 feet are reduced from those given in column 3 of the table on the previous page, by adding the weight of a column of air of the temperatures given in column 18. For stations above 500 feet elevation the reduction is made by Captain Allan Cunningham's table, "Prof., Papers on Indian Engineering, No. CXIII." The temperatures at the sea-level are taken from column 3 of the above table.

Temperature.—The temperatures in column 3 are reduced from those in column 18 on the preceding page, by adding 1° Fahrenheit for every 450 feet.

Wind Resultant.—The resultant wind direction and its comparative predominance are calculated from the whole number of wind observations recorded during the month. The relative predominance in the direction of the resultant is given as a percentage of the whole number of observations. The direction is computed in the usual way by Lambert's formula.

Cloud.—This column gives the average proportion of clouded sky, a cloudless sky being indicated by 0, and one completely overcast by 10.

The above, being all comparable, afford the data for constructing a meteorological chart for the month, which will show the isobaric and isothermal lines and the resultant wind directions, which last may be represented by arrows of varying length, proportioned to the prevalence of the wind. To these may be added the rainfall from the previous tables.

 The HON'BLE H. J. REYNOLDS,
 The HON'BLE H. A. COCKERELL,
 The HON'BLE A. MACKENZIE,

AMENDMENT OF THE COURT OF WARDS ACT.

ON the motion of the HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER, the report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend "The Court of Wards Act, 1879," was taken into consideration in order to the settlement of the clauses of the Bill, and the clauses of the Bill were considered for settlement in the form recommended by the Select Committee. He said that since the last meeting of the Council he had sent copies of the Bill as it stood to a few Commissioners and Collectors with a view to its being carefully considered before it was finally passed. The result showed that there was nothing of any importance required, but suggestions had been received of a few verbal amendments which he would now proceed to move.

The first of these was in section 1. This being a short amending Act, no short title was required, and the words from "may be called" in line 1 down to the word "it" inclusive in line 4, were omitted.

In section 4 an amendment was made so as to provide for the insertion of the word "sale" before the word "proceeds" also to clause 1 of section 23 of the Wards Act, and in lines 7 and 8 of clause 2 of the same section for the words "and all arrears of rent" the words "cesses and other demands and all arrears thereof" were substituted. As the Act stood, when the Collector attached an estate for the recovery of any sum due at the time of releasing the estate from the protection of the Court of Wards, he was empowered to recover only rent and arrears of rent; the amendment would empower him to recover all cesses and other demands recoverable as arrears of revenue.

Further amendments were made in the same section by the substitution in the proviso to clause 2, line 2 of the word "attached" for the word "farmed," and the omission of the words "of such farm" in line 3. The proviso as it stood laid down what was to be done with the proceeds of attached estates if let in farm, but there was no provision as to the mode of proceeding if the estate was managed by the Collector direct; this amendment was to correct that defect.

Verbal amendments were made in sections 5 and 6 of the Bill.

Section 9 was a new section giving power to the Collector to call for accounts and papers from a farmer within six months after the expiry of the lease; but it had been brought to notice that very often it was made a condition that the farmer should file a jumabandi every year, and it was represented that it would be very inconvenient if, under the law, the farmer could only be called upon to file accounts and papers after the expiry of his lease. It was therefore proposed to confer the power of calling for accounts and papers "at any time during the currency of the lease or" within six months, &c., and the opportunity was taken to make amendment further down the section by repeating the words "accounts, documents, or papers" in lieu of the word "information" which had crept in by a clerical error.

The HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER then moved that the Bill as amended be passed.

The HON'BLE MR. ALLEN said that before the Bill left the Council, he wished to add a few words on the subject of the discussion which took place at the last meeting of the Council. The fact of his hon'ble friend the mover having disclaimed any opinion of his own on the subject appeared to impose an additional obligation on MR. ALLEN to justify the opinion which he then gave. He must admit that at that time the force of his hon'ble friend's words did not strike him. It was only on seeing the Gazette, and finding Mr. Dampier's official faith pinned to him, that he felt the responsibility which the hon'ble member had cast on him. Further, the misapprehension which had been given expression to by the hon'ble gentlemen opposite appeared to be very widespread and not confined merely to those in Calcutta—persons who had been whetting their ingenuity over the circumstances of a particular case. He had lately had a visit from a mofussil pleader, and evidently the opinion considered to be undoubted was that which the member opposite gave expression to; and furthermore, it was not a matter of pure theory, but one of very important practical effect. This pleader mentioned a case with the circumstances of which it was unnecessary to trouble the Council, but which had reference to the disposal of a very large property, and the advice which was then given was entirely based upon that view of the age of minority. Now, on the last occasion, MR. ALLEN's remarks were very much in the nature of verbal criticism, and he travelled no further than the section itself. But these circumstances led him to look more deeply into the matter, and to go back to the history of majority legislation. The Majority Act of 1875 provided two distinct periods for two distinct classes of persons,—one at the age of 18 and the other of 21. Now, according to the opinion MR. ALLEN was combatting, the distinguishing and determining circumstance which was to decide the class of these two to which any particular person belonged, lay in the fact whether, at the time of attaining the age of 18, the minor was already under the protection of the Court of Wards or not. If he were already under the protection of the Court of Wards, it was added that the minority continued till the age of 21, but if the minor had not been taken under such protection, he became, it was said, a major immediately; he was entitled to defy the Court of Wards to spend his money in any way he pleased, and to ruin himself as fast as he liked. Thus, if at the time of his father's death, a minor was of the age of 17 years and 11 months, if the Collector of the district ~~was~~ ^{seized} the estate immediately, the minor became incapacitated for three years. If, on the other hand, the minor managed to conceal his father's death, or the father died a month later, that minor became sui juris. Thus the three years' civil incapacity was made to turn upon the merest accident which had no reference to the mental or moral maturity of the subject, or the responsibilities or dangers he was exposed to. The mere fact of having been a single week under the protection of the Court was, as it were, to carry with it by law the taint of three years' incapacity. This was simply to treat the Court of Wards as if it were a plague-stricken port, the entering of which for the most temporary shelter involved civil quarantine for three years. Now, could it be supposed that any Legislature would attach such consequences to coming under its own Court's protection? It might be true that the Court of Wards had enemies who made light of the training and education which it afforded, but a provision of this nature, however effective as a piece of cruel irony, would be altogether out of place in an Act of the Legislature; and any interpretation which involved such a conclusion carried its own condemnation with it. But the past history of the legislation on majority led to the same opinion. In 1793, when the Court of Wards was established, 15 years was taken as the period at which a minor became competent to manage his own property. This was simply accepting what was supposed to be the Hindu and Muhammadan law on the subject; but inconvenience was very soon experienced in making that the age of majority, and by Regulation XXVI of 1793 the Legislature postponed the period of majority for three years. In the preamble to that Regulation, the reasons which induced the Legislature to do so were sufficiently set out in language of the most sober and weighty kind. For proprietors of entire estates paying revenue direct to Government, the age of majority was fixed at 18 years, but for others no special period was appointed, and they remained, under the general Hindu and Muhammadan law, minors till the age of 15. Act XL of 1858 took their case into consideration, and enacted that all such as were not already protected by the Court of Wards were to attain their majority at the age of 18. MR. ALLEN was aware that there had been in early years diversity of decisions as to the effect of this Act, and that the view taken in the Bombay Presidency appeared to be different from the view taken here, but the question was finally settled by a Full Bench decision of the High Court of Calcutta in 1871, 1 B. L. R., 49. The argument then put before the High Court was very much the same as that which had been put forward in this Council with reference to the Court of Wards' jurisdiction. The dispute then was as to the effect of Act XL of 1858, and it was contended that that Act only provided for those who had already come under the control of the civil court, and that if they had not been brought under the control of the civil court, they attained their majority at the age of 15. The argument which the hon'ble member opposite maintained on the present occasion with respect to the Court of Wards' jurisdiction was stated by the then Chief Justice Sir Barnes Peacock in the form of a question, thus: "Then can it be said that being a minor, subject to the jurisdiction of the civil court, he is not a minor unless proceedings are taken in the civil court for the protection of his property or for the appointment of a guardian?" The Full Bench decision is the answer to that question. MR. ALLEN would not pretend to give in his own words the effect of that decision, but the question was afterwards raised again in the High Court, when Mr. Justice Phear said: "By that Full Bench decision Jadunath Miller versus Bolye Choud Dutt, 7 B. L. R., 607-610.

I understand it to be now settled that in the mofussil at any rate all persons (with certain exceptions) who have not attained the age of 18 years are under the disability of minority." Such was the state of the law when the Majority Act of 1875 was introduced, and it would be seen, on referring to the proceedings in the Governor-General's Council in reference to the passing of that Act, that at the time no intention to change the principle of the law was manifested by any person. A very strong opinion was expressed that for all minors of all classes the period of majority should be 21, but for various reasons the Select Committee determined not to adopt this age. They expressly put it that their reason for doing so was that they apprehended there were two classes of minors, one whose majority was attained at the age of 15, and the other at the age of 18, and they feared that a change from 15 to 21 was too great a leap to be taken at once. Therefore they confined themselves to deferring the period of majority in each case by three years. He quoted from Mr. Hobhouse's speech in presenting the report of the Select Committee. Having discussed the proposals made, Mr. Hobhouse summed up in this way: "It was found that after the introduction of the Bill there was only one serious subject of controversy, and that was whether the age of majority should be fixed at 18 or at some later age. We were recommended in a great number of influential quarters to postpone the age to 21, and were referred to many cases in which injury had occurred to young men by reason of their becoming masters of their property at too early an age. So it happened that when we came to discuss these papers, the object of uniformity seemed to be less important than the object of framing a law suitable for the needs of Indian Society, and we found that if we prolonged the non-age of those who were wards of Court, though we should not altogether follow the recommendations of those who advocated the age of 21, yet we should substantially satisfy their reasons and meet the cases of mischief which they adduced, while at the same time we should avoid so large a change as would be caused by altering the age from that of 15 years or less to that of 21. The broad result is that, setting apart the cases of successions and of European British subjects, we have provided that those who are now minors up to 18 shall remain so up to 21, and that others shall attain their majority at 18." The effect was simply to defer by three years the age of majority in each case.

When we came to examine what were the distinguishing circumstances which marked the particular law under which any particular person was to fall, it would be found that it was made in every instance to turn upon the question of the possession of property. The preamble to Regulation XXVI of 1793 distinctly put it upon the responsibility and dangers to which minor zemindars were exposed at the early age of 15 years. That principle was also accepted by the Legislature in 1875, and in continuation of his speech Mr. Hobhouse observed that, as a fact, no direct inconvenience would follow their refusal to make 21 the age of majority for all, because the richer classes were the only ones who would ever have occasion to appeal to the Majority Act practically, and that in providing the age of 21 years in their case the Council were meeting the whole difficulties which were likely to arise. Mr. Hobhouse said—

"But here it seems to me that we walk on thoroughly safe ground. We are dealing with a class whose non-age, if their fathers are not living, is already prolonged beyond that of their neighbours, or liable to be so prolonged by a simple application to a court of law."

Mr. Hobhouse, at all events, supposed that they were covering not merely those who were already under guardianship, but those who might be brought under guardianship by a simple application to a court of law. From first to last the Legislature had, in determining the period, considered first, the probable capacity of the minor, and, secondly, the responsibility which he was likely to have to undertake, and according to those principles, and not any mere accident as to whether he was already under the protection of the Court or not, the point was determined.

Such being the state of things as provided for by the Majority Act, Mr. ALLEN now came to the present Court of Wards Act. It provided that for the purposes of the Act, every person under the age of 21 years was a minor. He thought it was not open to the Council to modify that section in any way. The Majority Act provided specially for those under the jurisdiction of the Court of Wards, and this Council could not do otherwise than make 21 years the age of majority for the purposes of the Court of Wards Act. On the last occasion he suggested that the only way to escape the supposed difficulty, if there was a difficulty, would be to reduce the age of majority to 18 years in the Wards Act, but he now retracted that remark, for, by doing so, this Council would then indeed be going against the Majority Act. If the Wards Act declared "minor" to mean every one under 18 years, it would thus declare a ward reached majority at 18 years; while the Majority Act itself distinctly provided that (even according to the view of his opponents) a ward should not reach majority at 21 years, and not before. To make such a proposition would be ultra vires of this Council. But the practical question involved in and underlying all this was whether one whom the Wards Act declared a minor, he being under the age of 21 years, might dispute the control of the Court of Wards if he had attained the age of 18 before the Court had assumed the right of guardianship over him. The Wards Act legally bound every person in Bengal, and if any person was so ill-advised as to attempt to go into the civil court to shake off that control, his only possible chance of success would be by inducing the Court to declare that this Council had no power to fix 21 as the age of majority for minors subject to the jurisdiction of the Court of Wards. It was true that the courts in this country had from the commencement lent too ready an ear to the argument of ultra vires, and had been so indiscreet as not to confine the acceptance of the argument to cases in which orders of the executive Government were impugned, but had also applied that principle to render void Acts of the Legislature; but in every case in which an Act of the Legislature had been declared to be ultra vires, he believed it would be found the Superior Court had set things right. In no one case had this argument, at least as regards legislative Acts, been upheld, and if any ward or any minor should go into Court to press this argument, it would not be the Court's duty to be astute to discover that there was conflict between the two Legislatures, and further, any Court would doubtless give full effect to the consideration that the minority had been extended to 21, not for the destruction, but for the protection of the ward. The only result which Mr. ALLEN could anticipate from a ward coming into court for any such purpose would be that by so doing he would furnish an additional illustration of his incapacity and undue readiness to be led away by evil advisers, and thus justify the Act of the Legislature which had deferred his majority to the age of 21 years; but as to the result of any such application Mr. ALLEN did not suppose there could be the smallest doubt. The Supreme Government had already considered the Court of Wards' Act of this Council, it had accorded its sanction to it, and it would not have done this if it was in reality in opposition to an Act of its own Council. But so far from the Wards Act being in opposition to the Indian Majority Act, it was only in the Court of Wards' Act that the intention of the Supreme Legislature had received its complete accomplishment. These remarks, in an insufficient and feeble manner he admitted, covered arguments which yet he believed could never be controverted.

The HON'BLE THE ADVOCATE-GENERAL said that on the last occasion on which this question was considered he was absent from the Council, but the hon'ble mover of the Bill correctly represented the Advocate-General's opinion which was entirely in consonance with that which had been expressed by Mr. Allen. The ADVOCATE-GENERAL was glad to observe that Mr. Allen had further confirmed that opinion by a considerable amount of research in tracing the history of the Act itself. The opinion which the ADVOCATE-GENERAL had formed at one of the consultations of the Select Committee, was one as to which he was perfectly clear, and he did not think any reasonable doubt existed as to the meaning of section 3 of Act IX of 1875. The words "under the jurisdiction of any Court of Wards" made it perfectly clear that it was entirely unnecessary, for the purposes of section 3, that the minor should be actually under the protection of the Court of Wards, or that his estates should be vested in the Court. An infant under the English law was always under the jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery, although his property had not been taken possession of by the Court nor a guardian appointed. It could not be disputed that he would continue under the Court of Chancery until he had attained the age of 21. The attempt at present made, if successful, would be a retrograde movement to the state of things which existed before Act IX of 1875 was passed. The ADVOCATE-GENERAL remembered very distinctly giving a great deal of time to the consideration of the matter in consultation with Mr. Clarke, the then Secretary in the Legislative Department, and it was because section 3 of the Indian Majority Act used the expression "under the jurisdiction of the Court of Wards," that it was determined to frame the section in the Wards Act as had been done, namely, that a minor, should for the purposes of the Act, be a person under the age of 21 years. The Wards Act was drawn so as to make the two Acts read together. He did not think that any doubt existed as to the construction of the Act, and even if it did not think the Council could in any effective manner interfere with the provisions of section 3 of the Majority Act, and if his hon'ble friends thought that the word "jurisdiction" in that Act meant something different to the construction put by the Legal Remembrancer, they must go to a court of law for an authoritative interpretation of the meaning of the Act. There was a great case pending a short time back in regard to which, if the opinion entertained by the learned Legal Remembrancer and himself and the majority of the Committee was wrong or defective, proceedings would have been taken to set the matter right. He was not at liberty to mention the case further; but he knew that in that case sufficient and careful legal advice was taken on the subject. As far as he could see there did not appear to be the smallest doubt that the opinion which had been expressed by Mr. ALLEN was perfectly correct, and he thought this Council was greatly indebted to the hon'ble gentleman for the able manner in which he had this morning given expression to his views.

The HON'BLE AMEER ALI said that, as he had recorded a dissent to the report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Court of Wards' Act, he felt bound to say a few words after the remarks which had fallen from the learned Legal Remembrancer and the Advocate-General. He was under the impression that this question had been dropped and would not be raised again. He had merely mentioned the difficulty because it had suggested itself to him and to other professional gentlemen. He wished to assure hon'ble members that nothing was further from his intention than to reduce the age of majority; on the contrary, he would make the age uniform with reference to all persons, and remove the difficulty in that way. Instead of allowing the age of majority to fluctuate from 18 to 21, depending upon the circumstance whether a person was possessed of estates paying revenue to Government or not, he would have a uniform rule substituted in respect of all persons. But the question which he had raised involved a practical difficulty which had its origin from a conflict of words in the two Acts. He did not wish to enter into a technical discussion on the subject, and he was obliged to his learned friend for going into the history of legislation as to the majority of minors. But the question remained, what meaning was to be attached to the words "jurisdiction of the Court of Wards." He was bound to attach the greatest weight to the opinion of the Government law officers, but he wished to suggest one difficulty which had occurred to him as to the meaning of the word "jurisdiction." The hon'ble gentlemen seemed to think that the meaning to be attached to the expression implied a prospective jurisdiction. He did not suppose they contended that the jurisdiction of the Court of Wards was a larger jurisdiction than the jurisdiction of the civil courts. He did not think it could be contended that under the Indian Majority Act, the civil court could appoint a guardian ad litem to a person who had attained the age of majority, but if his learned friend's opinion was correct, that the Court of Wards could take possession of the estate and appoint a guardian to a person who had not completed 21, but had attained the age of 18; it seemed to MR. AMEER ALI that if such a person could be reduced to the jurisdiction of the Court of Wards, then that Court had a larger jurisdiction than the civil court. That, he believed, would reduce the whole contention to an absurdity. Then there was another question. If it was contended that the civil court had the same jurisdiction as the Court of Wards, then it would follow that a person would be subject to two concurrent jurisdictions the whole time, and if he was subject to the jurisdiction of the Court of Wards until the age of 21, then the law of limitation as to persons who completed the age of 18 years would not apply. Taking a common-sense view of the words used by the Indian Legislature, it seemed to MR. AMEER ALI hardly possible to avoid landing oneself into an absurdity if a prospective meaning were attached to the words "jurisdiction of the Court of Wards." That was his reason for having raised this question. If the Council had not the power to amend matters, a suggestion might be made to the Supreme Legislature for avoiding the difficulty, or some words might be added to section 27 of the Wards Act to effect the same object. It was not, however, for him to make any such suggestion.

BABOO PEARY MOH. MOOKERJEE said that, although the discussion was at the present time, he wished to remark that the Court of Wards was an institution very different from the English Court of Chancery. Here the institution owed its origin to the solicitude of Government for securing its revenue, but in the case of young men who might possess hundreds of thousands if not millions of rupees in a bank, there was no institution which took care of such persons and prevented their squandering away their property, although it was a property which was much more easily dissipated than landed property. But in the case of minors who possessed property paying revenue to Government, the Court of Wards took care both of the person and the property of the minor. It was no doubt a benevolent institution, but still it was an institution which owed its origin to the desire of Government to see that the revenue due from the estates of minors was secured. He thought therefore that the policy of the law, as enunciated by the hon'ble and learned members opposite, did not hold good with reference to all minors in this country; the case of a minor, however rich he might be, who did not possess landed property, was quite different from that of minors who had such property, and therefore there was no force in the argument based on an analogy between the Court of Chancery in England and the Court of Wards here.

HIS HONOUR THE PRESIDENT said that, having regard to the difficulty which was alleged to exist as to the interpretation of the two Acts, he thought the Council was indebted to the hon'ble and learned member for having raised this question and having given an opportunity to the law officers of Government to show, as they had done to HIS HONOUR'S entire satisfaction, that no such difficulty really existed as that which had been suggested. The question seemed to be a very simple one. Part II of the Court of Wards Act described the constitution and the jurisdiction of the Court. With regard to its constitution, the Act said that the Board of Revenue was to be the Court of Wards, and its jurisdiction was declared to extend to the person and property of persons declared to be minors; and a minor was defined to be a person who had not completed the age of 21. The Court of Wards was declared, under section 6 of the Act, to have jurisdiction over all such persons. The meaning of the term "ward" was also to be gathered from the next section of the Act. That section provided that "whenever the sole proprietor of an estate, or all the joint proprietors of an estate, are disqualified as provided in the last preceding section, the Court shall have power to take charge of all the property of every such proprietor or joint proprietor within its jurisdiction."

If the word "jurisdiction" was to be interpreted, as the learned gentleman had contended, as applying only to persons whose estates had actually been brought under the charge of the Court, then the section would be absolutely meaningless. He thought the Acts were really quite clear, and that there was nothing which could not be reconciled between the Majority Act and the Wards Act.

The motion was then agreed to, and the Bill as amended was passed.

AMENDMENT OF THE BENGAL EXCISE ACT.

ON the motion of the HON'BLE MR. REYNOLDS, the report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend "The Bengal Excise Act, 1878," was taken into consideration in order to the settlement of the clauses of the Bill, and the clauses of the Bill were considered for settlement in the form recommended by the Select Committee. The second section of the Bill, he said, repealed section 64 of Bengal Act VII of 1878, which had been rendered superfluous by section 9 of the Bill. Section 5 gave power either to prohibit absolutely the possession of certain foreign excisable articles, or to limit such possession to certain specified quantities. The former alternative had been introduced at the request of the Chief Commissioner of Assam, who represented that he thought it of great importance that he should have the power of preventing the introduction of hill ganja into the province under his administration. By section 7, the words "for sale" were omitted from section 58 of the Act, and certain words were introduced at the end of the section to make it clear that the permission given by section 17 of the Act to possess certain quantities of different excisable articles was not intended to authorize the introduction, into an excise circle, of spirituous liquors manufactured at another place, even though the quantity introduced might be within the limit allowed under section 17. The alteration in section 10 was of entirely a verbal nature. On going through the Act, it was observed that, as the first clause of section 75 was amended, it might be thought that "the seizure and confiscation" were to be done by the same officer, but no such effect was intended, because the Act distinctly declared that confiscation could only be made after adjudication by a Magistrate.

The HON'BLE MR. REYNOLDS then moved the following amendment, namely, that section 4 be omitted from the Bill, and the following section be substituted in its place:—

"In the last clause of section 9, for the words, 'and permit the manufacture of such liquors in distilleries established under section 7,' the following shall be substituted:—

"Nothing in this section, or in section 7, shall be held to debar the Collector, with the sanction of the Board, from granting a license for the manufacture of spirituous liquors after native processes in a distillery established under section 7."

It was represented by the Board of Revenue that though the wording of the last clause of section 9 of the Act of 1878 was not very happy, the clause had a meaning which was of such importance that they would prefer the provision remaining in the Act in some form. The Board had already in two instances authorized the manufacture of country spirits in distilleries established under section 7 for working after the European fashion, and though it might not be absolutely necessary that the law should specifically declare that the Board might grant licenses for such a purpose, the Board thought it desirable that the power should be vested in it by law. Mr. REYNOLDS therefore moved this amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

On the motion of the HON'BLE MR. REYNOLDS, the Bill as amended was then passed.

AMENDMENT OF THE CALCUTTA MUNICIPAL CONSOLIDATION ACT.

On the motion of the HON'BLE KRISTODAS PAL, the report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Calcutta Municipal Consolidation Act, 1876, was taken into consideration in order to the settlement of the clauses of the Bill, and the clauses of the Bill were considered for settlement in the form recommended by the Select Committee.

On the motion of the HON'BLE KRISTODAS PAL, the following clause was added to section 13 of the Bill:—

"In the same section, after the word 'rates' the words 'and fees' shall be inserted."

The HON'BLE KRISTODAS PAL said that at the last meeting of the Council he had stated that it had been his misfortune to differ from his hon'ble colleagues in the Select Committee on the subject of the provision relating to the extension of the water-supply to the Suburbs. The section, as framed by the majority of the Committee, went, he thought, beyond the original scope of the Bill, for, when the Bill was introduced, it was not intended to extend the water-supply to other environs of the Town than the Suburbs. But as the section now stood, it gave power to the local Government to extend the water-supply to the environs of the Town without limiting the same to the Suburbs, and the proviso declared:

"Provided that the Commissioners may, with the sanction of the local Government, assess a separate and distinct water-rate upon any portion of the environs, not being more than the maximum rate leviable under the Act. The Commissioners may require the Commissioners of any Suburban Municipality to arrange for the assessment and collection of the water-rate within any tract belonging to such Municipality."

Read this proviso in the light of the remarks made by the majority of the Select Committee. They said :

"If the local Government is empowered to declare any portion of the environs to be part of the Town for the purposes of the water-supply, all the legislative sanction necessary will be given. The Government will then be in a position to act as supreme arbitrator between the Calcutta Corporation and the Suburban Municipalities."

Now, reading the two together, one could not resist the conviction that the amended section covered a much wider area than what it was the original intention to embrace. He for one did not believe that the Government did intend to assume such large powers; his impression was that the object of the Government was to limit the extension of the proposed law to the Suburbs only, by giving the inhabitants thereof the benefit of the Calcutta water-supply. If he was correct in this interpretation of the intention of Government, he hoped necessary alterations would be made in the Bill to limit the extension of the supply to the Suburbs only. If the environs of the Town were included, an indefinite and enormous burden would be imposed upon the Town.

With regard to the general question of the extension of the water-supply to the Suburbs, he wished to declare at the outset that he was not in the least opposed to that measure. All that he wanted was that it should be extended upon fair and equitable principles; that the Calcutta Corporation should not be made to suffer any loss for the sake of the advantage which might be conferred on the sister Municipality; that it should be a matter of fair exchange. But if the Council would carefully compare the section as it stood in the amended Bill with the section as it stood in the original Bill, they would find considerable difference between the two. In the amended Bill power was given to the local Government to determine to what portion of the environs of the Town the extension of the water-supply was to be sanctioned. In the original Bill the initiative was left to the Calcutta Corporation. When this amendment was introduced, he was told that this enabling provision had been drawn on the lines of the present Municipal Act, which empowered the Lieutenant-Governor to extend the drainage sections to the Suburbs. He wished it to be understood that there was a material difference between the enabling power given to the local Government under the drainage section, and that given under this section. It was never intended, when the drainage section was inserted in the Calcutta Municipal Act, that the drainage system should be extended to the Suburbs to any large extent. The object was simply to enable the Commissioners to extend the benefits of the Calcutta drainage to persons dwelling on the other side of the Circular Road. That section had been on the Statute Book for nearly eighteen years, and the Government had never thought it necessary to extend it to the Suburbs. But on the other hand, the Calcutta Commissioners had of their own accord allowed persons, living on the other side of the Circular Road, to connect their houses with the Circular Road sewer. Thus the operation of the drainage section had been very limited, but it was well understood that, under the section proposed in this Bill, a considerable portion of the Suburbs would be brought within the scheme of the Calcutta water-supply; in fact, the avowed object was to take active measures for the extension of the Calcutta water-supply to the Suburbs. It could not therefore be contended for a moment that the power given under this section would not be largely exercised for years to come. Such being the case, when they saw that the circumstances connected with the two matters under notice were so distinct and different, they ought to consider whether the Calcutta Corporation should not have the initiative, as it would have to bear the money responsibility. It should be borne in mind that this was not simply a question of law, but that it was a question of money. It was not simply a question whether the Government should have the power or not, but it was a question whether the Government should exercise the power if the Suburban Municipality was not in a position to make a fair and full contribution for the benefit they wished to enjoy. BABOO KRISTODAS PAL contended that before the obligation for the extension of the supply was made imperative upon the Calcutta Corporation, that body was entitled to enquire and satisfy itself as to whether there would be a sufficient surplus of water after meeting the wants of the Town for sale to outsiders, and whether the price which the Suburbs might be prepared to pay would cover all costs. Hence, it was necessary that the initiative should be left to the Corporation, who, when necessary, should move the local Government to bring the provision of the law into operation.

Then, the majority of the Committee admitted that the Suburban Municipality could not afford to pay more than 6 per cent. They said: "But we restrict this to the maximum already allowed by the Act, as that appears to us, on the figures available to us, not only as much as the Suburbs ought to bear, but as much as they can possibly afford to pay." So that the Committee ~~had~~ ^{admitted} whether the Suburban Municipality ought to pay ~~more~~ ^{not}, but they ~~thought~~ ^{admitted} that they could not afford to pay more than 6 per cent. It was not ~~quite~~ ^{quite} correct to say that there were no figures before them to show whether a 6 per cent. rate would be sufficient or not. The dissent which he thought proper to record gave the figures. But apart from the question whether the Suburbs should pay a higher rate or not, the Select Committee thought that they could not pay more. If that was the conclusion at which the Select Committee had arrived, he did not see with what consistency they recommended that the Calcutta Municipality should be compelled to extend the supply of Calcutta water to the Suburbs. For when power was given to the local Government to declare the Suburbs a part of the Town for purposes of water-supply, the Municipality would have no option but to carry out the orders of Government.

Some discussion took place in Select Committee as to the size of the main. Now, he stated to the Council when he had the honour of introducing the Bill, that if the Government conceded the reduction of contribution towards the sinking fund from 2 to 1 per cent., the difficulties about the 62-inch main would be solved. He said he for one would support the introduction of the 62-inch main; he did declare that, as the Government had been pleased to concede the reduction of the contribution to the sinking fund, the 62-inch main should be adopted. It might be a question whether the 62-inch main would be necessary for the purposes of the Town only, or whether it would suffice for both the Town and Suburbs. Individually, he thought that a 42-inch main would double the present supply, but others held that a 62-inch main would be required, as the wants of the Town were rapidly growing, and a 42-inch main would not be sufficient a few years hence. One thing was, however, clear, that if a 62-inch main was required for the Town, then the Town would not be in a position to give water to the Suburbs without the addition of another main. Even if at present the 62-inch main should yield sufficient water for the Town and Suburbs, a few years hence it might be necessary to have another main to meet the growing wants of the Town, and in that case the Town would be put to additional expenditure for increased supply. That was one view of the question. As regards the other view, which he had endeavoured to represent, it was quite clear that if a 42-inch main would double the present supply, the increased size of the main would benefit the Suburbs, and it was but reasonable and just that the Suburbs should pay a portion of the cost of the increased size. From whatever point of view they considered the question of the main, they would find that the cost of the works and the working expenses and other charges would be so large that a maximum 6 per cent. rate recommended would not be sufficient to meet the total cost, and the result would be, as he had endeavoured to show, that the Town would have to make up the deficiency on account of the Suburbs. But, said the majority of the Committee, the Government having conceded a reduction of the contribution towards the sinking fund, the Corporation ought to pay the extra cost. Now, he for one could not for a moment admit that, when the Government was pleased to make the concession, it ever made it a condition that the benefit of reducing the contribution should go to make up the deficit of the Suburbs for the extension of the water-supply. The question of the reduction of the contribution towards the sinking fund was put upon two grounds; firstly, that the tax-payers of Calcutta were burdened with very heavy taxation; and, secondly, that the 2 per cent. contribution fell chiefly upon the present generation of tax-payers, which was not equitable; but the Government never told them that if the contribution was reduced and the water-supply extended to the Suburbs, the Suburban rate-payers should be relieved of any portion of the cost of the extension of the supply. He would read to them an extract from a letter from the Government of Bengal to the Government of India, recommending the concession of a reduction of the contribution towards the sinking fund. It was as follows:—

The Government of India are aware of the great importance of filling up the numerous tanks which have hitherto been the cause of so much disease in the town; but the completion of this work depends upon the increase in the supply of river water for the use of the people. The Corporation are now considering a scheme for largely increasing the supply of water, and extending it to the Suburbs, and the Lieutenant-Governor proposes to amend Act V (B.C.) of 1879 so as to give the Suburban Commissioners power to levy a water-rate over the Suburbs, the rates incurred on their behalf by the Calcutta Municipality. The work contemplated will be of such a nature as to last long beyond the present generation. The drainage works, too, are essentially of a permanent nature, and their benefits will extend to posterity; on the other hand, there is no ground for apprehending any decline in the prosperity of Calcutta within any period to which reasonable anticipation can extend. Municipal taxation in Calcutta is very high, and the Lieutenant-Governor believes that any increase in the rates would interfere seriously with the progress of the town. Only once during the ten years, 1870 to 1879, did the aggregate rate fall below 16 per cent., and in four of these years it was 18 or 18½ per cent. It is a question whether, even now, the population of the town is not less than it would be if the rate of municipal taxation were lighter. In the Suburbs, taxation is also high, and it is represented that, if the rate to be levied is to include provision for a 2 per cent. sinking fund contribution, the scheme will probably have to be abandoned. Under these circumstances, the Lieutenant-Governor proposes to make provision in the amending Act for a sinking fund contribution of one per cent. only on all public loans raised for water-supply, on the understanding that the Municipal Commissioners of Calcutta determine to lay a 62-inch main conduit from Pultah; and he would make similar provision with regard to loans for drainage works. He trusts that the Government of India will signify their approval of this measure."

Now, there was not one word in the letter to show that if this concession was made, it would be a sort of set-off against any deficiency in the Municipal funds of the Suburbs on account of water-supply. He submitted that he was quite within the four corners of the Government letter he quoted when he said that, while the Calcutta Corporation should adopt a 62-inch main, it should not be charged with any portion of the cost of the supply to the Suburbs.

Then, he had been told by the Select Committee that the Government had heretofore much assisted the Calcutta Commissioners in carrying out the water-works, and that it had therefore a right to expect that the Commissioners should show some consideration to the Suburbs. He for one readily acknowledged that the Municipality had received assistance from the Government in the prosecution of the water-works; but it seemed to him, and he thought it would be admitted, that as Calcutta was the metropolis of the Empire, there was an inherent obligation on the Government to support the Metropolitan Municipality in carrying out improvements which would make the capital city worthy of the residence of the highest personages in the land. He would not raise the question whether in all matters the Government had been liberal to the Municipality, he meant in its financial relations with the Municipality; but while he acknowledged with gratitude the assistance the Municipality had received from the Government in the execution of the water-works, he could not for a moment admit that that assistance was rendered with any stipulation whatever that the Municipality should in its turn extend the water-supply to the Suburbs. If such a condition had been imposed, the Corporation would have considered at the time whether they should have borrowed the money from the Government or gone to the public for the necessary accommodation.

He had been surprised to observe that an impression prevailed in certain quarters that there was jealousy between Calcutta and the Suburbs. He for one denied that any such jealousy existed. The Calcutta Corporation had never hesitated to lend the benefit of its own works to the Suburbs whenever they applied for it. Not many years ago the Suburbs were allowed to discharge their sewage into the Circular Road sewer, and even now the houses lying on the other side of the Circular Road were allowed to be connected with the sewers; and with regard to water, it was sold to the inhabitants of the Suburbs at a very small charge; indeed, it was notorious that the Suburban people did make use of Calcutta water. The question was, however, whether, taking all these facts into consideration, the circumstances of the Calcutta and Suburban Municipalities were such that they could go together in partnership for the purposes of the water-supply. He saw that in the last annual report of the Suburban Municipality this question was discussed, and the Suburban Commissioners frankly stated that the differences in the condition of the two Municipalities were so great that they could not be fairly yoked together for the purposes of water-supply. He would read an extract from their last administration report. The Suburban Commissioners said—

“These drawbacks are not sufficiently considered by those who unthinkingly clamour for a water-supply like that of Calcutta, and it is not at all unusual for them to remark: ‘They have got water-pipes in Calcutta, why don’t we have it in the Suburbs?’ It requires very little discrimination, however, to understand that what is practicable in a compact city, consisting of some five square miles of closely built, highly rented valuable properties, and with a large well-to-do rate-paying population, may be financially impracticable in a semi-rural suburban township covering four and twenty square miles with a scattered and poor population inhabiting property bearing a comparatively low rate of assessment.”

The Suburban Commissioners thus distinctly admitted that the differences in the condition of the two Municipalities were such that it was not practicable, financially, to extend the water-supply to the Suburbs. He endeavoured to show in his dissent that a 1 per cent. rate in Calcutta meant Rs. 1,30,000 per annum, whereas a 1 per cent. rate in the Suburbs meant less than Rs. 25,000, so that, practically, it came to this, that a 6 per cent. water-rate in the Suburbs would yield only as much as a 1 per cent. rate in Calcutta. When such was the difference in the condition of the two Municipalities, was not it preposterous to say that the maximum rate which was levied in Calcutta should also be levied in the Suburbs? An equal rate for equal benefit to the Town and Suburbs, he submitted, was a misnomer. Taking all these things into consideration, he proposed the following amendment, namely that the following section be substituted for section 15:—

“15. After section 160, the following section shall be inserted, namely—

“The local Government may (on the application of the Municipal Commissioners of Calcutta) determine what portion, if any, of the Suburbs of the Town shall be included in the said system of water-supply, and may declare the boundaries thereof in the Calcutta Gazette, and for the purposes of the water-supply, the land within such boundaries as aforesaid shall be deemed to be part of the Town.

“Provided that the Commissioners may with the sanction of the local Government, assess a separate and distinct water-rate upon any such portion of the Suburbs, calculated on a scale sufficient to include interest upon all capital expended in the construction of the works necessary for the purpose of extending such water-supply, together with all charges for maintenance, supervision, and renewal of the same. The Commissioners may require the Commissioners of the Suburban Municipality to arrange for the assessment and collection of the water-rate within any tract belonging to such Municipality, and in that case the Suburban Commissioners shall have all the powers of the Commissioners for the purpose of such assessment and collection under the Act.”

The HON’BLE MR. MACKENZIE said—

“This question of the water-supply has now been under the consideration of the Corporation for over two years, and the multitude of Municipal Councillors has not as yet, at least so far as I can see, evolved much practical wisdom. They have been discussing it in meeting, and discussing it in Committee; referring it to experts and sitting in judgment on their referees; chaffering with the Suburban Municipality, and disputing with one another; repudiating their Chairman, and promising reports to Government; with all their usual persistence and energy: but somehow we seem to be as far off as ever from any satisfactory settlement. I confess, Sir, that I for one do not altogether wonder at this result, or lack of result. I cannot see how any complete solution of the complex problem involved could ever be arrived at by the discussions of a heterogeneous body of amateurs, such as the Calcutta Commissioners (when dealing with a matter of this kind) really are. Some of them may perhaps object to being classed as amateurs in respect of any portion of their work. The Corporation, no doubt, has on its Board many able men, who give much of their time to doing what is in their judgment best for the town; but unfortunately the determination of important matters is not always left to those best qualified to deal with them. Everybody wants to have a hand in everything that goes on: and it would really appear as though many of the Commissioners claimed, in virtue of their municipal election, to have become honorary but qualified members, not merely of the Institute of Civil Engineers, but also of the College of Physicians, the Society of Actuaries, the Incorporated Law Society, and numerous other similar bodies. There is no professional matter, however petty, or however large, on which these gentlemen do not aspire to guide and instruct, reprove, rebuke, and exhort their responsible advisers. From the influence and good example of my hon'ble friend, the mover of this amendment, to whom both the Town and the Government owe many debts of gratitude, for much good work and terse business-like speech, has not sufficed to check in some quarters this tendency to waste time in talk. Yet surely of all others this question of the water-supply was one to be determined, not by counting votes and party divisions, but by the comprehensive advice of the professional talent available to Government. What the Municipality might well have done was this. It might have determined in a general way, from its local and special knowledge, wherein the present scheme of water-supply comes short, and to what extent. It might have indicated what were the wants yet remaining to be supplied. It might have settled the amount of money that it was able and willing to spend upon the whole. And, then, it might have invited the Government to assist it by lending the services of its best men to draw up, in consultation with the Municipal Engineer, a complete and well co-ordinated scheme for meeting the wants of the Town. That scheme the Commissioners should have accepted and carried through.

The hon'ble member talks as though there were in existence somewhere a unique and complete scheme, round which all this discussion must centre; and he refers us to the figures embodied in his dissent from the Select Committee's report, as statistics regarding which there can be no possible doubt. I have gone through all the papers available with considerable care, and I find there no such complete and well-reasoned scheme, as I should have expected at this stage of the Commissioners' deliberations. I find only a conflicting farrago of suggestions and alternative schedules of works; nothing like an argued examination of this important and complicated question in all its bearings.

I must trouble the Council with a somewhat lengthy review of the history of this matter, in order to vindicate my contention that the section, as framed by the Select Committee, meets fairly and equitably the true requirements of the case.

Mr. Kimber, the Municipal Engineer, started off in 1878 with a scheme which dealt only with the extension of the filtered water-supply, but provided for the inclusion of the Suburbs. He proposed to raise the daily maximum supply from eight to 20 million gallons, giving four millions of that to the Suburbs. In his report Mr. Kimber remarked—

“The health and prosperity of the Town greatly depend upon the condition in these respects of its Suburbs, and the suburban population must, to a great extent, be considered as inhabitants of the town, carrying on their trades within, though living without it. A portion of this population already obtains its supply, though a too limited one, from the standposts at Hastings, and along the Circular and Baug Bazar Roads” (i. e. gratis), “and the people, as a rule, appear well-disposed to pay for the privilege. It is therefore as politic, necessary, and economical a measure to include the Suburbs in the new arrangements, as it would be selfish, churlish, and even suicidal to refuse such a position.” I trust that this Council will in the end see its way to saying Amen to Mr. Kimber.

Well, this scheme was deemed too costly for both Town and Suburbs, the total figure amounting to over 59 lakhs of rupees. The annual charge to the Suburbs alone would have been Rs. 1,80,000, requiring a rate of nearly 7½ per cent. to cover it. The Suburbs therefore withdrew from all connection with the matter for the time, and the Calcutta Commissioners on the 17th May 1879 took up the question, and discussed it thenceforward as affecting themselves alone. They appointed a Committee, and this Committee consulted referees—Mr. Bradford Leslie and Mr. Whitfield, than whom no two men better qualified to devise a complete scheme of water-supply could anywhere have been found. But what was referred to these gentlemen was not the general question of the best possible means of meeting all the wants of the Town, but merely a particular modification of Mr. Kimber's scheme of filtered supply (which itself in the main followed the lines of one drawn up some years before by Mr. Leslie himself), supplemented by a further note by Mr. Kimber on the question of extending the unfiltered supply. Mr. Kimber's modified scheme was to cost Rs. 34,70,000. Nothing was said as to the possibility of preventing waste, and economising the use of filtered water generally, and no examination of the advantages or disadvantages of a complete dual system of supply, filtered and unfiltered, was invited. The reference was, as it seems to me, vitiated by the limitation of its terms.

The referees made, however, a careful report on the plans actually submitted to them, and the point in their report to which I wish to draw special attention is this, that they told the Commissioners that they ought to have the Town alone, to have a 62-inch main. It would, they said, be folly to have any smaller size of conduit, the saving of cost being comparatively trivial. The difference in cost between a 42-inch and a 62-inch main is only about 4 lakhs of rupees—a mere trifle when works of such magnitude are involved, and so many advantages secured by the larger main. A 62-inch main would bring down 28 millions of gallons if required; and the head works and distributaries might be regulated to meet the demand as it grew. The scheme advocated by the referees, carefully confined to the four corners of the reference made to them, provided for raising the Calcutta supply to 12 million gallons, and extending somewhat the unfiltered supply, at a total cost of Rs. 33,44,000.

In the ordinary course of things one would have supposed that the referees' opinion given in December 1879 would have settled the question, as the Commissioners had no other more complete scheme before them, and were not looking for any. But the Calcutta Corporation had to satisfy itself that the referees knew what they were writing about. Every specification had to be subjected to discussion and analysis, time being no object, and the opportunity of studying water-engineering too good to lose. For six months the Committee were pulling the scheme to pieces, and at last the majority of them submitted a fourth schedule of proposed works giving the town 12 million gallons of filtered water and 4 millions of unfiltered at a cost of Rs. 33,48,000, but holding staunchly to the 62-inch main. This was in fact after all only the referees' scheme, slightly tinkered, the difference in cost being only Rs. 4,000, and the supply of water identical.

But the Commissioners are no more to be bound by the majority of their own Committee than by their referees. Dr. Mitra and my hon'ble friend opposite were of opinion that 12 millions of gallons were not nearly adequate to the wants of the place. Dr. Mitra is in possession of much curious information, as to the manners and habits of East and West, and he has come to the conclusion that a Calcutta population wants 50 gallons of water per man daily to make it happy, or say 25,000,000 gallons for 500,000 people, although Manchester with all its trade and a population of 600,000 uses only from 12 to 13 million gallons—waste included. Dr. Mitra tells us, however, that the well-to-do inhabitant here "stretches himself under water," once or twice daily in a bath requiring from 50 to 100 gallons to fill it; while in England "the bulk of the community" only take a sponge-bath once a fortnight, and wash their shirts only at equal intervals. There are certainly differences of habits as there are differences of climate between East and West, but the precise facts stated will no doubt interest the Council. In view of these, and other bits of statistical information, hardly suited for mention here, Dr. Mitra said in effect that he cared nothing for future generations. They might find their own tubs. What he wanted was to double the supply of filtered water now available, that all the population might, if it chose, stretch itself in baths daily, and bless the Calcutta Corporation. He thought this might be done with a 42-inch main.

Another member of the Committee was, however, Mr. Bruce, whose opinion on a matter of this kind is worth, at a low computation, that of ten ordinary Commissioners. Mr. Bruce wrote a minute which appears to me to show in a very remarkable way the incompleteness of all the schemes hitherto put forward. He showed that no attempt had been made in Calcutta to check the undoubted and excessive waste of filtered water, and that no sufficient consideration had been given to the question of extending the unfiltered supply throughout the town for all the viler uses of the population. He may have gone too far in saying that no extension of the filtered supply had been shown to be necessary. But his minute demonstrates conclusively that up to date the problem of the Calcutta water-supply had not been worked out in all its possible phases. Government certainly has had no complete report or analysis of alternative schemes in any shape yet laid before it. The Commissioners are still considering and debating, and except from the personal statements of my hon'ble friend, we have no information as to the general bent of the ^{several} ~~the~~ ^{schemes} ~~schemes~~. Indeed, as a matter of fact, the only scheme that has ever been ^{communicated} ~~communicated~~ to Government is Mr. Kimber's original scheme of 1878, and ~~announced~~ ^{approved} by the late Chairman, Mr. Beverley, which the Commissioners decline to recognise as coming from them.

This sketch of all that has passed, so far as Government is either officially or informally aware, seems to me to afford a simple answer to all the statements regarding the impossibility or impropriety of treating the Town and Suburbs together in the matter of the water-supply. That answer is that the thing has never yet been properly worked out. We do not know how far prevention of waste in Calcutta, and the general extension of the cheap unfiltered supply, might reduce the cost of the works required. We have, as I said before, no authoritative scheme before us upon which we can form a final judgment as to the precise burdens that will actually be imposed upon either Town or Suburbs.

This section of the Bill therefore does not do more than enable Government to exercise, in respect of extensions of the water-supply, the powers which the law already gives it in respect of the drainage scheme. It does not bind the Government down to any particular form of extension. Government has no cognizance at present of any scheme which it is bound to support or push. The Town and the Suburbs must between them hammer out a plan to suit them, if they are not wise enough to refer the whole question to Government in the manner I have already suggested. The hon'ble member has sought to establish some distinction of kind between extensions of drainage and extensions of water-supply. I can see no such distinction. The reason why the question of extending the drainage system has not come up more prominently hitherto is simply because the Town has yet so much to do to complete its internal arrangements.

I cannot conceive, Sir, how any resident of Calcutta can be so short-sighted as to wish to confine such sanitary improvements as this within the limits of the Circular Road. The health of the Town is intimately dependent upon that of the Suburbs. The epidemic fever of Nuddea invades us from the north. From the south came creeping in only last year the foul and fatal plague of beri-beri. Not once, but often have the officers of the 24-Pergunnahs seen cholera sweeping down upon the town from the villages and marts outside. I myself when attached to that district years ago watched more than one such invasion of cholera as it marched from village to village along the principal roads until it fell upon the Town.

Calcutta ought not only to do away with its own vileness, but endeavour to secure a broad and wholesome belt of suburbs round it upon every side. Of course its action must be limited by financial considerations, and no one is more awake than I am to the heavy pressure of taxation in the Town. But in this particular instance, on the showing of the Municipal Commissioners themselves the possible loss to the Town, is after all trifling in the extreme. They reckon it, I believe, at an outside figure of Rs. 25,000. But the proof that there must be any loss at all rests, as I shall show, on a very uncertain and insufficient basis. But, however that may be, I submit confidently to this Council, that the manner in which the Commissioners have dealt with this question, the interminable delays and discussions in which they seem to be forever losing themselves, are such that Government could not, consistently with its duty, any longer leave the water-supply of the Suburbs entirely to the discretion of the Town Corporation. That body is not bound by anything my hon'ble friend opposite may say, and is quite capable of being very unreasonable in the matter. The Government has delegated certain of its powers and functions to the Corporation. But it cannot, I think, continue to abandon the determination of this important matter to such an independent, dilatory, and, possibly selfish body. The care of the sanitary interests of the metropolis, as a whole, must, when such large questions are involved, rest to some extent with Government. It must decide where sewage must go and water-supply be carried, and in so doing it will not, we must feel sure, unreasonably sacrifice the interests of either Town or Suburbs. It is in view to getting an equitable settlement of this matter of water-supply that the Lieutenant-Governor, in September 1880, moved the Commissioners not to overlook the Suburbs in their discussions. This was, I maintain, a most legitimate interference, which only finds formal warrant in the fact that we are now discussing.

I have said, Sir, that we have no complete scheme before us. There is sufficient on record to show that the theory that the Suburbs should pay a rate limited only by the demand of the Town is not either necessary or reasonable. The Council will remember that, from February 1879 to September 1880, the town was considering only its own wants, and that its own engineer, its referees, and its Committee all admitted that a 62-inch main was what the Town ought to have, even if the Suburbs were put out of sight altogether. The papers also show that if the Town had a 62-inch main, it could not only supply itself, but, by erecting certain additional engines, filters, and so on, and by extending the distributaries, could supply also a large tract of Suburbs. It would be in the position of a man with a small family and a good cow. He gets the cow for his own use in the first place, and he wisely gets a good one rather than a scanty milker, and sells the surplus milk to his own profit and the advantage of his neighbours. My hon'ble friend has tried to place us on the horns of a dilemma. I understood him to say that if the Town got a 62-inch main on its own account, it would be because it required the reserve of power thus secured to it for future extensions of its own population. If it got it because the Suburbs wanted water, the Suburbs ought to pay their share of the cost. The fact, however, seems to be that the Town must have a 62-inch main in any case, and that the quantity of water which such a main can be made to supply, supplemented by unfiltered water, is more than the Town and Suburbs together can want for very many years to come. The future may be left to meet its own wants. This being so, Mr. Beverley, the late Chairman of the Corporation, being a good man of business, and having also a reasonable regard to the well-being of his neighbours, saw that the Town, having its 62-inch main, might supply the Suburbs and make a handsome profit on the operation. He showed that by spending Rs. 10,70,000 more on head-works and distributaries, the Town could give the Suburbs four million gallons daily, and, by then levying an equal water-rate in Town and Suburbs, actually lighten the burden which the Town would have to bear if it stood selfishly aloof, while if the Suburbs were willing to pay a 6 per cent. rate on the extra outlay, the Town would actually make 10 per cent. on its money. Those figures were, moreover, based on the theory of a 2 per cent. sinking fund.

This scheme was forwarded to the Suburban Commissioners for consideration, with, at any rate, the knowledge of the Committee of the Corporation (for they decided to "await the reply of the Suburban Municipality" before taking it up themselves); and it was sent to Government by the Chairman for information, though with the intimation that the Commissioners had not yet accepted it. It was in the letter forwarding that proposal, however, that the Chairman raised, for the first time, the question whether the sinking fund contribution might not be lowered to 1 per cent. That suggestion was beyond all doubt made, if not in consequence of, certainly in connection with, the proposed extension to the Suburbs. The Suburban Commissioners at once said they were willing to adopt the proposal of contributing an equal rate, and Government on its side urged the Corporation to send up a definite scheme, promising to take up the sinking fund question in connection therewith. But the Commissioners now, as the hon'ble gentleman informed us in Select Committee, repudiate entirely their late Chairman and his scheme, and desire to charge the Suburbs a full share of the cost of the 62-inch main, which originally they meant to have for themselves alone. They accept the reduction of sinking fund which Government has given in the belief that they would make the larger main for the Town alone as the only really permanent style of conduit. But they turn round and tell us that it is not certain they would adopt this style of main if the Suburbs were not to be supplied. Sir, I say nothing is certain in dealing with the Corporation in a matter of this kind. Its Chairman binds it to nothing; its Committees bind it to nothing; its schemes come and go like clouds upon water. It is little else than a manufactory of speeches and arsenal of delays. We cannot tell yet to what scheme the Corporation may pin its faith. But there is every reason why we should believe that no scheme, such as Government can, in the general interests of the metropolis, approve, would require the levy of more than a 6 per cent. rate in any part of the suburbs to which it is proposed to carry the water.

The hon'ble gentleman tells us that no parallel can be drawn between Calcutta and the Suburbs, because Calcutta is a compact town and the suburbs are scattered over a wide area. No one has yet proposed to carry the water-supply into every jungle and hamlet in the environs of Calcutta. It is proposed simply to extend it to tracts in the immediate vicinity, the circumstances of which are sufficiently like those of the Town to warrant the doing so. It is futile to raise false issues of this kind. Nor are statements of the comparative productiveness of the rates any more to the point. The one question is whether extension is financially warranted per se. What is required is the elaboration of a water-supply scheme in which all the conditions of the problem, as affecting both Town and Suburbs, shall be properly examined and worked out.

I believe the public would wish to see this done by a Committee of experts appointed by Government, or by Government and the Town conjointly. I am assured by competent authority that the questions of economizing and regulating the filtered supply, and of completing the unfiltered supply, may have a most important bearing on the financial aspects of the case, and that much misapprehension exists as to the cost and merits of the dual system. All these points require thorough working out, and, for myself, I feel bound to say that the experience of the past does not warrant the belief that the task can safely be left to the unaided talents of the Town Commissioners. Be that as it may, this section, as it stands in the Bill, only gives the Government the powers it ought to have in respect of ordering extension in general terms; it compels the Town to follow no particular plan, and it secures to the Corporation what is believed to be in any possible case a reasonable return for any outlay it may incur. Government will not, we may be sure, sanction needless or unduly costly works, or allow the Suburbs to rob the Town any more than the Town the Suburbs. At the same time it may be hoped that the Town will see what its true interests are, and not seek in a matter like this to drive a Jew's bargain with the Suburban Municipality. The hon'ble member denies that the Town feels any jealousy towards the Suburbs in respect of allowing it wholesome water. Let us trust that the Corporation will justify this assertion by their action in the future. They ought, in their own interest, to be not only benevolent but beneficent, and even generous if generosity be really called for."

The HON'BLE KRISTODAS PAL in reply said he believed he spoke the sense of the Council when he acknowledged its obligation to the hon'ble member for the elaborate essay on the water-supply of Calcutta, with which he had favoured it, and he dared say that the "chattering pies" to whom he had referred in such flattering terms would also acknowledge their obligation to him. It was not his vocation to defend the Municipal Commissioners of Calcutta here; he must confine himself to the provisions of the Bill before the Council, but as his hon'ble friend had been pleased to call the Commissioners a body of "heterogenous amateurs," because they ventured to talk on such an engineering question as the water-supply extension, he (BABOO KRISTODAS PAL) supposed that the views and opinions advanced by him on the subject did not emanate from an "amateur." The hon'ble member had given the Council a detailed analysis of the different schemes laid before the Commissioners for the extension of the water-supply. He would not trouble the Council with a review of that analysis, but the facts which the hon'ble gentleman had so carefully noted showed that the Commissioners had not been idle, and that as the question involved a very large outlay, the Commissioners were bound in duty and in justice to the rate-payers to give the matter their maturest consideration. He was sure that the question would long ere this have been settled if the extension of the supply to the Suburbs had not been mooted by the Government. The original scheme included the extension of the supply to the Suburbs, but that scheme was abandoned, because the Suburban Municipality acknowledged their inability to bear the cost. The question had, however, been again raised and pressed upon the Commissioners by the Government, and the Commissioners felt themselves bound to consider the proposals of Government, hence the delay of which his hon'ble friend so bitterly complained. He had also spoken of the dual system, and other points in regard to which BABOO KRISTODAS PAL would not be at the time of the Council. The question of the dual system involved important details which the Council was not in a position to discuss, but he did not doubt that the views which had just been advanced would be duly taken into consideration by the "amateurs" to whom his hon'ble friend had so kindly referred. He readily admitted that the sanitary interests of the Town were intimately bound up not only with those of the immediate Suburbs, but also of the villages round about. As his hon'ble friend had himself shown, cholera had been known to extend to the Town step by step from villages in the 24-Pergunnahs, and, in order to protect itself, Calcutta ought certainly to be ahead, but he wished that the treasury of the Calcutta Municipality had been rich enough to meet the many obligations which the extended views of his hon'ble friend would impose upon the Town. There was a phrase used in the last budget minute of the Hon'ble the Finance Minister, of which BABOO KRISTODAS PAL was here reminded; he meant the very significant words "coercive philanthropy." He could not but say that if the Calcutta Municipality were to be burdened with any portion of the cost of the extension of the water-supply to the Suburbs or other environs on the ground that the Town was in a better position to pay, it would be a species of "coercive philanthropy" which the rate-payers of Calcutta could not be expected to appreciate. His friend had told them that it was not intended to extend the supply to all parts of the Suburbs; that only such parts of the Suburbs would be included as might be said to run on all fours with Calcutta. If these parts of the Suburbs did really run on all fours with Calcutta, there would have been no difficulty at all; but what was the fact? Taking the best parts of the Suburbs, he found that the financial results of taxation in Calcutta and the Suburbs were widely different. While a one per cent. rate in Calcutta yielded Rs. 1,30,000 per annum, even in the best parts of the Suburbs which were proposed to be included in the water-supply scheme, a one per cent. rate would yield annually only Rs. 24,000, and while this vast disparity existed between the material condition of Calcutta and that of the Suburbs, BABOO KRISTODAS PAL contended that it was not reasonable to speak of equality between the two places. And, lastly, his hon'ble friend said that properly speaking there was no definite scheme before the Commissioners; if this was really the case, BABOO KRISTODAS PAL did not understand with what consistency it was proposed to fix the water-rate for the Suburbs definitively.

HIS HONOUR the PRESIDENT said that before putting the question he should like to allude very briefly to his hon'ble friend's main argument. There seemed to be a wish to make the Council believe, and HIS HONOUR supposed from what had passed elsewhere, to make the public believe also, that the Government was endeavouring to force on the rate-payers of Calcutta the liability of providing water at the expense of Calcutta to the Suburbs. HIS HONOUR had no hesitation in saying that there was not the shadow of foundation for this inference. He had seen this statement made very frequently by members of the Corporation at their meetings, but they had nothing whatever before them to warrant that assertion. He had spoken of the advantages which the Corporation had received from the Government, and their obligation to look with consideration on the Suburbs, not with a desire to ask for their charity on behalf of the Suburban population; but he had mentioned the assistance given by Government as a reason why the Calcutta Corporation were now in a position to look at the claims of the residents of the Suburbs in a broad and liberal spirit.

So far from the extension of the water-supply throwing any additional burthen on the Town, the evidence, such as it was, was quite the other way.

Although it was quite true, as the hon'ble member on the right (Mr. Mackenzie) had said, that, although the question had been under the consideration of the Corporation for years, no definite and intelligible scheme had been finally determined upon, yet whatever schemes had been drawn up and prepared by the Corporation's own officers had all shown that a supply of water might be given to the Suburbs not only with no loss to the Corporation, but with a considerable reduction in the water-rate levied in the Town.

There was not the shadow of a doubt that the extension of the water-supply to the Suburbs would not throw any increased liability on the Town, and His Honour did not do better than refer to a paper drawn up by the Chairman of the Municipality, which was prepared by him in consultation with the Municipal Engineer, and laid before the Corporation. After considering all the schemes, imperfect as they were, which were before them, the Chairman pointed out the commercial advantage to the Town of extending the works to the Suburbs. He said—

“It is notorious that a large concern can often be worked more economically than a small one; and the remark applies with greater or less force to the Calcutta water-works. Take for example the proposed new main conduit. It has been shown that a 62-inch conduit will in the long run be far more economical than a 42-inch conduit; the larger main will convey 20 million gallons daily, the smaller main 8 million gallons only; yet the cost of the larger is only 17 lakhs against 13 lakhs for the smaller. Even were the smaller main adopted, it is clear that it would be more economical that the whole available supply furnished by it, namely 8 million gallons, should be fully utilized than that the conduit should be used to bring down 4 million gallons only. So with other works and charges for establishment and general superintendence.

“The main question, then, is, would it be profitable to the Town to extend its water-works into the Suburbs on the understanding that the same rates were levied in the Suburbs that are levied in the Town. The Engineer has worked out this problem, and the answer seems to be in the affirmative. Mr. Kimber has worked upon the basis of the scheme set forth in the Committee's first report. That scheme, it will be remembered, provided for an increase of 4,000,000 gallons to the Town's daily supply of filtered water, besides increasing the supply of unfiltered water (for roads and latrines) from about 1,200,000 to 4,000,000 gallons.”

The Chairman then went on to show at considerable length, and he showed conclusively, that it would not only pay, but would yield a very considerable profit to the Municipality on the extra outlay required, and yet the Council was told that there was an intention on the part of the Government to impose an additional burden on the Town for the benefit of the Suburbs. It was quite true that there were no absolutely reliable figures to go upon, as the Municipality had hitherto neglected to determine, as he said before, what schemes they would elect; but all the figures there were, and it might be understood that these figures, drawn up by the Municipal officers, were not likely to take an unduly lenient view of the position of the Suburbs, showed plainly, as far as they showed anything, that there was not the slightest ground for saying that there would be any extra burden thrown on the Town; but, on the contrary, the extension of the works to the Suburbs would bring considerable relief to the Town. They had been told that it was very wrong for the Government to interfere with the Calcutta Corporation in the matter of this water-supply, and that it was the general wish of the inhabitants that such questions should be left in the hands of the Municipality. Whatever might be the opinion of the Municipality themselves, he hardly believed that this was the view of the public at large any way. His Honour thought that if the public had an opportunity of seeing how little had been done in a very long time, they would consider that it was quite time for the Government to interfere and put pressure on the Municipality to get the question settled one way or the other. Objection had been taken to the assertion that the Calcutta Municipality had shown a certain amount of jealousy in assenting to extend to the Suburbs the advantages of a good water-supply which they themselves enjoyed. His Honour might mention as a proof of this that a small scheme had been prepared by the Municipal Engineer for relieving the Municipality of the consumption of a good deal of their filtered water by substituting unfiltered water for certain purposes. The actual cost of that scheme out of pocket was about two and a half lakhs, and the effect of it would be to give the Municipality an unfiltered supply to the extent of four millions of gallons daily, for purposes for which unfiltered water would answer, in the place of 1,200,000 gallons which the Town had at present. This would set free for drinking purposes an equal amount of good filtered water. This scheme had been before the Municipality for over a year certainly, but nothing whatever had been yet done in regard to it. It remained just what it was, and although one would think the matter could have been settled in a fortnight, it had gone lingering and lingering on, and had since been shelved simply because the Commissioners could not agree upon such a simple and obvious question as that. How could it possibly be said that no jealousy was shown towards the Suburbs by the Calcutta Municipality when it was seen that they would rather work their latrines and filth depôts with filtered water than use the unfiltered supply, to make a supply available for the Suburbs of good filtered water. With a small outlay of less than three lakhs, the thing would be done, and the water required for the Suburbs made available; but because they were urged to take up in earnest and with intelligence such a plain matter as this, the Council were told that the Government was endeavouring to overburden the Municipality for the benefit of the Suburbs. A great deal had been said about the extent of the Suburbs, and pictures had been drawn of distant isolated hamlets receiving a supply of water at the expense of the people of Calcutta; but the hon'ble member must be perfectly well aware that the plan proposed was to supply water to certain definite thickly-populated streets and tracts in only those portions of the Suburbs which were near to Calcutta. The whole of the papers showed that the Corporation knew perfectly well what was intended, and that the districts in question had been actually surveyed and valued. The hon'ble member had said that the Government was bound to look upon Calcutta as the metropolis of the Empire, and that that was a sufficient answer to the argument that, as Government had helped the Town, therefore the Town should help the Suburbs; but His Honour in such a matter could not draw such a distinction. He saw no reason why one side of a road was to be favoured because it fell within the metropolis, while the other side was shut out of all advantages. The Suburbs were to all intents and purposes a part of the metropolis, and he could not see why we should treat rate-payers, for instance at the end of Chowringhee, with special consideration, and show none to the houses a few yards off where resided a great number of respectable Pleaders of the High Court, simply because there was an imaginary line drawn at one end of that street. His Honour must say that he thought the whole of this opposition most unreasonable. As far as he was concerned, if this Act was passed, both Calcutta and the Suburbs would be fully consulted, and their interests equally guarded, and he could assure the Council that there was no desire to do anything to the disadvantage of either Calcutta or the Suburbs.

The HON'BLE KRISTODAS PAL'S motion was then put and negatived.

The HON'BLE KRISTODAS PAL then moved that in section 15 the word "suburbs" be substituted for the word "environs," and the words "the Suburban Municipality" for the words "any Suburban Municipality."

The HON'BLE MR. MACKENZIE observed that he saw no necessity for the amendment. The section followed the lines of section 168 of the Act relating to drainage. This was intended to be merely an enabling section, and as there was no definition of "suburbs" in the Act, there would be no real difference between the signification of the words "suburbs" and "environs."

The HON'BLE the ADVOCATE-GENERAL said he thought, after what had fallen from His Honour the PRESIDENT showing that there was no difference between the environs at one end of the Town or the other, legislation on the subject should not be partial in any one direction, but should be as wide as possible, the intention being to enable the Government to extend the provisions of the Act relating to water-supply to any Suburban Municipality the Government might think fit.

The HON'BLE PEARY MOHUN MOOKERJEE pointed out that the word "suburbs" had been defined in Act XXI of 1857, and in several Acts of the Council where the word "suburbs" had been used, reference had been made to the definition in Act XXI of 1857, as distinguishing the Suburbs from the station of Howrah.

His Honour the PRESIDENT remarked that the Government was taking power to extend the water-supply to places which could afford to pay for the extension. It was well-known that the Government had no intention whatever to extend the water-supply to Howrah, but the object of the provision was to enable the Government to have extensions made wherever it was fit and proper to do so. It was quite possible that the outlying stations of Chitpore and Cossipore might sometime hence be in a position to need a water-supply, and the Comm. as themselves might wish to supply those places with water from the pipe which ran alongside. Why should the hands of the Government and the Municipality be tied up so as to prevent such desirable extensions? This was a purely permissive provision, and he thought the Council might rely on the Government doing nothing that might be unfair towards the Calcutta Municipality.

The motion was then put and negatived.

The HON'BLE KRISTODAS PAL moved that the following be substituted for clause section 16 of the Bill:—

Introductions of new section after section 162. "16. After section 162, the following section shall be inserted, namely:—

"162A. The Police Budget may, if the local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor-General in Council, shall so direct, include a charge for pensions payable under the orders and rules of Government to all officers and servants on whose behalf provision for the payment of salary has ordinarily been made in such budget, and who may retire from service after the commencement of this Act; such charge shall be payable by the Commissioners, but shall not exceed three-fourths of the total of such pensions."

He was not in a position to say whether any orders had been received from the Government of India in reply to the representation which had been made on this subject by His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor, but if BABOO KRISTODAS PAL had the option he would move the entire omission of this provision in conformity with what fell from the President on a former occasion. But as the Council was not in a position to accept such a motion, he would move the amendment which stood in his name. The Commissioners were of opinion that a ten per cent. contribution towards pensions would saddle them with a higher proportion of payment than they ought in equity to bear, and they thought it would be fair and equitable if they were to pay only three-fourths of the pensions of such officers as might retire after the passing of the Act. He might mention that a ten per cent. contribution would amount to a payment of about Rs. 17,000 per annum, and he found that the pensions of officers who had retired within the last ten years amounted to about Rs. 16,000 per annum; so that a ten per cent. contribution would practically cover the pensions of officers who had retired during the last ten years, and thus relieve the Government of that charge altogether. As that was not the intention of Government, he submitted his amendment for the consideration of the Council.

The HON'BLE MR. COCKERELL said he thought there was no objection to the amendment which had been proposed. When the services of officers of Government were made over to foreign states or for employment on wards' estates, a contribution of 20 per cent. was made both for furlough and pensions; in the present case contribution on account of furlough was not included, and it was calculated that 13 per cent. on gross salaries would cover pensions; but as the Government paid one-fourth of these salaries and the Municipality three-fourths, a ten per cent. contribution on aggregate salaries would, it was thought, be a fair contribution from the Municipality on account of pensions. As the Commissioners, however, preferred to pay three-fourths of the actual sum paid towards pensions, he thought there would be no objection to accept the proposal. MR. COCKERELL believed the result would be that the Municipality would pay less now and more hereafter. In all pensionary matters the ordinary rule was, and he thought it the equitable one, that pensionary allowances should come from the same source as pay, and that the charge should be divided between the Municipal and Government funds in the same proportion that the pay itself was divided.

The HON'BLE MR. MACKENZIE remarked that he did not see any objection to accept the section now proposed, excepting that it would probably be worse for the Municipality in the long run to pay three-fourths of actual pensions, than to pay a contribution of ten per cent. on aggregate salaries. The contribution of ten per cent. had been fixed on actuarial principles, such as satisfied the Government of India in regulating its liabilities for the pensions of servants lent to foreign states and bodies, and a proportionate deduction had been made on account of the contribution of one-fourth now given by Government towards the charges in the Police budget. The Municipal Commissioners had, however, their own way of calculating and preferred their own figures. He might perhaps give one example to illustrate the effect of adopting the amendment. There were some of the higher paid members of the Police Force who would probably retire in the course of a year or two, and these would draw substantial pensions. Under the provision, as it stood in the Bill, the Municipality would only have had to pay ten per cent. on their salaries up to the date of their retirement and nothing more, but they would now have to pay three-fourths of their pensions so long as these officers lived. He observed in the reports of the Municipal meeting, held with reference to the Bill, that there was much misconception as to the meaning and bearing of the section as it stood. It was for instance entirely erroneous to say that it was proposed that the Municipality "should make payments towards pensions which were already being paid." The section provided for a levy of ten per cent. on salaries, and no charge could therefore be made on account of men drawing not salaries but pensions. He thought the Commissioners were hasty in putting forward their amendment, but it was their own doing entirely. There was another matter as to which he thought it right to enter a sort of caveat. The Government now paid one-fourth of the charges on account of the police, but that payment was made not as a matter of legal liability but as a matter of grace. There was nothing in the Act as it now stood to bind the Government to pay any portion whatever of the charges contained in the police budget, and though it might accept the proposal to pay one-fourth of pensions under the proposed amendment, this was not to be construed into binding it for ever to pay one-fourth of the salaries of police officers. The proposal to pay three-fourths of the aggregate amount of pensions came from the Commissioners, but the Government was perfectly willing to accept the amendment. The wording of the last clause of the section should be slightly modified to meet the change in the first.

The motion was then put, and after verbal changes the amended section was agreed to.

The HON'BLE KRISTODAS PAI moved that the following clause be inserted at the end of section 23 of the Bill:—

"Nothing in this section contained shall be construed to apply to the sale of drugs used by practitioners of indigenous medicine, whether these are recognized by the British Pharmacopœia or not; when such drugs are not sold in a shop or place where medicines recognized by such Pharmacopœia are dispensed upon prescription."

The HON'BLE PEARY MOHUN MOOKERJEE said he thought the objection taken to section 23 was well-founded. The section as it stood would not only put an unnecessary restraint on the sale of native drugs, and the preparation of Hindu medicines, but it would also give rise to this anomaly that, while unregistered shop-keepers would be prevented from selling such simple articles as soda and borax, they would be at liberty to sell such highly poisonous drugs as cobra poison, rasakurpura, a compound of the chloride and the perchloride of mercury, and orpiment, a natural compound of arsenic and sulphur which were not recognized by the British Pharmacopœia. The common ground which several articles occupy both as medicinal drugs and articles of ordinary and domestic consumption has made legislation on the subject of drugs a matter of great difficulty. Even in England, where only one system of medicine prevailed, the difficulty was far greater here where several systems of medicine obtained. BABOO PEARY MOHUN MOOKERJEE feared also that certificated compounders trained in the European system would be ill-qualified to dispense native drugs of the nature and properties of which they knew nothing. On these grounds he would support the amendment.

The HON'BLE AMEER ALI observed that the proceedings in the Coroner's Court showed that poisonous drugs were constantly being sold for medicinal purposes and this caused much mischief. He would suggest the insertion of the word "non-poisonous" before the word "drugs."

The HON'BLE MR. MACKENZIE said the question of the sale of poisons had repeatedly come before the Government, but it had been found very difficult to deal with the subject. There was no doubt that many of these drugs, like many European drugs, were poisonous when used in large quantities. But at present he thought it was much better not to interfere with shops where drugs were sold and dispensed according to the native fashion, and to confine the operation of the Bill to places where medicines were dispensed after the European method. The hope was that gradually people would learn to go to ~~the~~ ^{shops} where they were safe, and in time it might be possible to do away with ~~the~~ ^{the} licensed drug shops of all kinds.

THE HON'BLE THE PRESIDENT remarked that the question of the sale of poisonous drugs had been discussed by the Government of India and all the local Governments, and the conclusion had been generally come to that it would not be safe to legislate on the subject.

The HON'BLE AMEER ALI withdrew his amendment, and the original motion was then ~~passed~~ ^{proceed} to.

On motion of the HON'BLE KRISTODAS PAL, the following section was substituted for section 24 of the Bill—

"24. For the first clause of section 296, the following clause shall be substituted namely:—

"The Commissioners, or any person authorized by them in that behalf, may at all reasonable times enter into and inspect any place kept for the sale of drugs, or in which drugs are sold, and if they have reason to suspect that any drug in the said place is adulterated, or by reason of age or the effect of climate has become inert or unwholesome, or has otherwise become deteriorated in such a manner as to lessen its efficacy, to change its operation or to render it noxious, may remove the same on giving a receipt specifying the nature and quantity of the drug removed and its approximate value; and if it appear to a Justice of the Peace that the said drug removed as aforesaid is adulterated, or has become inert, unwholesome, or deteriorated as aforesaid, he may order the same to be destroyed or to be so disposed of as to him may seem fit. If it shall appear to the said Justice that the drug so removed is not adulterated, or has not become inert, unwholesome, or deteriorated as aforesaid, the person from whose shop or place it has been taken shall be entitled to have it restored to him, and it shall be in the discretion of the said Justice to award him such compensation, not exceeding the actual loss which has been sustained, as such Justice may think proper."

Inspection of drugs.
Compensation if drug be not adulterated, &c.

The HON'BLE KRISTODAS PAL moved that the following section be substituted for section 26 of the Bill:—

"26. After section 310, the following section shall be inserted, namely:—

"310A. The Commissioners shall from time to time grant licenses to persons applying for such, for the sale, at burning grounds, of fuel and other articles used for the cremation of dead bodies, and shall in meeting, other than an ordinary meeting, prescribe a scale of rates for the sale of such articles; and any person not so licensed who shall within three hundred yards of any such burning ground sell or offer for sale any such fuel or other articles, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees."

"The Commissioners may on good and sufficient reason revoke or withdraw any such license they may think fit, and any person to whom any such license is granted, who shall charge for the sale of any such article any higher rate than the rate fixed for such article in such scale, shall, at the discretion of the Commissioners, be liable to have his license cancelled, and shall also be liable to a fine not exceeding ten rupees."

"The Commissioners shall not be bound to grant a fresh license to any person whose license may have been revoked, withdrawn, or cancelled, under the provisions of this section."

He said the object of this amended section was to encourage competition, and to enable the Commissioners to prescribe a fixed scale of rates for the sale of fuel and other articles used for the cremation of dead bodies. If the Commissioners had power to regulate the rates, all that was wanted would be attained. He need not repeat the circumstances which led to the introduction of this section in the Bill. There had been great scandals in connection with the sale of fuel and other articles at the burning ghats and it was therefore deemed necessary to license vendors and to regulate their charges. But as a fixed scale of rates for the sale of fuel had not the sanction of law, the proposed section would give that sanction.

The motion was agreed to.

On the motion of the HON'BLE KRISTODAS PAL the Bill was then passed.

The Council was adjourned sine die.

CULTIVATION OF THE SURGOOJA PLANT IN THE NUDDEA DISTRICT.

No. 12MA, dated Alipore, the 28th March 1881.

From—F. B. PEACOCK, Esq., Officiating Commissioner of the Presidency Division,
 To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Financial Dept.

REFERRING to your letter No. 241, dated 1st December, with enclosure, I have the honour to submit, for the information of His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor, the following report on the cultivation of surgooja plant in the district of Nuddea.

2. This plant is cultivated in the sub-divisions of Chooadanga, Jhenidah, and Meherpore, and bears different names in the different sub-divisions. In Meherpore the Hindoos call it surgooja and the Mahomedans ganja. In Jhenidah it is known as the guji or surguji, while sukargoojari is the name given to it in Chooadanga, which is apparently a corruption of the word surgooja. Mahomedans form the chief element of the population of this district, and as they have a prejudice to pronounce the word sukar (swine), they omit the first two syllables and call the plant goojari.

3. This plant is not an indigenous product of the Nuddea or any adjacent district, but is reported to have been brought originally from Chota Nagpore, where it is said to be in extensive cultivation. The Sub-Divisional Officer of Chooadanga reports that the cultivation of surgooja was introduced into the Nuddea district about 30 years ago by one Siboo Boona of Barribonha in thana Gangani of the Meherpore sub-division, and has gradually extended until, in the sub-division of Chooadanga alone, it is estimated to cover an area of 4,500 bighas. The Sub-Divisional Officer of Jhenidah, a sub-division of Jessore, writes to say that the plant has been known in his sub-division for many years.

4. The plant is generally grown as a second crop following rice, tolerably high lands being preferable for its cultivation. The seed is sown in October, three seers to a bigha, and the plant flowers in December. In January the seed-pods form and mature, and by the end of the month, or early in February, the plant is cut and the seeds gathered. The method of cultivation is comparatively simple. Two ploughings only are given before the seed is sown, and no weeding is needed.

5. The cost of cultivation amounts to about Rs. 2 per bigha :—

					Rs.	A.	P.
Ploughing and sowing	1	5	0
Cutting and thrashing	0	9	0

The outturn from a bigha of land is from 2 to 3 maunds of seed, or on the average $2\frac{1}{2}$ maunds. The value of the seed is Rs. 4 per maund. Thus an average crop gives a profit to the ryot of about Rs. 8 per bigha, from which, however, has to be deducted half the rent of the land, the crop being a second crop.

6. The Small Cause Court Judge of Chooadanga in his report to His Honour, which forms the enclosure of your letter under reference, stated that a maund of surgooja seed yielded about $14\frac{1}{2}$ seers of oil. This proportion is considered by the Sub-Divisional Officers of Jhenidah and Chooadanga as rather high. The former puts it at 10 seers, and the latter at 13 seers 2 chittacks. One maund of mustard yields about 14 seers 1 chittack of oil, but this difference is compensated by the fact that the surgooja is a more certain and easily grown crop, and its yield for the same area larger.

7. The surgooja seed is rarely used unmixed in the preparation of oil, but generally in combination with mustard and linsed, in the proportion of one to four. The oil expressed from the surgooja is thicker and less palatable, and is used chiefly to adulterate lamp oil. Some of the poorer classes use the adulterated oil in the preparation of curries, but the flavour is not liked, and all who can afford it use pure mustard oil, keeping the mixed oil for lighting purposes only.

8. The Sub-Divisional Officer of Jhenidah reports—"It appears to me the plant belongs to the natural order Linacraæ. Indeed, I am not sure that the plant is not the Linum Frigynum to be met with in some gardens grown as a showy annual."

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the barograph and thermograph.
The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The direction of the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

The results of observations at the Alipore Observatory are not rigorously comparable with the registers of past years (at the Park Street Observatory). The barometer is about 3 feet higher at Alipore, and, other things being equal, reads therefore .003 lower. The diurnal range of temperature is also greater at Alipore, and the mean temperature apparently about 2.9 lower; and finally, the thermometer, which has furnished the record of temperature at the Surveyor-General's Office during the last 20 years and upwards, is found to read 0.6 higher than the Kew standard thermometer, which is the standard of reference at the present Observatory.

The 12th April 1881.

H. F. BLANFORD,
Meteorological Reporter to the Govt. of India.

Report of Fluctuation of Traffic on the Eastern Bengal Railway for the four weeks ending 26th February 1881.

Report on Goods Traffic for the four weeks ending 26th February 1881.

EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY COMPANY, TRAFFIC SUPERINTENDENT'S OFFICE, SEALDAH TERMINUS.

Dated Calcutta, the 17th March 1881.

From—WILLIAM INNES, Esq., Traffic Superintendent,

To—The Agent, Eastern Bengal Railway, Sealdah.

In submitting the attached report of traffic for four weeks ending the 26th February last, I beg to point out that the total weight of goods carried over this Railway during that period was 7,33,639 maunds, showing an increase of 1,23,423 maunds, as compared with the corresponding period last year.

From the report, it will be seen that the following commodities have chiefly contributed to this increase, viz. cotton, gunny, jute, seeds, sugar, Indian tea, turmeric, and miscellaneous goods. On the other hand, there has been a decrease in rice, hides, railway material, salt, tobacco, and European twist.

Increases.

Cotton in bundles and bales	Mds.	2,639
This increase is due to the market value still continuing high.
Gunny	"	12,973
As mentioned in the last report, there is still a large demand for gunnies.
Jute in drums and bales	"	11,190
This increase is due to a brisk demand in the market and firm prices at home.
Seeds	"	20,388
The market still continues firm, and good prices are being realized.
Sugar	"	5,424
This increase is due to a steady market with fair prices being given for good quality.
Indian tea	"	1,579
This small increase is no doubt due to the facility afforded for transit by the present Cachar service.
Turmeric	"	1,062
This is no doubt due to a slight rise in the market.
Miscellaneous goods	"	99,978
This large increase is still due to the facilities afforded for the general transmission of goods over the line.

Decreases.

Grain, including rice	Mds.	15,700
This decrease is due to a falling market which is at present over-stocked.
Hides	"	1,579
This decrease is also due to a dull market with but few demands for export.
Railway material, foreign	"	5,046
The material for the Kawnra Tramway having now gone forward accounts for this decrease.
Salt	"	4,863
This decrease is due to a dull market.
Tobacco	"	3,889
There has been no demand for export, hence decrease.
European twist	"	942
There has been little done in this commodity during the period for which this report has been submitted, hence the falling off.

19. Tout acte commis avec intention de mettre en danger la vie de personnes se trouvant dans un train de chemin de fer.

20. Atteinte à la propriété, avec mauvaise intention, pour autant que le fait est punissable par les lois.

L'extradition aura également lieu pour complicité à un des crimes ci-dessus mentionnés, que la complicité se soit produite avant ou après la perpétration, pourvu que la complicité soit punissable par les lois des deux Parties Contractantes.

ARTICLE III.

L'extradition ne sera pas ordonnée si l'individu poursuivi par le Gouvernement du Royaume-Uni ou par le Gouvernement du Grand-Duché de Luxemburg, a déjà été dans le Grand-Duché ou dans le Royaume-Uni l'objet d'une instruction ou d'une ordonnance de non-lieu pour le crime pour lequel l'extradition est demandée, ou s'il est encore en état de prévention, ou qu'il ait déjà été puni pour ce fait.

Si l'individu poursuivi par le Gouvernement du Royaume-Uni ou par le Gouvernement du Grand-Duché de Luxemburg est en état de prévention dans le Grand-Duché ou dans le Royaume-Uni pour un autre crime, son extradition sera différée jusqu'à la conclusion du procès et l'exécution complète de la peine lui infligée.

ARTICLE IV.

L'extradition n'aura pas lieu si postérieurement à la perpétration du crime, aux poursuites ou à la condamnation, la prescription de l'action ou de la peine est acquise d'après les lois du pays où le prévenu s'est réfugié.

ARTICLE V.

Aucun criminel fugitif ne sera extradé, si le délit pour lequel l'extradition est demandée, est considéré comme un délit politique, ou si l'individu prouve que la demande d'extradition a été faite en réalité dans le but de la poursuivre ou de le punir pour un délit d'un caractère politique.

ARTICLE VI.

L'individu qui aura été livré ne pourra, dans le pays auquel l'extradition a été accordée, être tenu en état d'arrestation ou poursuivi pour aucune infraction ou fait autre que ceux ayant motivé l'extradition, jusqu'à ce qu'il ait été rendu ou qu'il he has been restored or has had the opportunity of returning to the country from whence he was surrendered.

The period of one month shall be considered as the limit of the period during which the prisoner may, with the view of securing the benefits of this Article, return to the country from whence he was surrendered.

This stipulation does not apply to crimes committed after the extradition.

ARTICLE VII.

The requisition for extradition must always be made by the way of diplomacy, and to wit, in the Grand Duchy of Luxemburg, by the British Minister in Luxemburg, and in the United Kingdom to the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs by the Foreign Minister in Great Britain, who, for the purposes of this Treaty, is recognized by Her Majesty as a Diplomatic Representative of the Grand Duchy of Luxemburg.

The requisition for the extradition of an accused person must be accompanied by a warrant of arrest issued by the competent authority of the State requiring the extradition, and by such evidence as, according to the laws of the place where the accused is found, would justify his arrest if the crime had been committed there.

If the requisition relates to a person already convicted, it must be accompanied by the sentence of condemnation passed against the convicted person by the competent Court of the State that makes the requisition for extradition.

A requisition for extradition cannot be founded on sentences passed in contumaciam.

ARTICLE VIII.

If the requisition for extradition be in accordance with the foregoing stipulations, the competent authorities of the State applied to shall proceed to the arrest of the fugitive.

The prisoner is then to be brought before a competent Magistrate, who is to examine him and to conduct the preliminary investigation of the case, according to the laws of the country in which he is found.

ARTICLE IX.

The extradition shall not take place before the expiration of fifteen days from the date of the fugitive criminal's committal to prison to await his surrender, and then only if the evidence produced in due time be found sufficient according to the laws of the State applied to.

ARTICLE X.

A fugitive criminal may, however, be apprehended under a warrant issued by any Police Magistrate, Justice of the Peace or other competent authority in either country, on such information or complaint, and such evidence, or after such proceedings as would, in the opinion of the person issuing the warrant, justify the issue of a warrant, if the crime had been committed or the prisoner convicted, in that part of the dominions of the two Contracting Parties in which he exercises jurisdiction: Provided however that, in the United Kingdom, the accused shall, in such cases, be sent as speedily as possible before a Police Magistrate in London. He shall be discharged, as well in the United Kingdom as in the Grand Duchy of Luxemburg, if within fourteen days a requisition shall not have been made for his surrender by the Diplomatic Agent of his country.

ait eu l'occasion de retourner au pays qui l'a extradé.

Le délai d'un mois sera considéré comme la limite du temps pendant lequel le prisonnier, afin de s'assurer les bienfaits de cet Article, peut retourner au pays dont il a été extradé.

Cette stipulation n'est pas applicable aux crimes commis après l'extradition.

ARTICLE VII.

L'extradition sera toujours demandée par la voie diplomatique, savoir: dans le Grand-Duché de Luxemburg, par l'Envoyé Britannique, et dans le Royaume-Uni au Secrétaire d'Etat pour les Affaires Etrangères, par le Ministre Etranger dans la Grande-Bretagne lequel sera à cette fin, reconnu par Sa Majesté la Reine comme le Représentant Diplomatique du Grand-Duché de Luxemburg.

La demande d'extradition d'un prévenu devra, être accompagnée d'un mandat d'arrêt décerné par l'autorité compétente du pays requérant et des preuves qui, d'après les lois de l'endroit où le prévenu a été trouvé justifieraient son arrestation, si l'acte punissable y avait été commis.

Si la demande d'extradition concerne une personne déjà condamnée, on doit produire l'arrêt de condamnation qui a été rendu par le Tribunal compétent de l'Etat requérant.

La demande d'extradition ne peut se baser sur des arrêts qui ont été rendus par contumace.

ARTICLE VIII.

Si la demande d'extradition est en accord avec les stipulations précédentes, les autorités compétentes de l'Etat auquel la demande d'extradition a été faite, procéderont à l'arrestation du fugitif.

Le prisonnier sera ensuite amené devant un magistrat compétent, qui devra l'examiner et conduire les investigations préliminaires d'après les lois du pays où il est trouvé.

ARTICLE IX.

L'extradition n'aura pas lieu avant l'expiration de quinze jours, à dater de l'arrestation du criminel fugitif attendant son extradition, et elle n'aura lieu que sur la production en temps utile de pièces trouvées suffisantes d'après les lois de l'Etat requis.

ARTICLE X.

Un malfaiteur fugitif peut néanmoins être arrêté dans les deux pays en vertu d'un mandat d'arrêt décerné par un magistrat ou fonctionnaire de police, par un Juge de Paix ou telle autre autorité compétente, sur une dénonciation ou plainte, et sur les preuves, ou d'après une procédure établissant que, dans l'opinion du fonctionnaire qui décerne le mandat d'arrêt, cette mesure serait justifiée, si le crime avait été commis ou si le prisonnier avait été condamné dans la partie des territoires des deux Parties Contractantes où le fonctionnaire exerce la juridiction. Il est stipulé toutefois que, dans le Royaume-Uni, le prévenu devra, en pareil cas, être aussi promptement que possible conduit devant un magistrat de police à Londres. Il devra être mis en liberté dans le Royaume-Uni et dans le Grand-Duché de Luxemburg si, dans l'espace de quatorze jours, la demande d'extradition n'est pas faite par l'Agent Diplomatique de son pays.

ARTICLE XI.

If, in any criminal matter, pending in any Court or Tribunal of one of the two countries, it is thought desirable to take the evidence of any witness in the other, such evidence may be taken by the judicial authorities in accordance with the laws in force on this subject in the country where the witness may be.

ARTICLE XII.

All articles seized which were in the possession of the person to be surrendered at the time of his apprehension, shall, if the competent authority of the State applied to for the extradition has ordered the delivery thereof, be given up when the extradition takes place; and the said delivery shall extend not merely to the stolen articles, but to everything that may serve as a proof of the crime.

ARTICLE XIII.

The High Contracting Parties renounce any claim for the reimbursement of the expenses incurred by them in the arrest and maintenance of the person to be surrendered, and his conveyance till placed on board ship, as well as for the reimbursement of the expenses incurred in taking the evidence of any witness in consequence of Article XI, and in giving up and returning seized articles. They reciprocally agree to bear such expenses themselves.

ARTICLE XIV.

The stipulations of the present Treaty shall be applicable to the Colonies and foreign possessions of Her Britannic Majesty.

The requisition for the surrender of a fugitive criminal who has taken refuge in any of such Colonies or foreign possessions shall be made to the Governor or to the supreme authority of such Colony or possession through the Luxemburg Consul, or, in case there should be no Luxemburg Consul, through the Consular Agent of another State charged for the occasion with Luxemburg interests in the Colony or possession in question, and recognized by such Governor or supreme authority as such.

The Governor or supreme authority abovementioned shall decide with regard to such requisitions as nearly as possible in accordance with the provisions of the present Treaty. He will, however, be at liberty either to consent to the extradition or report the case to his Government.

Her Britannic Majesty shall, however, be at liberty to make special arrangements in the British Colonies and foreign possessions for the surrender of such individuals as shall have committed in the Grand Duchy of Luxemburg any of the crimes hereinafore mentioned, who may take refuge within such Colonies and foreign possessions, on the basis, as nearly as they may be, of the provisions of the present Treaty.

The requisition for the surrender of a fugitive criminal from any Colony or foreign possession of Her Britannic Majesty shall be governed by the rules laid down in the preceding Articles of the present Treaty.

ARTICLE XV.

FINANCE,

No. 1.

INDIA OFFICE,

London, 7th April 1881.

To His Excellency the Most Honourable the Governor-General of India in Council.

MY LORD MARQUIS,—

PARA. 1.—In my despatch of the 23rd of September 1880, No. 317, I informed Your Excellency that Her Majesty's Government had determined that a substantial contribution to the expenses incurred in the Afghan war should be made by the Imperial Treasury.

I have now to inform your Government that, on the 16th of March, the Chancellor of the Exchequer announced to the House of Commons that it had been determined to remit the repayment by the Indian Government of the loan of 2,000,000*l.* advanced in 1879 and to make a further grant of 3,000,000*l.*, in six annual instalments, the first being made in the current year 1880-81.

3. The Bill necessary to legalise the remission of the Advance Loan was not passed by the 31st of March; but I have not thought it necessary, in the revision of the Estimates of the Home Treasury, to include in the expenditure of 1880-81 the repayment of the sum of 290,000*l.* which was due this year.

4. The proposals of Her Majesty's Government have been accepted by the House of Commons, after it had been explained that the whole of the five millions sterling will be devoted to the repayment of debt in England. Of this amount, two millions will be absorbed in cancelling the Advance Loan, and the instalment or instalments received by the 1st of November next will be used to repay the bonds falling due on that date.

5. Inasmuch as the whole of the charges of the war have been, or will be, brought to account as Expenditure, it is necessary to bring to account as revenue the amount of the contribution by Her Majesty's Government. Strictly, it appears to me that the several sums should be credited as revenue from time to time when received; but, considering the intention of Her Majesty's Government, in making the grant, to relieve the finances of India of the heavy burden now falling on them, it appears to me that the spirit of the proposal will be more fully met if the whole sum is now brought to account as revenue, and the portion unpaid is entered under Debt as an amount recoverable from Her Majesty's Government in future years, in aid of the expense of the Afghan war. The subsequent receipts will then be credited under the head of Debt, without interfering with the surplus or deficit of the year.

6. Although it is impossible at present to foresee the exact amount of war expenditure which will be incurred in the year 1881-82, yet it appears to me that, for the purpose of the Estimates, the best plan will be to bring to account as revenue in 1881-82 a sum equal to the estimated expenditure on war in that year, namely, 2,000,000*l.*, as stated in your telegram of the 8th of March. In that case, by crediting as revenue in the estimates of 1880-81 a sum of 3,000,000*l.*, the whole grant from Her Majesty's Government will have been set off against the expenditure of the operations now about to be brought to a close, in the manner best calculated to eliminate from the Accounts of 1881-82 and subsequent years all disturbance arising from that expenditure.

7. *With this view, I addressed to your Excellency on the 16th of March the following telegram :—"Parliament accepts proposed war contribution, namely, remitting advance loan, and payment of 3,000,000*l.* in six annual instalments, all devoted to reduction of debt in England. You may credit revenue with 5,000,000*l.* in 1880-81 and 1881-82 in proportions most convenient. To avoid complicating future accounts with war transactions, I suggest in 1881-82 amount equal to estimated war expenditure of that year, say two millions, and the difference, say three millions, in 1880-81. After 1881-82 all receipts will be under Debt."

*NOTE.—The manner in which it was ultimately decided to distribute the sum of 5,000,000*l.* between the years 1880-81 and 1881-82 is explained in paragraphs 19 and 70-71 of the Financial Statement for the current year.

I have, &c.,

MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

No 279.—His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor-General in Council is pleased to direct the publication of the following despatch from the Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State for India :—

MILITARY,
No. 112.

INDIA OFFICE,
London, 14th April 1881.

To His Excellency the Most Honourable the Governor-General of India in Council.

MY LORD MARQUIS,

PARA. 1.—I have given very careful consideration to the proposals for a revised scale of pensions for the Indian Medical Service contained in your financial letter of the 12th October 1880, No. 335, and on a full review of all the circumstances, I have determined to sanction, with some slight exceptions, the proposals you have made.

2. I am unable, however, to allow longer periods of leave of absence to count as service for pension than those at present admitted; and I do not consider it would be expedient to give higher rates of pensions to medical officers of 20 and 26 years' service who retire on account of wounds or ill-health contracted in the service, than are granted to officers who, after a similar period of service, retire in ordinary course.

3. It has not been usual in any branch of the service to give higher pensions to officers entitled to pension merely because they retired on account of wounds or ill-health, and I see objections to altering the system in the manner proposed. Officers who break down in the service before they are entitled to pension receive the half pay of their relative rank, and officers so severely wounded as to entail the loss of a limb receive the wound pension of their relative rank in addition to pay or pension, and this appears to me to be sufficient.

4. I also consider that the third scale of pension may properly be given after 25 years' service instead of after 26 years.

5. In accordance with these reviews, therefore, the following will be the scale of pensions for the Indian Medical Service, with effect from the 1st January 1881 :—

After 17 years' service, including 1½ years' leave and furlough, 292l.

After 20 years' service, including two years' leave and furlough, 365l.

After 25 years' service, including three years' leave and furlough, 500l.

After 30 years' service, including four years' leave and furlough, 700l.

6. Those officers who serve five years as Surgeon-General or Deputy Surgeon-General will receive on retirement extra pensions of 350*l.* and 250*l.* a year respectively, six months' leave on medical certificate, or four months on private affairs being allowed to count as part of this service of five years. A good service pension granted to a medical officer will lapse on his obtaining the additional pension allowed to a Deputy Surgeon-General or Surgeon-General.

7. Medical officers not entitled to pension, but who, at the expiration of two years' leave of absence on medical certificate, are unfit to return to duty, will be placed on temporary or permanent half pay, after examination by the Medical Board at the India Office. The half pay granted in such a case will be the British rate of half pay of the relative rank held by the officer. The period passed on half pay will in no case be reckoned as service in calculating claims for promotion or to pension on retirement.

8. With the liberal rates of pension now introduced, I do not consider that it will be necessary to give any higher rate than that to which they may be entitled, to medical officers below the rank of Deputy Surgeon-General, who may be retired on attaining the age of 55 years, under the provisions of Article 8 of the Royal Warrant of the 16th November 1880. An officer now in the service, who is so retired, may, if he pleases, elect to receive pension under the previous Regulations.

9. You will have the goodness to publish this despatch in the General Orders of your Government.

I have, &c.,

4. As regards your capital account, we observe that there were received during the year to credit of the various works—

	Rs.	A.	P.
From the revenue accounts of Parts I, II, III, IV and VI as contributions for new works	4,21,581	2	2
From the revenue accounts of Parts I and IV as contributions for renewals	85,555	2	4
Total	5,07,136	4	6
The expenditure on works amounted during the year to	6,19,889	1	9
The unspent balance at the close of the year on account of works under construction was	2,38,550	4	11
The unspent balance on account of completed works on the same date was	36,729	10	0
Total	2,75,279	14	11
The overdrawals on account of completed works were	1,67,835	11	6
Ditto ditto works under construction	82,681	13	10
Ditto ditto Stock	19,455	2	11
Total	2,69,972	12	3

The cost of the works on account of which these overdrawals have occurred is for the most part, as sanctioned by Government, to be met either from loans which have not yet been raised, or from the sale-proceeds of surplus land which it has not been considered advisable for the present to sell. In this latter case a loan of Rs. 1,60,000 has, with the sanction of Government, been taken from Part IV to enable the work to be carried on. This loan will be repaid when the land is sold. The overdrawal on account of stock calls for no remark, and the few remaining items have been reported to Government, and sanction has been asked to meet these excesses from the savings on completed works.

5. During the year additions have been made to your Block account to the extent of Rs. 37,85,026-5-5. On the other hand your Block account has been reduced by Rs. 32,725-0-5, the difference in the value of six worn out steam-cranes which have been converted into hand-cranes, and Rs. 8,000 the value of the River Police Hulk which had become worn out and been sold. On the 31st March last the value of your block as shown in the accounts was Rs. 1,13,54,086-1-1. Besides this amount, Rs. 6,97,407-8-2 had been expended on works under construction at the close of 1880-81, were still under construction.

6. The amount by which the loan from Government has been reduced during the year is Rs. 86,784-13, and the balance to be repaid was on the 31st March 1881 Rs. 52,53,563-14, besides the fixed loan of Rs. 17,65,000 which is not repayable.

7. The amount shown in your capital account as contributed from Revenue for new works and renewals up to the 31st March 1881 is Rs. 39,96,290-4-7. This sum is exclusive of Rs. 40,513 contributed from the revenue of Part IV towards the cost of the tug steamer, the value of which is shown in the Hooghly Bridge block, but is inclusive of the sum of Rs. 6,320-9-6 contributed from the revenue of the bridge. The balance on the 31st March 1881 in your capital account is Rs. 39,33,212-13-8, leaving a difference of Rs. 63,077-6-11 which is accounted for as follows:—

	Rs.	A.	P.
Value of a Hopper barge which was sunk. This amount was adjusted in the accounts of 1879-80	30,352	6	6
Difference in value of six worn out steam-cranes converted into hand-cranes (written off in the accounts of 1880-81)	32,725	0	5
Total	63,077	6	11

Contribution from Revenue for stock	60,000	0	0
Total	1,23,36,255	14	10
The value of your block on the 31st March 1881 is	1,13,54,086	1	1
Ditto of works under construction on the same date	6,97,107	8	2
Ditto of Stock ditto ditto	79,155	2	11
Total	1,21,30,948	12	2
Add the amount deducted from the block of the Port on account of depreciation	2,00,000	0	0
	1,23,30,948	12	2

The difference between these amounts is Rs. 5,307-2-8 and represents the net amount still unexpended as follows:—

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[First Publication.]

THE following Act, passed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council, received the assent of His Honor on the 9th April 1881, and having received the assent of His Excellency the Governor General on the 10th May 1881, is hereby promulgated for general information:—

ACT No. III OF 1881.

An Act to amend "The Court of Wards' Act, 1879."

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend "The Court of Wards Act, 1879": It is enacted as follows:—

1. This Act shall be read and taken as part of "The Court of Wards Act, 1879," and it shall come into force upon the date on which it may be published in the Calcutta Gazette with the assent of the Governor-General.

2. In section 17 of Act XI of 1859, the words from the beginning of the section down to the words "eighteen years. And" are hereby repealed.

3. For sections 16 and 17 of Bengal Act IX of 1879, the following sections shall be substituted:—

"16. The Court may, from time to time, order such establishments to be entertained and expenses to be incurred as it shall consider requisite for the care and management of the persons and properties under its charge, for superintendence, for the audit of accounts, and generally for all the purposes of this Act, and may order that such expenses, inclusive of all salaries, gratuities, and payments on account of the leave allowances of such establishments, be charged against any one or more properties for the purposes of which such establishments are, or have been, entertained, or such expenses have been incurred.

"17. The Court may, in respect of such of the establishments and expenses referred to in the last preceding section, as are in the judgment of the Court of a general nature, direct that they shall be met by a general contribution from the properties in charge of the Court, to be levied in such manner and in such proportion as the Court may from time to time direct.

It shall be, and shall be deemed always to have been, lawful to charge against any fund to which such general contribution may from time to time be, or have been, credited, any salaries, gratuities, leave allowances, or pensions of officers and servants which the Lieutenant-Governor may order, or has already ordered, to be so charged."

4. For section 23 of the same Act, the following sections shall be substituted, namely:—

"23. Clause I.—Except as hereinafter provided by section 23A, every estate, and, subject to the provisions of section 14 of Act XI of 1859, every share or part of an estate for which a separate account has been opened under section 10 or section 11 of the said Act, or under section 70 of Bengal Act VII of 1876, shall be exempt from sale for arrears of Government revenue which have accrued whilst such estate, share, or part has been under the charge of the Court.

"Provided that all such arrears of revenue shall be the first charge upon the sale proceeds of any estate, share, or part which may be sold for any other cause than for such arrears of revenue.

" Clause 2.—If at the time when such estate,

Recovery of arrears of revenue due at time when estate ceases to be under charge of Court.

share, or part ceases to be under the charge of the Court of Wards, an arrear of revenue is due on account thereof, the Collector may attach such estate, share, or part and collect the rent, cesses and other demands due, and all arrears thereof, managing such estate, share, or part either directly or through a Manager, or by farming it for a period not exceeding five years, as he may think fit.

" Provided that when such estate, share, or part has been attached under the provisions of this clause, the proceeds shall be paid to the Collector, and the Collector after deducting the claims of Government for revenue and other public demands, together with any interest which has accrued upon such public demands other than Government revenue, and the charges of management, due up to the date of making such deduction, shall release such estate, share, or part from attachment, and pay any balance of the proceeds still remaining in his hands to the proprietor of such estate, share, or part, or to his duly constituted agent, and shall furnish such proprietor or agent with an account of the receipts and expenditure extending over the time when such estate, share, or part was under attachment.

" 23A. Notwithstanding anything in clause 5, section 8, Regulation I of 1793, or in section 23 of this Act contained, any estate, share, or part of an estate on which an arrear of revenue has accrued while under the charge of the Court, may at any time be sold under the provisions of the law for the time being in force for the recovery of arrears of Government revenue, if the Court has certified in writing that the interests of the ward require that such estate, share, or part be so sold, and has stated in such writing the reasons upon which it has arrived at such conclusion."

Conditions under which estate may be sold for arrear of revenue accrued under Court.

ARCHÆOLOGICAL REMAINS AT BUDDHA GYA.

No. 249G, dated Bankipore, the 11th May 1881.

From—F. M. HALLIDAY, Esq., Commissioner of the Patna Division,
To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Revenue Department.

I HAVE the honour to report that the only discoveries of archaeological remains during the year 1880-81 were made in Gya in connection with the excavations and repairs to the Temple at Buddha Gya, an account of which is given in the annexed letter, No. 39 of the 4th instant, from Mr. Beglar, the Executive Engineer, Buddha Gya Works.

2. No new discoveries have been made in the other districts of this Division.

No. 39, dated Buddha Gya, the 4th May 1881.

From—The Executive Engineer, Buddha Gya Works,
To—The Magistrate of Gya.

IN reply to your No. 573 of 28th ultimo, I have the honor to inform you that I am aware of no new archaeological discoveries anywhere within the Gya district during the year 1880-81, except the discoveries at this place in the course of the repairs.

Of these, it is impossible in the course of a letter or an ordinary report to give more than the barest outline. I can only briefly indicate what must form the subject of a volume in contemplation.

Three sides of asoka railing which surrounded the tree, viz. on the south, west, and north, were found with the plinth partly intact and several pillars and fragments in situ. Three entrances to the enclosure were also discovered.

Five successive layers of floors were discovered, indicating five well marked and distinct epochs in the history of the temple.

Two of the corner topes mentioned by Hwo Thsang as at the corners of the enclosure which existed during his visit have been discovered.

Two of the great and famous temples mentioned by Hwen Tshang on the north and west sides have been discovered, viz. the temple of the uplifted eyes and the temple with brass figure of Buddha.

Two of the temples of Avalakiteswara, mentioned by Hwen Tshang as marking the limits north and south on the east of Vajrasan, have also been found, as also one of the stupas of Mara and the stupa of Brahma, and the one of the happy omens.

The Suffron stupa has also been discovered. The original throne of Asoka's period, together with the remains of his temple, have also been found, as also Buddha's promenade with its "Jewelled canopy."

The original position of the first Bodhi tree has also been discovered, as also the successive altered positions of succeeding trees, till it was finally hoisted up and perched on a height of 35 feet above its original site.

The successive additions and alterations to the temple have been shown in a most lucid and exceedingly interesting manner by the successive exhumations of the portions added to it at each epoch of the history of the temple.

Besides these easily identifiable important features, many others of lesser importance, and a still greater number of unidentifiable monuments (temples and topes), have been exhumed, too numerous to be even enumerated, while to these must be added a body of sculptures in various stages of preservation or dilapidation numbering several thousand pieces, and a large number of inscriptions, some of great interest; inscribed clay seals and medallions, and other deposits by pious pilgrims, which were also discovered.

The discoveries continue each month adding to the numbers of important identifications of interesting monuments, of sculptures, and of inscriptions.

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the barograph and thermograph.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The direction of the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

METEOROLOGICAL OFFICE, INDIA,
The 23rd May 1881.

JOHN ELIOT.
for Meteorological Reporter to the Govt. of India.

Report on the Fluctuations in Traffic on the Northern Bengal State Railway for the month of April 1881.

GENERAL REMARKS.

The total weight of traffic carried during the month stands at 3,13,305, against 2,61,668 maunds for the same month of last year, being an increase of nearly 17 per cent. which, considering how very dull trade is generally, and in the main staple of traffic carried over this line in particular, is a result that can only be looked on as satisfactory.

INCREASES.

Alc ... Mds. 2,940
The short despatches of Commissariat beer early in the year account for this increase.
Food-grain ... Mds. 8,036
There has been a brisk demand for the common descriptions of rice during the month for shipment. The gross weights lifted being 1,30,889, against 1,22,853 maunds for the corresponding month of last year.
Gunny-bags ... Mds. 1,275
Hand-made gunnies continued to be manufactured and sent forward in large quantities.
From 1st January 1881 to 30th April 1881, 16,771 maunds have been carried in excess of the weight lifted for the same period of 1880.
Jute ... Mds. 10,695
This traffic is steadily keeping up, and will no doubt continue to do so until the Eastern Bengal Railway increased rate comes into force (1st June next) and forces it from the Rail to the River.
Piece-goods ... Mds. 4,075
The stocks in the districts have, for some months past, been allowed to run low, and the traffic just now is stimulated by a desire to replenish before the rains set in, when carting such unwieldy packages as baled piece-goods into the district will become a matter of some difficulty.
Sugar ... Mds. 1,579
Advantage is no doubt being taken of the present low price of this article to stock the local markets. The result will probably be a falling off later on in the season.
All other goods ... Mds. 35,195
The total weight lifted under this head during the month stands at 71,724 maunds, nearly double that carried for the corresponding month last year.
Salt ... Mds. 7,000
The results anticipated in last month's report regarding this traffic are being realized and will, most likely, continue to be, until water communication is open.

DECREASES.

Railway material ... Mds. 14,028
The traffic carried under this head is of course abnormal. The reasons for the falling off have been explained in previous reports.
Tea ... Mds. 2,771
Want of rain has, for some time past, almost stopped manufacture in the Darjeeling district, and from enquiries made it appears that the quantity of tea made up to date is less than half last year's output for the same period.
Tobacco ... Mds. 2,365
The early crop of the Rungpore district was almost totally destroyed by the violent hail-storm of the 4th March last.

The 13th May 1881.—The following additions and amendments to the rules for the grant of leases for tea cultivation in the districts of Julpigoree and Darjeeling, which were published at page 1116 of the Calcutta Gazette of the 16th October 1878 and two subsequent issues, having been approved by the Lieutenant-Governor, are notified for general information :—

(1.) Rule 11A.—The Deputy Commissioner shall at once send a copy of any order passed under rule 11 to the Conservator of Forests, in order that an estimate may be made by the Forest Department of the value of any forest trees standing on the land. The Conservator of Forests will depute an officer to examine the land, and make a detailed report suggesting the average rate per acre at which payment should be made for such trees. Such officer, in valuing the timber, shall have regard to its present market value on the spot, and to the local circumstances of the case, the accessibility of the grant, and the prospect of markets for timber becoming available during the currency of the lease. The Conservator will carefully examine the report, and forward it to the Deputy Commissioner with such remarks and alterations as he may think necessary. If the Deputy Commissioner, on receipt of the Conservator's decision, sees reason to object to the proposed rate per acre, he may refer the matter to the Commissioner, who shall take the orders of the Board of Revenue and of Government on any point on which he and the Conservator may eventually differ.

(2.) In rule 20, line 3, for the words "and to pay for all valuable forest trees as provided in clause 10 of the preliminary lease. He will also direct him to mark out," should be substituted "and to pay for forest trees the sum assessed under rule 11A. Payment for these may be made by instalments with the sanction of the Board of Revenue, which will only be given when the Board is fully satisfied of the good faith and solvency of the applicant. In such case the dates and amounts of the instalments shall be endorsed upon the lease, and the lessee must covenant that, in the event of his throwing up his lease, all outstanding instalments shall be forthwith recoverable from him under the Public Demands Recovery Act, 1880, whether the timber on the grant has been cut by him or not, but he shall have no further right to fell or remove timber from the grant. When granting the lease, the Deputy Commissioner will also direct the lessee to mark out," &c. (as in present rule.)

(3.) Clause 10 of the preliminary lease shall be altered to run: "Standing timber must be paid for at the average rate per acre intimated to the lessee by the Deputy Commissioner before possession is given under this lease, unless, with the sanction of the Board of Revenue, payment by instalments has been allowed. In the latter case, payment must be made according to the schedule of instalments endorsed upon the lease. In the event of the lessee throwing up the lease while any instalments due to Government on account of timber are unpaid, the lessee hereby agrees that all such instalments shall forthwith become due and be recoverable from him under the Public Demands Recovery Act, 1880, whether all the timber on the grant has been cut by him or not. But he shall have no right of any kind over any timber on the grant, cut or uncut, after the date of his so throwing up the lease."

REPORT ON THE LUNATIC ASYLUMS IN BENGAL FOR 1880.

MEDICAL AND MUNICIPAL DEPARTMENT—MEDICAL.

Calcutta, the 25th May 1881.

RESOLUTION.

READ—

The Report on the Lunatic Asylums in Bengal for the year 1880.

Read again—

The Reports for previous years, with the orders of Government passed upon them.

The number of lunatics confined in the asylums of Bengal on 1st January 1880 was 888. The operation of the orders of the Government of India against the admission of harmless chronic cases, or of cases arising from the immediate effects of intemperance, is perceptible in the steady decrease in the asylum population since 1876. On the first day of each of the past five years the numbers in confinement were—1876, 1,147; 1877, 1,131; 1878, 1,077; 1879, 991; 1880, 888. At the close of the past year the number had been further reduced by 7 only. The number admitted and re-admitted was 216, while 114 were discharged and 109 died. The asylums are able to accommodate 1,015 persons (782 males and 233 females) at the rate of 50 superficial feet for each. The maximum number confined on any one night was 922 (715 males and 207 females). The number of males in the Cuttack Asylum was somewhat in excess of the scale: but this cannot be avoided, and it is explained that there was no real overcrowding, as harmless lunatics are allowed to sleep in the verandahs, which are not included in the estimate of available space.

2. The percentage of recoveries, calculated on the mean daily population, was 8.27 against 11.34 in 1879 and 17.6 the average of the ten previous years. It is obvious that, as greater care is exercised in the admission of cases, the probability of recovery after a short period of confinement must be reduced. The effect of the orders against the commitment of persons whose minds have been temporarily affected by the use of ganja, is particularly marked in this direction.

3. The following statistics of the number of criminal lunatics in confinement in 1880, and the ten previous years, are of interest:—

The increase in the number has been steadily maintained from 160 on 31st December 1870 to 295 on 31st December 1880. Certain circumstances, however, must be taken into consideration in estimating the actual continuity of the increase. On the one hand it was the custom of Government in the earlier years to release prisoners who had passed long periods without any sign of insanity. On the other hand, many criminal lunatics have in the later years been transferred to jails who, under the previous practice, would have remained in the asylums. Dr. Payne also refers to unnecessary admissions caused by the action of Magistrates who committed to the asylums, as unfit to make their defence, persons charged with the commission of crime under the passing delirium of intoxication, who, on their admission, were at once returned as fit to take their trial. These cases, however, it is to be remarked, would not affect the numbers remaining in confinement at the close of the year. The last two years show a considerable number (15 and 13 respectively as against 8, 7 and 6 in the three previous years) re-admitted after trial. These, however, are bona fide additions to the number of criminal lunatics actually in confinement. On the whole, the Lieutenant-Governor is inclined to look upon the progressive increase as actual, and, having regard to the increase in the short period of 10 years, he thinks it doubtful whether we have yet reached the limit. Dr. Payne proposes to endeavour to collect information regarding the crimes charged against the lunatics committed to asylums during the past few years. The Lieutenant-Governor will await this statement with interest.

4. The total number of persons treated for insanity during the year was 1,104. For acute mania 188 were treated against 239 in 1879, with 15.42 per cent of recoveries against 18.52. These figures point to increased caution in the commitment of persons to asylums. It is particularly noteworthy that among the ganja-smokers admitted there has been a marked decrease in the number of cases of temporary intoxication. Of 89 persons of this class admitted in 1878, no less than 61 recovered; 41 recovered out of 58 admitted in 1879, while in 1880 only 31 out of 65 cases admitted resulted in recovery. The number of cases of chronic mania treated was 450 against 459 in 1879, and the percentage of recoveries was 3.33 compared with 5.22. Melancholia, a peculiarly intractable form of insanity, shows only 2 recoveries out of 81 cases treated. Acute dementia shows 6.34 per cent of recoveries against 1.75 in 1879, and chronic dementia 3.06 per cent against 1.43. Dr. Payne justly points out that general statistics of the results of treatment in all the cases under observation at a number of different asylums cannot be satisfactory. Differences of nomenclature, and the combination of all cases, new and old, in one total, render the figures quite unreliable for scientific purposes. It would be more satisfactory to know the results of new cases only under the different heads in each asylum separately.

5. There were 516 persons under treatment in hospital for sickness during the year. Of these, 485 were admitted during the year, and 31 were in hospital when the year began. The number of cases treated was 784 in 1880 and 543 in 1879. The daily average number under treatment in hospital was 40·6 in 1880 against 38·6 in 1879 and 60 in 1878. The daily average number of out-patients was 79. The statistics of out-patients have only been recorded since the orders of Government on the report for 1879 were issued. As they include cases of persons who have to be forcibly fed, convalescents, and even habitual idlers, it will be sufficient if they are given separately and not amalgamated with the hospital returns. Of the principal diseases, anæmia shows a decrease from 60 to 47 cases, and fevers a decrease from 169 to 123. In diarrhœa and dysentery, on the other hand, the numbers increased from 68 and 91 to 71 and 107 respectively, and phthisis shows 34 against 24. The decrease in anæmia occurred at the Patna Asylum, where only 24 cases were treated against 40 in 1879. In fevers, Berhampore shows a large decrease from 70 to 31, and Cuttack shows 11 only against 23. Dullunda is the only asylum which shows an increase under this head, 14 cases being recorded against 2 in 1879. In diarrhœa, Dullunda and Dacca show a decrease, and Patna and Berhampore an increase from 24 and 8 to 36 and 20 respectively. Patna also shows an increase in dysentery from 36 to 49, and in phthisis from 3 to 12. There were 14 cases of phthisis in Dullunda against 16 in 1879. While Patna Asylum shows this large increase under diarrhœa, dysentery and phthisis, it is remarkable that in the Patna Jail there was a decrease in the first two complaints, while phthisis was altogether absent. The first circumstance seems to point to some fault in the water-supply at the asylum, and this will be enquired into. At Berhampore the increase in diarrhœa and dysentery was common to both jail and asylum; and here also the water-supply requires attention. It is satisfactory to learn that no injuries were inflicted by keepers during the year.

6. Dr. Payne submits a very thorough and interesting examination of the statistics of mortality in the different asylums during the year. The death-rate per cent fell from 14·7 in 1879 to 12·3 in 1880. The average of the ten previous years was 11·5. There was a decrease in the number of deaths from 42 to 38 at Dullunda, from 20 to 10 at Dacca, and from 22 to 15 at Berhampore, while there was a rise from 35 to 42 at Patna and from 3 to 4 at Cuttack. In the report for 1879, allusion was made to the influence of the distribution of the lunatics from the abandoned asylum of Hazaribagh on the mortality at the other asylums. The disease conveyed from this asylum was still fatal during 1880. Of the 163 persons received from Hazaribagh, 25 died in the nine months of 1879 following their transfer, and 22 died in 1880. Of the 22 who died in 1880, it is reported that only one was in good health on admission. In estimating the significance of the mortality at the different asylums, it is important to bear in mind the influence of newly admitted cases. It is established that mortality is much greater among newly admitted patients than among old residents. In Dullunda the percentages were 21 and 12 respectively, in Patna 23 and 12, and in Dacca 14 and 2½. As the number of persons admitted to Dullunda and Patna is much larger than the number admitted to any other asylum, a greater number of deaths is to be expected. It is quite clear that diet had no connection with the mortality. In Dullunda meat rations were introduced with no effect whatever on sickness. In Patna, where the scale was unaltered, mortality increased. In Dacca, where one-third of the animal food was re-placed by vegetables, the mortality decreased. The condition of the water-supply at Patna and Berhampore will be enquired into under the Surgeon-General's orders. Beyond this no evidence can be discovered of special unhealthiness in the local conditions at any asylum. A detailed examination of the deaths under the different heads leaves no doubt that the mortality was largely affected by importation of disease from outside. Of 6 persons who died from ague and its consequences, 3 were new admissions. From anæmia, anasarca, debility and dropsy, 14 died in 1880 against 16 in 1879. Of the 14, just half were new admissions. Of 3 persons who died from remittent fever, 2 were new-comers who were admitted into hospital on arrival. There were 23 recorded deaths from phthisis against 21 in 1879. At Dullunda there occurred 11, at Dacca 1, at Patna 9, at Cuttack 2. Of the 11 who died at Dullunda 3 were new-comers, 4 were from Hazaribagh where phthisis had markedly developed before the asylum was closed, and 4 were chronic invalids. Only one case could be shown to have originated locally. Of the 9 who died at Patna, 5 were from Hazaribagh, and all were noted as received in weak condition. Of the two who died at Cuttack, one had been recently admitted. In addition to these circumstances, Dr. Payne shows that, as the post-mortem examinations are more regularly made, the Asylum authorities are enabled to determine as phthisis a larger and larger number of cases which, had examination not been held, might have been ascribed to other causes. Post-mortem examinations are now made in every case in which no objection is raised by the relatives of the deceased lunatic. It is certain that, under this practice, the number of phthisis cases will, as a rule, appear large in comparison with that reported in former years, while there will probably be a corresponding reduction under the heads of anæmia and debility. Thus while the number of deaths recorded under phthisis at Patna rose from 2 to 9, the number recorded under debility fell from 5 to 2. On the whole, it seems quite clear that, while lunatics generally are known to be liable to phthisis, there is no reason to believe that the condition of any of the Bengal asylums contribute specially to the promotion of this disease.

7. The total expenditure on the asylums during the year was Rs. 81,412-6-11 with a daily average of 881.74 inmates. The net expenditure, after deduction of Rs. 1,524-12-8, realized from friends of patients, and Rs. 7,486-13-3, the actual profit on manufactures, was Rs. 72,400-13-. In 1879 the gross expenditure, with a daily average of 889.96, was Rs. 96,648-9-2, and the net expenditure Rs. 85,311-7-7. It is to be observed, however, that the gross figures include the value of articles received from asylum manufactures and consumed in the asylum. This has been differently calculated in the two years. In 1879 it was taken as the cost price of the actuals plus the value added to them in the process of manufacture. In accordance, however, with the orders issued on the report for 1879, the value is now taken to be the cost price only. Thus the gross cost in 1879 appears unduly large. It includes Rs. 12,375 on account of goods consumed in the asylums, while the figure for 1880 includes Rs. 10,918-11-1 only. The gross average cost is shown as Rs. 92-5-3 in 1880 against Rs 108-9-6 in 1879: the net cost was Rs. 82-1-8 against Rs. 95-15-8.

8. The average cost on account of establishment was Rs. 48-4-10 against Rs. 51-0-3 in 1879. The reduction was chiefly due to the circumstance that the Superintendent's salary was charged throughout the year at the reduced rate of Rs. 273 per mensem, instead of partly at that rate, and partly at the rate of Rs. 609 drawn by Dr. Payne before he became Surgeon-General. The cost of establishment in each asylum was—

	Superintendence.			Establishment proper.			Total.
	Rs.	A.	P.	Rs.	A.	P.	Rs.	A.	P.
Dullunda	31	14	6	35	1	9
Dacca	21	2	8	24	0	7
Patna	19	9	0	17	9	8
Cuttack	40	15	0	22	10	11
Berhampore	21	3	8	18	4	3
							67	0	3
							45	3	3
							37	2	8

The average cost of superintendence is high in Dullunda owing to the comparatively high salary of the Deputy Superintendent, and in Cuttack owing to the small number of patients. The Surgeon-General remarks that the excess in establishment charges proper at Dullunda and Dacca is due to the higher rates of wages ruling at those places. This circumstance, however, does not altogether explain the excess. Allusion has been made in previous Resolutions to the inequalities in the strength of establishment in different asylums, and there is still room for remark on this point. The excess cost at Dacca is due rather to apparently undue multiplication of paid servants than to high wages. Except in the wages of sweepers there is little difference between the rates at Patna and those at Dacca. In Dullunda there would appear to be some want of economy under both heads, the strength of the establishment being perhaps greater, and the rates of wages higher, than is necessary. In Patna 3 jemadars on Rs. 12 each can look after 230 patients. In Dacca 6 (5 on Rs. 12 and 1 on Rs. 6) are employed to look after 198 patients, and in Dullunda 5 (1 on Rs. 20, 2 on Rs. 15, and 2 on Rs. 10) are employed to look after 215. In Patna there are 23 keepers, in Dullunda 26, in Dacca 28. In Patna eight sweepers are found sufficient; in Dacca there are 10 and in Dullunda there are 17. So long as such differences exist in the proportionate strength of the establishment employed, the cost at Dullunda and Dacca will largely exceed that at Patna, apart altogether from the question of wages.

9. The cost of diet in the asylums during the past three years was—

	1878.	1879.	1880.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
Dullunda	56	47	45
Dacca	65	61	42
Patna	55	45	27
Cuttack	36	27	22
Berhampore	44	44	34

The progressive decrease is satisfactory. It must be observed, however, that the apparent cost in 1878 and 1879 was enhanced by the practice of showing the full market value of articles of diet prepared in the asylum, instead of showing the cost price of the raw materials only. The change in practice has had a considerable effect in the apparent reductions shown against Dacca and Patna in 1880. In Dullunda this cause was in great measure counteracted by the increase in the use of meat. The cost of diet at Dacca and Berhampore appears to be still unduly high.

10. The new forms which have recently been sanctioned by the Government of India will show charges on account of work done by the Public Works Department, rates and taxes on the buildings, stationery, and European medicines. If these are taken into account, the gross average cost of maintaining each patient in 1880 is raised from Rs. 92-5-3 to Rs. 102-1-5. The Lieutenant-Governor agrees with Dr. Payne in thinking that work done for buildings exclusively used for manufactures should be debited to the manufacturing account.

11. There was some falling off in the quantity of manufactured articles disposed of to the public. The value of the goods sold was Rs. 19,285 against Rs. 26,275 in 1879. The value of articles made over for asylum use was Rs. 10,918, against Rs. 12,375, the value admitted in 1879. The net profits were Rs. 7,486, against Rs. 9,578, the amount shown in favour of the previous year. The change in the practice of giving credit for goods consumed in the asylum caused apparent inequalities in the profits earned. Thus Dullunda and Patna, which consumed a large quantity of their own manufactures, and took credit only for the cost of the raw material, show a small profit. Dacca produced a smaller quantity, but it sold the greater part of it, and, getting the market value, it shows a much larger profit.

12. There were 26 admissions and re-admissions to the European Insane Asylum at Bhowanipore. Two of the new patients were from the army, one was a military pensioner, and the remainder came from the civil and seafaring classes. The total number treated was 46 against 40 in the previous year. Six were discharged cured, three were made over to the Military authorities, one was despatched to Europe under the Merchant Shipping Act, ten were improved and transferred to the care of their friends, and two died. There remained 24 at the close of the year. Of the two deaths, one resulted from organic disease of the brain, and the other from disease of the heart. The patients were both admitted in a hopeless condition. The general health of the asylum was good. The total expenditure during the year was Rs. 20,475 against Rs. 22,095. Here, as at Dullunda, the decrease in the salary of the Superintendent made a large reduction in the total cost. The average cost of dieting the patients ranged from Rs. 1-8-6 for first class, and 6 annas for third class, paying patients to 4 annas 5 pies for pauper patients. The amount recovered from the friends of the patients was Rs. 12,341. The average cost of maintenance, after deduction of this amount, was Rs. 370.

13. The Lieutenant-Governor is gratified to find that the Superintendents bear unanimous testimony to the good conduct of the subordinate officers and to their kind treatment of the lunatics, European and Native. This coincides with what Sir Ashley Eden has himself observed on his visits to the different asylums. The management of the asylums by the superior officers has been satisfactory, and the thanks of Government are due to Dr. Payne for his efficient control of the Department, and for the excellent report in which he has reviewed the administration of the year.

ORDER—Ordered that a copy of this Resolution, together with a copy of the Report, be submitted to the Government of India in the Home, Revenue and Agricultural Department for information.

Ordered also that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to the Surgeon-General, Bengal, for information and guidance.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

COLMAN MACAULAY,

Offg. Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal.

RESOLUTION.

Read again—

The Reports for 1879, and the orders of Government recorded thereon.

The returns for the past year compared with those for 1879 show a slight increase of 528 in the total number of offences reported in the Town and Suburbs, the increase being 31 cases in the Town and 497 in the Suburbs. Compared with the returns for the two years 1878 and 1877, there was a decrease of 3,646 and 2,425 cases respectively. The following statement shows the number of cognizable and non-cognizable cases in the Town and Suburbs together for the past four years:—

		1877.	1878.	1879.	1880
Cognizable	{ Penal Code ...	6,260	6,192	5,537	4,644
	{ Miscellaneous ...	13,266	18,074	13,112	14,330
Non-cognizable	{ Penal Code ...	6,759	8,233	7,843	7,688
	{ Miscellaneous ...	18,301	13,308	15,141	15,499
Total ...		44,586	45,807	41,633	42,161

These figures show a marked and satisfactory decrease in the number of cognizable offences under the Penal Code as compared with the returns of the previous three years, and a slight decrease also in the number of non-cognizable offences under the Penal Code as compared with the returns of 1878 and 1879. In the number of offences under each of the heads of hurt by dangerous weapons, house-breaking, theft, criminal breach of trust, and receiving stolen property, there was a considerable decrease; while the increase in miscellaneous offences not coming under the Penal Code was mainly due to the greater number of cases under the Port Acts and the law for the prevention of cruelty to animals. Out of 41,522 persons arrested or summoned during the year, 32,746 or 78·86 per cent. were convicted as compared with 79·71 per cent. in 1879; and of 4,437 persons arrested in cognizable cases under the Penal Code, 2,751 or 62 per cent. were convicted against 64 per cent. in the previous year. Compared with the returns of 1879, convictions in the town for serious offences against the person fell from 144 to 113, and for serious offences against both person and property from 77 to 56; the decrease in each case in the number of convictions being somewhat greater than in proportion to the decrease in the number of offences. Of minor offences against the person there were 213 cases against 270 in 1879, and of minor offences against property 2,113 against 2,590 in the preceding year. Notwithstanding the slight increase in the number of reported offences in the Town, there was a decrease of 159 in the number of false cases, and for the Town and Suburbs together the percentage of false to true cases was only 1·84 as compared with 2·22 in 1879. In 71 cases, in which false complaints were made in the town, the facts showed malice on the part of the complainants, and the parties were prosecuted, with the result that the complainants in two of the cases were imprisoned, and in 69 cases fined, compensation being awarded to the injured persons in 56 cases. Though there was a decrease in the number of false complaints in Calcutta, the proportion of such cases in the Suburbs is still much below that in the Town. The total amount of property stolen in the Town and Suburbs was Rs. 1,34,496, of which Rs. 83,819 was recovered; and in both the Town and Suburbs there was a satisfactory decrease in the number of cases in which property was stolen. There has been a great decrease during the past few years in the number of offences committed by Europeans and Eurasians in Calcutta, the total number of such persons convicted under the Penal Code having fallen from 881 in 1877 and 884 in 1878 to 709 in 1879 and 532 in 1880; out of 532 convictions of Europeans and Eurasians, 100 were for assault and 235 for committing public nuisances.

2. Cognizable crime in the Town.—The number of true cognizable cases in the Town was 15,399 against 14,511 in 1879 and 19,695 in 1878. Comparing the number of offences of each class with the number in 1879, there was a decrease under every head except miscellaneous offences, and offences against special and local laws. In cases of hurt by dangerous weapons there was a decrease of 29 cases, of robbery 3 cases, house-breaking 20 cases, hurt 58 cases, theft 344 cases, criminal breach of trust 74 cases, and street offences 320 cases; while there was an increase of 4 cases of homicide, 7 of grievous hurt, 4 of administering drugs, 94 against the Railway Acts, 107 against the Stage Carriage Act, and 815 against the Act for the prevention of cruelty to animals. Six cases of murder occurred in 1880, against four in 1879 and five in 1878. In three out of the six cases the murderers were arrested and convicted and the capital sentence was carried out. In one of the three cases in which convictions were obtained the murderer, a native of Manilla, killed three women and a man within a few minutes. In another case the murderer killed his victim, a girl of 16 years of age, by hacking her to pieces with a thatcher's dao in a public street in the native portion of the town; it was midday at the time, and the thoroughfare was crowded, but none of the passers-by had the courage or the will to interfere while the murderer was striking the 17 blows that the wounds showed were struck at his victim. There were three cases of attempt at murder and three of culpable homicide not amounting to murder, but in none of the cases was there any feature calling for notice. There were 27 cases of grievous hurt against 20 in 1879 and 28 in 1878, and out of 34 persons arrested in connection with the offences, 20 were convicted and 2 were under trial at the close of the year. In three out of the four cases of administering stupefying drugs the victims were women of the town, and the accused the men who were visiting them; in the fourth case the victim was a man and the supposed poisoner was his mistress. In only one of the cases were the accused convicted before the close of the year, but one of the other cases was then still under enquiry. There were only 27 cases of hurt by dangerous weapons as compared with 56 in 1879. There were 114 true cases of burglary and lurking house-trespass against 136 in 1879 and 115 in 1878; the cases detected were 56 against 79 and 56 respectively in 1879 and 1878, and the convictions were 62 against 104 and 73; the amount of property stolen was Rs. 8,521, of which Rs. 3,809 was recovered. The total number of houses entered by thieves during the year was 99, of which 56 were mud and mat huts. Seventy-one of the houses were entered by night and twenty-eight by day, and considering the general insecurity of houses in this country, and the temptation offered to thieves by native shop-keepers in Calcutta, the Lieutenant-Governor agrees with the Commissioner of Police that property in the Town cannot be considered as insufficiently protected by the Police. Half the dealers and merchants in the bazars and native quarters of the town habitually shut up their shops and go away for the night, trusting only to a cheap padlock and the vigilance of the police. The number of thefts was 1,635 against 1,979 in the previous year and 2,231 in 1878, and 873 or rather more than half the total number of cases were detected; out of Rs. 1,02,987, the total value of the property stolen, Rs. 66,854 or 64·9 per cent. was recovered. In 118 out of the 164 cases of theft on the river the police were successful in recovering the whole or a portion of the property stolen, and convictions were obtained against 161 out of the 202 persons arrested on account of these thefts. It is satisfactory to learn that thefts by cart-drivers, which were formerly very common, have entirely ceased since the early part of last year.

3. The powers of the police appear to have been used with discretion in the institution and conduct of prosecutions for miscellaneous cognizable offences during the past year. In accordance with the orders of Government, prosecutions on the general charge of bad livelihood are now only resorted to in very exceptional cases when notorious thieves have been arrested for lurking about without any ostensible means of livelihood; there were only two such prosecutions in the year under review as compared with 10 in 1879. There were 124 prosecutions under the Gambling Act against an average of 146 in the previous five years, and in connection with these cases 533 persons were arrested, of whom 477 were convicted. In 811 cases persons were stopped in the street by the police on suspicion of being in possession of stolen goods, and in considerably more than half the number of cases the suspicions were well founded; in 205 cases the owners were found and charges of theft were instituted, while in 291 other cases the property was confiscated either because the rightful owners could not be found, or, when found, declined to prosecute. Out of 803 persons prosecuted for offences under the Stage Carriage Act, 761 were convicted and 39 acquitted. The number of persons arrested for street offences under the Police Act fell from 8,895 in 1878 and 4,704 in 1879 to 3,550 in 1880, of whom 3,483 were convicted. In a city like Calcutta the police have a very difficult task to perform in maintaining order and enforcing the laws regarding sanitation and conservancy without making unnecessary arrests, and the Lieutenant-Governor gladly acknowledges the discretion with which the duty has been performed. In considerably more than eight thousand prosecutions for street offences in the past two years, only 116 persons were discharged by the Magistrates. The officers of the Society for the prevention of cruelty to animals were during the past year sworn in as constables, so as to give them the power of arrest in cases of offences under Act I (B. C.) of 1869; 3,842 persons were convicted under the Act against 2,749 in 1879, only 45 out of the whole number of persons brought before the Magistrate being acquitted.

4. Cognizable Crime in the Suburbs.—The number of true cognizable cases was 2,812 against 3,227 in 1879 and 3,696 in 1878. There was an increase of three cases in the number of offences against the State and public tranquillity, and the number of serious offences against the person was the same as in 1879, although 26 less than in 1878. In every other class of cognizable crime there was a satisfactory decrease, the decrease being greatest in minor offences against property, which fell from 1,028 in 1878 and 1,008 in 1879 to 838 in 1880. There were four cases of murder in the Suburbs during the year, the number being the same as in 1879. In two of the cases the murderers were robbers who broke into the houses of their victims, and in neither of these cases were any of the culprits detected; in the third case one of a party of Madrassese labourers killed two of his comrades without having any apparent motive, and was sentenced to transportation for life; and the fourth case was that of a seaman George Nairns, who was executed for the murder of a native constable. There was only one case of attempt at murder, and in that the prisoner was sentenced to transportation for life. Convictions were obtained in 17 out of 19 cases of grievous hurt, the number of persons convicted being 19. There were fewer cases of burglary and house-trespass than in any previous year, the total number being only 83 as compared with an average of 122 in each of the previous four years; the ratios of cases detected and persons convicted to the total number of cases and persons arrested were also satisfactory; the number of houses broken into was 68, of which only 18 were brick-built. In thefts as well as in burglaries there was a great decrease in comparison with previous years, the number of cases being 583 against 776 in 1878 and 730 in 1879; the amount of property stolen was Rs. 12,754, and of this Rs. 9,293 was recovered.

5. Sixty-seven persons committed suicide against 59 in 1879 and 66 in 1878. Of the 67 cases, 47 were in the Town, 19 in the Suburbs and 1 on the river; 27 of those who destroyed themselves were men and 40 women. In 28 of the cases death was caused by hanging, in 24 cases by opium-poisoning, in 5 cases by arsenic, and in 5 cases by drowning. Of 214 accidental deaths, 11 were caused by snake-bite, 89 by drowning, 23 by falls from trees, buildings, &c., and 18 by persons being run over in the street. Fourteen European seamen were drowned in the river as compared with 15 in 1879, 8 in 1878, and 41 in 1877, and of those drowned four appear to owe their deaths to drunkenness. Six cargo boats and two passenger boats are reported to have sunk owing to a collision with the Hooghly Bridge, but no lives were lost in these accidents. Inquests were held by the Coroner in 183 cases during the past year against 198 in the previous year. There were only two fires in the Town and eleven in the Suburbs during the year 1880, and at all of these the Calcutta Fire Brigade was in attendance. Three brick buildings, nine tiled huts, and ten thatched huts were destroyed, and the total loss of property was estimated at about Rs. 20,000. The only fires of any magnitude were at some jute godowns in Bow Bazar-street and at the Garden Reach Cotton Mills.

6. Arms Act (XI of 1878).—The trade in sporting guns and revolvers revived somewhat during the past year, and nearly twice as large a quantity of shot was imported as in the previous year; the amount of gunpowder imported was, however, less than half that imported in 1879. The following statement shows the imports of the past four years:—

YEARS.			Sporting rifles	Sporting guns.	Pistols and revolvers	Gunpowder	Shot.	Perussion caps
			No.	No.	No.	lb.	Bags	No.
1877	166	716	478	84,560	18,594	28,586,700
1878	174	365	505	80,000	11,024	11,231,000
1879	24	69	341	98,050	10,946	10,660,500
1880	116	132	356	45,200	20,040	14,891,000

The returns of arms and ammunition passed out of Calcutta under inland passes show a considerable decrease in the amount of ammunition transported for use in the Lower Provinces, and a large increase in the amount transported to the North-Western Provinces. There was an increase also in the quantity of gunpowder and caps, but a decrease in cartridges and bullets transported to the Assam frontier districts. The number of rifles and pistols passed out of Calcutta was quite insignificant. Eight hundred and fifty-six licenses under the Arms Act were granted by the Commissioner of Police during the past year as compared with 563 in 1879. Fifteen prosecutions were instituted under the Act in the Town and three in the Suburbs, but only one case, which was undertaken in concert with officers of the Cachar Police, was of any importance. In that case a sircar, in the employ of the principal native dealer in Calcutta, procured without license a large quantity of arms and ammunition for certain agents who had come down from Cachar. It is through the agency of people who do not conform to the provisions of the law and trade without licenses that arms and ammunition are obtained by the wild tribes beyond the frontier, and it is satisfactory to know that the sircar and four others who were concerned in the illicit traffic were convicted and imprisoned. The increase in the number of licenses applied for and granted is a sign that the law is now fairly understood, and that very little difficulty is experienced in complying with its provisions by those who have no unlawful object or trade to conceal.

7. Only 10 persons were declared vagrants during the year, against 18 in 1879 and 40 in 1878. The total number of vagrants in the workhouse, including two who remained from the preceding year, was 12; of these four were discharged on obtaining employment, four were released although no employment could be found for them, three were deported to London, and one remained in the workhouse at the close of the year. Besides these, three persons, who had formerly held respectable positions, were deported under agreements, in which they bound themselves not to return to India for five years. The cost of working the Act in Calcutta was Rs. 2,234-8.

8. Notwithstanding the increase made in 1879 in the pay of native constables in the Town and Suburbs, the number of Bengalis who enlist in the force is still very small. Out of 1,309 native constables in the Town police, only 118 are Bengalis, the rest being up-country men; and out of 632 native constables in the Suburbs, only 85 are Bengalis. Bengalis would be at once employed if they could be found, but, except natives of Furreedpore, very few, it is stated, come forward who are at all fitted for the duties of watch and ward. During the year 19 members of the force were punished judicially, 14 men being imprisoned and 5 fined. Six of those punished were native officers, of whom one was convicted of bribery, two of extortion, two of criminal misappropriation, and one of neglect of duty. Of the 13 constables convicted, three were punished for bribery, four for theft, three for extortion, and three for causing hurt. Two inspectors, two European constables, and 67 native subordinate officers and men were dismissed the force during the year; and three inspectors, 14 European constables, and 18 native officers and constables were punished by reduction to lower grades. The number of native constables fined was 43 as compared with 14 in 1879, 111 in 1878, and 556 in 1877.

9. The total cost of the Town Police force, including the salaries of the Commissioner and Deputy Commissioner, was Rs. 4,28,472, of which Rs. 2,94,229 was paid by the Municipality and Rs. 1,34,243 by Government. Against this latter sum, however, must be set off the fines and fees realized during the year, which amounted to Rs. 39,091. The cost of the Suburban force was Rs. 1,50,119, towards which the Municipality contributed Rs. 72,520, and Government Rs. 77,599. Against the latter sum Rs. 5,079 was realized from fees and fines. The cost of the River Police was Rs. 30,007, of which Rs. 22,505 was paid by the Port Commissioner and Rs. 7,501 by Government. The cost of each of the three forces was slightly less than in 1879.

10. Courts of the Presidency Magistrates.—The number of cognizable cases brought before the Chief Presidency Magistrate was 6,655, of which 6,024 were instituted by the police, and 631 were preferred direct to the Magistrate. In the Court of the Magistrate of the Northern Division 5,385 cognizable cases were instituted—4,833 by the police and 552 direct. Out of 5,425 non-cognizable cases instituted during the year in the two courts, 2,656 were before the Chief Magistrate and 2,769 before the Magistrate of the Northern Division. The number of persons convicted in the cognizable cases tried by the two Courts during the year was 15,473, and in non-cognizable cases 6,095. Against these 21,568 convictions, the total number of appeals preferred to the High Court during the year was nine, of which seven were rejected, the sentences in the other two cases being either modified or reversed. The total number of cases in which the punishment of whipping was inflicted by the Presidency Magistrates was 211, the punishment being in 123 cases for a first offence, and in 88 cases for a second or subsequent offence. In 86 of the latter cases sentences of imprisonment were passed in addition to whipping. The Commissioner of Police has prepared a series of statements which show clearly the relief afforded to the High Court by the increased powers given to the Presidency Magistrates under Act IV of 1877. It appears from these statements that during the four years immediately preceding the passing of the Act, 88 persons were convicted at the High Court of burglary and 245 of theft; while during the four years since the introduction of the Act the convictions by the same Court have fallen in burglaries to 43 and in thefts to 95. The Presidency Magistrates are now able to dispose of the great majority of the cases that would under the former procedure have been committed to the High Court for trial. It was stated in the Resolution on the reports of the Commissioner of Police and the Presidency Magistrates for the year 1879, that legal difficulties had interfered with the proposal that sittings of the Honorary Magistrates should be held three times a week for the trial of ordinary criminal cases and three times for the trial of municipal cases, the cost of the bench establishment being divided between Government and, the Municipality. It has been found impossible to overcome these difficulties as the law now stands, and the Lieutenant-Governor has therefore allowed the whole cost of the establishment required for the benches to be defrayed from provincial revenues. Since the 1st January 1881, benches of Honorary Magistrates have been sitting regularly three times a week for the disposal of ordinary cases, and on the remaining three days the Magistrates have heard municipal cases. The Chief Magistrate's report shows that the Honorary Magistrates have taken great interest in their work, and as only one or two days will now intervene between their sittings, it will be possible to make over to them serious cases which cannot be finished at a single hearing. During the past year 135 cognizable cases and 77 non-cognizable cases were instituted before the benches, and of the 304 persons put before them for trial 96 were acquitted or discharged, and 208 convicted. The proposal of the Chief Magistrate that a check should be placed on pawnbrokers by compelling them to enter in their books all articles pledged with them in such a manner that they can be identified should be separately submitted through the Commissioner of Police. It is impossible for Government to deal with such a question as this when reviewing an Annual Administration Report. When submitting his proposals the Chief Magistrate should state clearly and fully how the check that he proposes might in his opinion best be applied and enforced.

11. Mr. Beverley officiated as Commissioner of Police from the 11th March to the 18th October 1880 during the absence of the permanent incumbent Mr. Souttar, on leave; for the rest of the year Mr. Souttar held charge of his office. The administration of the police force was under the Deputy Commissioner Mr. Lambert for the whole year with the exception of one month when he was on leave and Major Wilkinson officiated as Deputy Commissioner. Owing to the weak state of Mr. Souttar's health, the police department was almost entirely under Mr. Lambert's control, and the Lieutenant-Governor's thanks are due to him for the efficiency of his administration. The Lieutenant-Governor has noticed with pleasure the favourable terms in which the Commissioner of Police speaks of the services of Superintendents Percy, Lamb, Linchan, Robertson, Lynam, Hill, and Hogg, and of certain of the Inspectors.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to the Commissioner of Police, Calcutta, for information, and for communication to the Presidency Magistrates.

Ordered also that a copy of the Resolution and of the report be forwarded to the Commissioner of the Presidency Division.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

HORACE A. COCKERELL,

Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

NOTE.

Barometric Pressure.—The pressures in column 2 of the above table for all stations below 500 feet are reduced from those given in column 3 of the table on the previous page, by adding the weight of a column of air of the temperatures given in column 18. For stations above 500 feet elevation the reduction is made by Captain Allan Cunningham's table, "Prof., Papers on Indian Engineering, No. CXIII." The temperatures at the sea-level are taken from column 3 of the above table.

Temperature.—The temperatures in column 3 are reduced from those in column 18 on the preceding page, by adding 1° Fahrenheit for every 450 feet.

Wind Resultant.—The resultant wind direction and its comparative predominance are calculated from the whole number of wind observations recorded during the month. The relative predominance in the direction of the resultant is given as a percentage of the whole number of observations. The direction is computed in the usual way by Lambert's formula.

Cloud.—This column gives the average proportion of clouded sky, a cloudless sky being indicated by 0, and one completely overcast by 10.

The above, being all comparable, afford the data for constructing a meteorological chart for the month, which will show the isobaric and isothermal lines and the resultant wind directions, which last may be represented by arrows of varying length, proportioned to the prevalence of the wind. To these may be added the rainfall from the previous tables.

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the barograph and thermograph, and from observations made at 6h, 10h, 16h, and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The direction of the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

Report of Fluctuation of Traffic on the Tirhoot State Railway for the month of April 1881.

The total quantity of goods carried during the month of April 1881 aggregated 2,59,103 maunds, as compared with 1,91,913 maunds carried during the corresponding period of 1880, and 2,55,170 maunds carried during the previous month, showing an increase of 67,190 maunds in the one case, and 3,433 maunds in the other. 36,468 maunds of railway material carried during the month for the Eastern and Western Extensions of Tirhoot State Railway have been taken into account.

Of the several increases and decreases, the following are the prominent ones and worthy of separate explanation:—

	Mds.
INCREASES.
Coal. —Coal is fast supplying the place of firewood in the district for brick-burning purposes and the increase is attributable to the large supplies of bricks in demand for the Civil Station, and the Raja's palace at Durbhanga and for Road Cess work in both Durbhanga and Mozufferpore districts	3,220
Line and Kunkur. —This depends on works in construction in the district. The Raj Durbhanga and Road Cess are the only large importers worthy of notice	15,359
Potatoes. —This is a temporary increase	1,805
Salt. —As navigation becomes more difficult owing to the rivers being shallow, this traffic leaves the boats for the Railway	1,154
Stone-ballast, &c. —This depends on the requirements of the Road Cess and Engineering	1,925
Sugar. —This trade is growing in the district. Two concerns that were formerly indigo concerns have now formed themselves into sugar companies in the Durbhanga district, and others will follow their example	1,208
Sundries. —This increase is steady and very satisfactory	25,578
Tobacco. —The outturn of tobacco has been very good this year, and the prompt attention given to the despatches of this traffic has transferred a good deal of it from carts to the Railway	31,599
DECREASES.
Food grains. —Previous month's remarks are applicable to this	6,837
Fruits, fresh. —Despatch of Lichees began earlier last year than this, and the crop is not at all plentiful this year. This decrease is likely to continue	2,037
Ghee. —This staple fetches a higher price locally than in the outside markets	1,273
Gunny-bags, empty. —This depends on the export of grain, seeds, &c., &c.	4,083
Piece goods, English. —There having been sufficient stock on hand, the merchants imported very small quantities during the month, and hence the sudden decrease. The month of June being the propitious month for marriages among the natives, this traffic may be expected to increase largely then	9,766
Saltpetre. —Previous month's remarks are applicable to this also	4,010
Seeds, oil. —The decrease is due to the higher price in local markets than in Calcutta and outside markets. This traffic is not expected to improve, as the outturn has not been plentiful this year	16,788
Timber. —This has been imported by the Raj Durbhanga for engineering works	1,932
Seeds other than Food-Grain. —This is exceptional traffic, and the decrease cannot be accounted for	1,715
Turnerie. —As the new crop has been favourable everywhere, there is no demand in the outside market	1,616

Report of Fluctuation of Traffic on the Patna-Gya State Railway for the month of April 1881.

THE total quantity of goods carried during the month of April 1881 aggregated, 1,79,325 maunds, as compared with 1,66,812 maunds carried during the corresponding period of 1880, and 1,56,770 maunds carried during the previous month, showing an increase of 12,513 maunds in the one case, and 22,555 maunds in the other. Of the several increases and decreases, the following are the prominent ones and worthy of separate explanation :—

INCREASES.

	Mds.
Jaggree. —This is one of the chief staples of traffic on this line and is largely exported to stations on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway. This traffic has steadily increased since the opening of this railway ...	9,340
Opium. —This is a temporary and the increase is satisfactory. The opium season is now over ...	13,030
Seeds, oil. —The new crop has been favourable in the district and hence the increase ...	18,763
Sundries. —Increase under this head is steady and satisfactory ...	12,863
Tobacco. —Gya is a famous place for native tobacco, and the export of the same is consequently large ...	4,450

DECREASES.

Chillies. —The despatch of chillies began earlier last year than this ...	7,351
Coal. —This depends entirely upon the requirements of the Road Cess and Engineering Department ...	4,916
Food-grains. —Previous month's remarks are applicable to this ...	10,870
Ghee. —This was an export traffic to Howrah, but owing to large quantities of ghee being exported from stations in North-Western Provinces, which fetch lower prices in Calcutta than the ghee from the Gya district, the export has diminished ...	1,696
Iron. —This traffic fluctuates in accordance with works under construction in the district ...	1,060
Salt. —There is no more demand in the district on account of the market being over-stocked ...	3,834
Saltpetre. —Previous month's remarks are applicable to this also ...	5,796
Stone-ballast. —This was exported to Patna for municipal purpose; the decrease is attributable to their being no demand for metalling roads, &c., at Patna and Bankipore ...	7,471
Sugar. —On account of high prices, transactions in sugar are at a stand still ...	1,073

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the barograph and thermograph.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The direction of the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

The results of observations at the Alipore Observatory are not rigorously comparable with the registers of past years (at the Park Street Observatory). The barometer is about 3 feet higher at Alipore, and, other things being equal, reads therefore .003 lower. The diurnal range of temperature is also greater at Alipore, and the mean temperature apparently about 2.7 lower; and finally, the thermometer, which has furnished the record of temperature at the Surveyor-General's Office during the last 20 years and upwards, is found to read 0.6 higher than the Kew standard thermometer, which is the standard of reference at the present Observatory.

READ again—

Resolution in the Department of Finance and Commerce, No. 3574, dated the 3rd November 1880, regarding the procedure to be employed in obtaining for the public service supplies of stores of other than Indian origin or manufacture.

RESOLUTION.—The Governor-General in Council finds from proposals that have been recently made in two or three instances that considerable misapprehension exists as to the extent of the discretion left to local authorities by paragraphs 4 and 5 of the Resolution cited above in the matter of the local purchase of stores of the kind referred to. As this misapprehension seems to be mainly due to the wording of these paragraphs, His Excellency in Council considers it advisable to explain more clearly the intention of the orders.

2. Every effort should be made to supply the wants of Government by the purchase in the local market of articles of bona fide local manufacture. The special attention of local Governments is directed to this point.

3. In the event of articles being required which cannot be manufactured in India, they are, as an almost invariable rule, to be obtained by indenting on the Secretary of State. The Store Department at the India Office constitutes a special agency which is maintained for the express purpose of purchasing stores in England on account of the Government of India. That Department should be able to supply stores of as good quality and at as cheap a price as they can be obtained through private agency, the employment of which must necessarily involve the payment of a commission.

4. The special cases in which, with the previous sanction of the Government of India or of the local Government, stores of European manufacture may be obtained in the local market are—

1st.—When for any special reason it may be more economical to do so.

2nd.—When stores indented for from England have not arrived, and inconvenience to the public service is anticipated from delay in the supply.

3rd.—When articles are perishable.

Books and newspaper are, under the terms of paragraph 3 of the Resolution No. 3574 of 3rd November 1880, exempted from the general rule which obliges all European articles to be obtained as a general rule by indenting on the Secretary of State.

5. It has in some cases been alleged that articles of European manufacture can be obtained through the agency of local firms more cheaply than by indenting on the Secretary of State. If local Governments have reason to believe that in respect to any particular article this statement is correct, the facts of the case should be communicated to the Government of India for such action as circumstances may upon consideration appear to demand. But until further orders the principles laid down in his resolution are to regulate the purchase of stores.

ORDERED, that the foregoing Resolution be communicated for information and guidance to—all Departments of the Government of India, all local Governments and Administrations,

REPORT ON CALCUTTA MEDICAL INSTITUTIONS FOR 1880.

MEDICAL AND MUNICIPAL DEPARTMENT—MEDICAL.

Calcutta, the 26th May 1881.

READ—

The Report on Calcutta Medical Institutions for 1880.

The public health of Calcutta was much better in 1880 than in any one of the five previous years. Deaths from cholera were less than half as numerous as in 1875 or 1876, and numbered only two-thirds of the deaths from this cause in 1879, itself the healthiest of the five years. In diarrhoea and dysentery, and in fevers, the mortality was also much lower in 1880 than in any of its five immediate predecessors. The general death-rate per mille was only 27·1, against 30·1 in 1876 and 30·3 in 1879, 31·9 in 1877, 32·7 in 1875, and 38·1 in 1878. Under these circumstances, it might be expected that the returns would show a falling off in the number of persons resorting for treatment to the Calcutta hospitals during the year. Such, however, is not the case. The following statement shows the number of deaths recorded in the town since 1875, and the number treated in the hospitals in each year:—

1875	14,086	267,035.

An increase is shown in the number of in-door patients at all except the Campbell and the Howrah hospitals. The decrease in the former was due to the reduction of the available space while the buildings were under repairs. Probably this circumstance contributed to the increase in the Medical College Hospital, but it is stated that the wards of the latter institution are nearly always full. Fluctuations in the actual number of persons treated must therefore depend very much on the severity or mildness of disease, and the consequently longer or shorter period of the average stay in hospital. At Howrah the decrease is attributed to improved public health, and to care in the selection of patients for admission. This hospital is not controlled by Government. At the two Calcutta hospitals which receive out-door patients there was an increase in the attendance—6,667 at the Medical College Hospital, and 3,443 at the Mayo Hospital and its attached dispensaries. A part of the increase at the Medical College Hospital was doubtless due to the opening of the new out-door dispensary on 1st July. The general death-rate at the Calcutta hospitals was 134.17 per mille against 155.62 in 1879. If the Howrah figures are included, the rate was 138.17 against 162.2. A decrease is shown at all except the Mayo hospital, where the rate rose from 139.36 to 143.19.

3 The figures showing the races and sexes of the persons treated in the different years are of little value for the purposes of comparison. The native races appear to resort to the hospitals in much the same proportion year after year. The proportion of male to female adults is about 2 to 1. Out of 163,925 adult males treated 15,584, and out of 125,562 adult females 4,298, were in-patients. Only 1,069 children out of 68,537 were treated in hospital. The death-rate among adults was 138.6, and among children only 133; but the number of the latter was so small that the general death-rate is only reduced to 138.17.

4. The following table shows the mortality in the hospitals during each of the past eight years:—

YEARS.	ALL DISEASES, EXCEPT CASES TREATED IN EYE INFIRMARY.			CHOLERA.			Death-rate, excluding cholera.	Number of deaths registered by the Municipality.	Rate per mille of population.
	Treated.	Died.	Died per mille.	Treated.	Died.	Died per mille.
1873	17,448	2,565	147	469	245	533	136	1,558	25.9
1874	19,400	3,037	155	628	311	495	141	2,641	29.4
1875	22,082	3,141	145	723	371	509	153	15,069	35
1876	21,087	3,064	145	693	369	530	132	12,964	30.2
1877	28,977	3,172	139	545	284	521	123	13,704	31.9
1878	27,008	4,518	161	579	323	567	151	16,396	38.1
1880	21,032	2,906	138	556	183	514	131	11,681	27.1

The general death-rate was lower than in any year except 1877. The proportion of deaths from cholera was only lower in 1874 and 1875. If cholera deaths are excluded, the general death-rate among all races was 131 per mille against 150 in the previous year. If moribund and cholera cases are both excluded from the list of deaths among natives, the true native death-rate was 146·6 against 169·5 in 1879. The Surgeon-General makes the following observations on the general features of the statistics of disease in the hospitals :—

Regarding particular diseases, I may mention a marked reduction of cholera, corresponding with that of the town. The disease was fatal in an ordinary proportion of cases on the whole. The variation in this respect followed a well known law. Where cases were few and scattered mortality was high; where they were more numerous the disease was less fatal in proportion. Of small-pox 97 cases were received into hospital and 26 died. There were 114 deaths recorded in the town, and if these bore the same proportion to the entire numbers of cases of diseases, they would represent nearly 400 such cases in the town alone. Inasmuch as the admissions to the Sealdah Hospital include cases from the Suburbs and Howrah, it would seem that a very small proportion of the town cases were received into hospital, which is unsatisfactory. Malarious fevers in the Medical College Hospital were, both in quantity and quality, much the same as in 1879. In the General Hospital they were reduced to less than half the number, and the mortality was very small. In the Mayo Hospital there was an increase both in number and severity. At the Campbell Hospital number and fatality were both reduced. The influence of reduced accommodation affected the numbers without doubt. At the Police Hospital numbers fell and mortality was nominal. At Howrah there was no great difference of quantity, but mortality fell largely among Europeans and rose among Natives. On the whole, there was considerable reduction both in prevalence and fatality of malarious fever. Respiratory affections presented no great variations in 1880. They were somewhat less fatal than before. Dysentery and diarrhoea showed jointly some reduction both of prevalence and death-rate. It is under these headings that the majority of hopeless cases are admitted into hospital. For child-birth women were received in greater number, and the deaths were fewer than in the previous year.

5. At the Medical College Hospital 2,426 European in-door patients were treated against 2,126 in the previous year, and 2,147 native in-door patients against 2,165. Of the former 169 and of the latter 419 died against 147 and 412 respectively in 1879. The death-rate was thus 69·66 among Europeans and 195·15 among natives as compared with 69·14 and 190·30. The general death-rate of all cases was 128 of every 1,000 treated against 130 in 1879, 135 in 1878, 108 in 1877, 136 in 1876, 152 in 1875, and 125 in 1874. Though there was an increase in the number of persons treated in the European wards, there was a decrease in the purely European element, the sailors from the port resorting chiefly to the General Hospital during the year. The increase took place among the more weakly classes of East Indians, Chinese, Jews, and Armenians, and the death-rate was doubtless less favourable in consequence than it would otherwise have been. The native death-rate of 195·15 is calculated on all cases. If moribund and cholera cases are excluded, the native death-rate was 149·55 against 140·6 in the previous year. It is stated that the native death-rate was affected by the circumstance that fewer pauper patients could be transferred to the Campbell Hospital owing to want of accommodation. The number transferred was only 537 against 902 in the previous year. Of the 588 persons who died 29 were children. The children died at the same rate as the adults. Of the 169 deaths among Europeans, 22 were caused by fever, 14 by phthisis, 13 by diseases of the respiratory organs, 11 by dysentery, and 11 by diarrhoea. Of the 419 natives, 28 died of fever, 29 of cholera, 18 of phthisis, 35 of respiratory affections, 48 of dysentery, 14 of liver diseases, 22 of poisons and poisoned wounds, and 47 of injuries.

6. In the General Hospital 3,168 persons, all indoor patients, were treated against 3,115 of the same class in 1879, and 3,207 the average of the past ten years. The total number of deaths was 102 against 142 in 1879. The death-rate was 32 per mille against 45 in 1879 and 44 the average of ten years. There were 21 cases of cholera with 13 deaths, against 39 with 25 deaths in 1879, and 40 with 30 deaths in 1878. If cholera cases are excluded from consideration, the rate was 28 of every 1,000 treated, against 38 in 1879 and 33 the average of ten years. The death-rate among children was as high as 85 per mille, several being brought to the hospital in a dying condition; but the total number of deaths was only 17, and the general death-rate was but slightly affected. There were only 415 cases of fever, against 994 in the previous year. The number of cholera cases, and the number of deaths from this cause, were both smaller than in any year since 1864. Of 76 persons treated for phthisis 17 died. In the previous year 11 out of 57 cases ended fatally. Dysentery and diarrhoea were both less common and less severe than 1879. Of the former there were 178 and of the latter only 157 cases against 200 and 207 respectively. The death-rate from dysentery was only 16, and that from diarrhoea only 25, against 65 and 72 in the previous year. Only five cases of liver disease out of 59 ended fatally against 12 out of 54 in 1879.

7. In the Campbell Hospital 12 Europeans and 6,869 natives were treated against 234 Europeans and 8,059 natives in 1879. Of the Europeans 10 were small-pox patients, and of these 2 died. The native death-rate was 230 per mille, against 263 in 1879 and 253 in 1878. Of 273 children treated, 41 died. The death-rate among adults was really 234. If cholera and moribund cases are excluded, the native death-rate was 204 against 235 in the previous year. There were 23 native deaths from small-pox out of 76 cases. Phthisis was more common than in 1879, though not so fatal. There were 233 cases against 169, and the death-rate was 44 per cent against 55. Dropsy caused 115 deaths out of 208 cases, against 165 out of 289 in the previous year. Of dysentery 844 cases with 408 deaths were treated, against 975 with 500 deaths, and of diarrhoea 580 with 315 deaths against 867 with 478.

8. The circumstances of the Police Hospital, as was observed in the Resolution on the last report, are quite exceptional. The true death-rate in this hospital was only 7.7 per mille.

9. In the Mayo Hospital, and its allied hospital of the Chandney, only natives are treated. The number was 2,130 against 2,045 in 1879. Of 103 children treated 16 died. The death-rate among adults was only 142. The general death-rate was 143 against 139. After exclusion of cholera and moribund cases, it was 98 against 91. In this hospital, unlike the others, there was an increase in fever cases. The number treated was 532 against 444, and the mortality was 80 per mille against 54. There were 137 cases of cholera with 61 deaths, against 186 with 88. Cases of chest affection rose from 134 to 173, and the deaths from 23 to 43. Dysentery shows 19 cases with 28 deaths, against 78 with 14.

10. In the Howrah Hospital 612 Europeans and East Indians, and natives, were treated, against 594 and 1,176 respectively. Of 56 children treated, 12 died; the rate was thus 214 per mille. The death-rate among adults was 186. The general rate was thus raised to 188. The death-rate among the European class was 29 against 53 in 1879, 55 in 1878, and 39 in 1877. Among natives the death-rate was 292, against 332, 346, and 252 respectively in the three previous years. More than one-fifth of the deaths among native patients occurred during the first 24 hours after admission. It is notorious that coolies from the interior, who have been employed in the mills and workshops at Howrah, generally go to the hospital only in the last extremity. If cholera and moribund cases are excluded, the death-rate is reduced to 243 in 1880 and 287 in 1879. Of the 18 Europeans and Eurasians 4 died of cholera, 3 of phthisis, and 3 of dysentery. Among natives 33 died of fever out of 112, 18 of cholera out of 29, 8 of dropsy out of 22; 53 of dysentery out of 111, 101 of diarrhoea out of 197, and 8 of debility out of 18.

11. The death-rate in cases of major operations in the hospitals, exclusive of eye cases, was 166 against 175 in 1879, 121 in 1878, 204 in 1877, 255 in 1876, and 295 in 1875. Such figures, however, give no reliable information as to the actual relation between operation and death. The condition of the patient, the idiosyncrasy of the operator, local circumstances antecedent or subsequent to operation, and a number of influences which cannot possibly find arithmetical expression, affect the details of any table of operations and their results. Numbers of cases are entered as deaths in the operation list, which must have ended fatally whether operation had or had not been performed. As Dr. Payne remarks, operation is a process of treatment, not a disease; and the Lieutenant-Governor accepts his view that no detailed examination of the list as a whole need be undertaken.

12. It is chiefly in its relation to the question of septic disease in the hospitals that an examination of the results of some of the operations is of interest. Dr. Payne gives the details of four classes of operations, surgical & simple, but particularly liable to be followed by septic affections. These are amputation through the thigh, the leg, the arm, and the forearm:—

	THIGH.			LEG.			ARM.			FOREARM.
	Operations.	Deaths.	Deaths per mille.	Operations.	Deaths.	Deaths per mille.	Operations.	Deaths.	Deaths per mille.	Operations.	Deaths.	Deaths per mille.
1875 to 1876	604	500	414	182
1877	16	10	625	13	4	307	9	4	414	26
1878	7	3	428	16	7	437	8	15	3	230
1879	12	6	500	20	9	450	8	1	125	15	3	200
1880	16	4	260	15	3	230	12	4	333	7	1	142

From this table it appears that, in the most dangerous of these operations—amputation of the thigh—the results of the past year were singularly good. The number of cases was the same as in 1877, while the deaths were less than half as numerous as in that year. The leg and forearm operations were also very successful; while in arm amputations there were 4 deaths out of 12 against only 1 out of 16 in the two previous years. In the Medical College Hospital the results of the thigh operations were particularly striking. Here only 2 cases out of 10 ended fatally. The year before 2 out of 4 resulted in death, while the average death-rate from 1870 to 1877 was no less than 667 per mille. In the same hospital death supervened in 2 out of 5 cases of the much simpler operation of amputation of the arm, though 7 cases were operated in the two previous years without a single death. It may at once be said that 10 cases of thigh amputation could not be conducted with only 2 deaths, if there was anything in the construction of the building that necessarily fostered septic disease. In cases of scrotal tumour, a class of operation specially prone to the disease, there was also a reduction in mortality. Six persons died out of 54 treated, and the death-rate per mille was 1 against 123 in 1879 and 142 the average of the years between 1865 and 1875.

But the general improvement has been the result of a decrease in septic action is clearly established. Whether that decrease has or has not resulted from the employment of Professor Lister's system proper is not so clear.

Dr. Leod treated to conclusion 20 cases of scrotal tumour—11 on Lister's system and 9 otherwise. Of the former 2, and of the latter 1, ended fatally. Dr. Raye treated 14 cases with ordinary dressings, and of these 3 resulted in death. The Surgeon-General reports that the strict antiseptic system compared with the results of the five years 1875 to 1879, when modified antiseptics were used, represents a mortality in excess of the latter by 3·72 per cent. The comparative merits of the two systems can only be established by lengthened experience. Meanwhile, there can be no doubt that antiseptic practice has brought about great improvements in regard to general care and cleanliness in dealing with cases. So long as it is found that difficult cases can be successfully treated under the old system with due attention to these points, it will not be sufficient, in order to establish the efficacy of strict Listerism, to show that similar cases are also successfully treated according to it. Dr. Raye admits that Lister's dressings are very valuable in certain cases, and it appears that he uses them in all severe operations. But there is much practical truth in what he says in defence of his use of a less elaborate system, combined with cleanliness, in minor cases. It is important to bear in mind that the hospital is a teaching institution. Most of the students will be called upon in the course of their practice to treat a class of patients who will not be able to afford the expensive appliances required for strict Listerism. For the purposes of these students, it will be of little advantage that they should learn how to cure people with such means only as must in the majority of cases be out of their reach. Dr. Raye says: "For minor cases I used the ordinary and less elaborate dressings commonly employed in surgery, partly because I did not consider antiseptics needed in such cases, partly also because the cases in the wards being used for teaching purposes, I thought it desirable that the students should learn the more simple methods, and not imagine that no wound would heal without antiseptics, and with the object of impressing upon their attention that manipulative skill and cleanliness were in reality all that was necessary in most cases to secure perfect results." Without desiring in any way to fetter the discretion of the surgeons of the hospital in the use of appliances for the relief of the sick, or the pursuit of science, the Lieutenant-Governor considers that the practical view of the case should not be lost sight of. As regards septic disease generally, it appears that 56 cases of blood-poisoning in its various forms were treated in the surgical wards. Of these, only 17 originated in the Hospital—nine in Dr. McLeod's ward, and eight in Dr. Raye's ward. Of the former, four were cases of scrotal tumour. Of the latter, two were wholly beyond control, both being affected with "surgical kidney." Of the number of deaths after operation, 6, or 12·5 per cent, as against 20·9 per cent in 1879 were due to blood-poison, and in one of these the disease was present when the patient was admitted.

13. The number of patients treated by the Obstetric Physician shows a steady increase. The figures are—1875, 1,004; 1876, 1,153; 1877, 1,109; 1878, 1,238; 1879, 1,204; 1880, 1,277. There were 296 deliveries against 247 in 1879 and 216 in 1875. Of the women confined, 23 were Europeans, 88 East Indians, and 185 natives. On the recommendation of Dr. Charles, who administered the Obstetric Hospital for many years with remarkable success, the Lieutenant-Governor has decided to establish a certain number of stipends to enable women to study midwifery in the wards. There can be little doubt that the want of trained nurses in the interior of the country is severely felt.

14. The Ophthalmic Hospital shows a slight decrease in the number of in-patients and a considerable increase in the number of out-patients. The former numbered 516, against 523 in 1879 and 546 in 1878. The latter numbered 6,312 against 6,054 in 1879. The figures of results of operations which the Surgeon-General gives include apparently all eye operations at the different hospitals. It will be better to examine the statistics of the Ophthalmic Hospital only in future.

15. Enteric fever only appeared in the General and the Howrah Hospitals during the year. There were 6 cases in the first-named hospital against 11 in 1879, and 13 the average of the previous eight years. In Howrah there were 2 cases against 4 in 1879, 2 in 1878, and 4 in 1877. Before 1877 no cases of fever were recorded as enteric in this hospital. In the Mayo and Chandney Hospitals there have been no cases since 1876, and in the Campbell Hospital none since 1877. There was no enteric fever in the Medical College Hospital. There were 11 cases in 1879, and from 1871 to 1877 cases were regularly recorded. It is doubtful if these were all really cases of enteric fever.

16. The use of the cinchona febrifuge in substitution for quinine continues to increase. Of the former, 161lbs and of the latter 19lbs were used. In 1876 the proportions were 1lb and 195lbs respectively, and in 1877 47lbs and 101lbs. The value of the febrifuge has now been definitely established, and the public demand for it is increasing daily.

17. With reference to paragraph 31 of his report, the Surgeon-General should inform the officer in charge that it is not desirable that an experiment to test the fuller efficacy of Dr. MacCormac's prophylactic against cholera should be made in the hospitals. Attention can best be confined to the treatment of existing disease. The object of the Secretary of State in forwarding Dr. MacCormac's letters to the Government of India was merely that all medical officers might be made aware of the fact that in the year 1854 fifty cases of cholera occurred in a public institution at Belfast, that a mixture of dilute sulphuric acid and peppermint was administered to all the inmates as a prophylactic, and that the cessation of the outbreak was synchronous with the dosing of the establishment. This circumstance has been made known to all medical officers under this Government; and nothing further is required. The Surgeon-General very correctly remarks that the administration of sulphuric acid to persons under treatment for other diseases might be open to serious objection.

18. The total expenditure at the Medical College Hospital was Rs. 1,06,750 against Rs. 1,01,453 in 1879. The former sum, however, includes a charge of Rs. 10,872 for repairs, while the expenditure under this head in 1879 was only Rs. 2,887. The charge for medicines was reduced by the transfer of the out-patients to the Choonee Lal Seal Dispensary in the second-half of the year. The amount expended from the funds of the dispensary on this account was Rs. 2,712. The total cost of diets was Rs. 29,753 against Rs. 30,844 in 1879. In 1875 the cost was Rs. 48,209, and in 1876 it was Rs. 46,303. The average cost of diet, calculated on the number who actually consumed it, was 6 annas 6 pie for Europeans and 2 annas 10 pie for natives. The cost in 1879 was 6 annas 7½ pie and 3 annas 1 pie respectively. In the Mayo Hospital the average cost of native diets during the year was 2 annas 11 pie. The cost of stimulants was Rs. 531 against Rs. 806 in 1879, Rs. 814 in 1878, Rs. 3,530 in 1877, Rs. 4,607 in 1876, and Rs. 6,488 in 1875. Dr. Coates reports thus: "We have plenty of money to spare for any and everything required in the way of necessaries and delicacies, and we do not hesitate to spend freely in such cases. Every item that every officer has ordered for his patients has been supplied without question or enquiry; interference was not needed. The many lady visitors to the hospital, the various clergymen and scripture-readers, and the friends of the sick who stream into the hospital at all hours and converse freely and separately with the inmates, have in no one instance brought to our notice any deficiency or inferiority in the quality of the food and comforts given to the patients throughout the year." Arrangements have been made to secure unadulterated milk for the patients. It is quite clear that the existing rates are ample to secure a sufficient supply of wholesome food and stimulants for the patients. The Lieutenant-Governor remarked in the resolution on the last report that the funds of the special endowments should be fully utilized for the benefit of the poor patients discharged from the hospital. It is not stated why the disbursements from these funds only amounted to Rs. 834 in 1880 against Rs. 2,311 in 1879. The actual cost of the hospital to Government, exclusive of the salaries of the medical officers who are Professors of the College, was Rs. 97,829 against Rs. 94,933 in 1879. The expenditure in the Choonee Lal Seal Dispensary was Rs. 3,342. The income from the endowment is about Rs. 2,000. The excess of expenditure over income was met from the cash balance that had accumulated. The Lieutenant-Governor is informed that there was a good deal of initial expenditure on instruments and the like that need not be repeated.

19. The total expenditure at the General Hospital was Rs. 1,02,352 against Rs. 94,664 in 1879. The increase was chiefly the result of the increase in the daily average number of sick from 134 to 152. It was also found necessary to replace the old stock of clothing during the year. The receipts from paying-patients and from the Port Hospital Fund on account of seamen treated in the hospital amounted to Rs. 65,168 against Rs. 61,241 in 1879. The net cost to Government was Rs. 37,183 against Rs. 33,422. There was an increase in the expenditure on diet and stimulants from Rs. 23,908 in 1879 to Rs. 28,417; but the average was practically the same in both years, 7 annas 10 pie in 1880 and 7 annas 10 pie in 1879. The average expenditure on European medicines for the year was Rs. 34 against Rs. 30 in 1879. It is explained, however, that there was a considerable quantity of medicines in store at the beginning of 1879.

20. In the Campbell Hospital the expenditure of the year was Rs. 69,296 against Rs. 69,132 in 1879. Of this, Government contributed Rs. 37,562 and the Calcutta Municipality Rs. 30,000. Petty receipts from paying patients, the Port Hospital Fund, sale of grass, &c., aggregated Rs. 1,733. There was some increase in the expenditure on extras and stimulants, owing to the number of cases of severe accidents admitted during the year. The average cost of European diets was 7 annas 9 pie, 2 pie less than at the General Hospital. The average cost of each patient during the year was 2 annas 7½ pie against 2 annas 7½ pie in 1879, 2 annas 6 pie in 1878, and 3 annas 8 pie in 1877. There was an increase in the cost of European medicines, but it appears that here, as at the General Hospital, the wants of the hospital in 1879 were to some extent supplied from the surplus stock of the previous year.

21. The Mayo Hospital shows a reduction in gross expenditure from Rs. 59,774 to Rs. 55,159 and the Governors were able to add Rs. 2,500 to their vested capital of the Institution, while retaining a floating balance of Rs. 3,555 at the close of the year. The contribution from Government was Rs. 37,300, inclusive of Rs. 7,000 which the Lieutenant-Governor has, with the concurrence of the Governors, fixed as the annual grant to represent the value of medicines and forms previously supplied.

22. The Howrah Hospital opened the year with a cash balance of Rs. 13,191. The income of the year, Rs. 40,413, was made up of Rs. 8,650 from Government, Rs. 2,929 from Municipal Funds, Rs. 875 from interest on investments, Rs. 27,447 subscriptions from Europeans, chiefly from the East Indian Railway Company, British Indian Steam Navigation Company, Limited, and the manufacturing companies of the neighbourhood, and Rs. 512 subscriptions from natives. The hospital expenditure was Rs. 34,950 against Rs. 28,434 in the previous year. Investments to the amount of Rs. 17,251 were made, and the year closed with a cash balance of Rs. 1,403. There was an unexplained increase of Rs. 616 in the expenditure on European medicines, and the charges for diet were higher by Rs. 497 than in 1879. The average cost of European diets was 7 annas 11 pie,—the same as at the General Hospital,—and of native diets 1 anna 7 pie.

23. The daily average number of in-patients throughout the year in all the hospitals was 1,110.5 (303.5 Europeans and 807 natives), and the daily average number of out-patients was 1,960 (122 Europeans and 1,838 natives.) The total expenditure was Rs. 3,13,477, made up of Rs. 1,37,700 for establishment, Rs. 36,020 for medicines, Rs. 1,00,994 for diet, extras and stimulants, and Rs. 38,763 for miscellaneous charges, chiefly for repairs to buildings. Of the total amount of Rs. 3,13,477, Government contributed Rs. 2,33,642.

24. The changes in hospital administration, which were introduced by the Lieutenant-Governor on the report of the Committee on Medical Expenditure, have now been in operation for three years, and it is interesting to note their results as presented in the hospital returns. It is shown that while the expenditure has been largely reduced, there has been a considerable increase in the number of patients treated in the different hospitals and a decrease in the rate of mortality among them. The question of the sufficiency of the scales for the wants of the sick in hospital has now passed beyond the range of controversy, while Dr. Coates' report, quoted above in paragraph 18, shows how false were the assertions that the medical officers were stinted in the supply of articles necessary for the health and comfort of the sick. The value of the allegations that the hospitals would lose their attractiveness for the sick, and that the latter would suffer from want of necessaries, because a check was placed upon wasteful expenditure, may be seen from the following figures. The year 1877 is omitted as it was one of transition:—

Both 1875 and 1878 were unhealthy years. On the other hand the Campbell Hospital was partly closed in 1880 for repairs, and there was consequently a decrease of 1,190 in the number of indoor patients. The following are the figures under the head of diet and stimulants. Separate figures are not available for 1874. The cost of medicines in each hospital was not regularly given in the earlier reports, so that materials for exhaustive comparison under this head are wanting.

Thus, while the number of patients increased and the ratio of deaths decreased in the three years 1878-80, there was a large decrease, instead of a corresponding increase, in expenditure.

APPENDIX I.

Report by the First Surgeon, Medical College Hospital, on Antiseptic Surgery.

THE number and varieties of septic diseases treated during the year were as follow :—

Pyæmia	...	3 cases.	3 deaths.
Septicæmia	..	3 "	3 "
Erysipelas	...	7 "	2 "
Gangrenous cellulitis	...	2 "	1 "
Total	...	15 "	9 "

The number of cases treated in the wards during the year was 577, and the number of which occurred amongst these, 63.

Out of these 15 cases, six, namely two cases of pyæmia, one of septicæmia, two of erysipelas, and one of gangrenous cellulitis, were admitted into hospital with the disease developed. That disease of septic type occurs in Calcutta, beyond the precincts of

I have had abundant evidence in practice. I have lately met with a case of

of the face following removal of a wen from the scalp by operation, a severe case of "idiopathic" cutaneous erysipelas affecting the general surface, and a fatal case of facial erysipelas of very severe type and rapid course.

3. Of the remaining nine cases, seven followed operation and were unquestionably caused thereby. Of these, four were cases of erysipelas, three of which occurred in cases of scrotal tumour. A case of pyæmia followed removal of an osseous tumour of the lower jaw; septicæmia followed removal of the larynx, and sloughing cellulitis supervened after a scrotal operation. Two out of the seven were cases of removal of scrotal elephantiasis. These have always been found very specially prone to hospitalism. The wound is a very large one, the period of its repair very protracted, the constitutional rigour of the subjects of the disease generally below par, and sources of contamination exist adjacent to the sore. Of the remaining two cases, one was a wound which had been incised with filth and went rapidly "wrong," and the other was a case of ulcer in process of healing, which seemed in some mysterious way to be the starting point of erysipelas.

4. Having been in charge of the Second Surgeon's wards from 1st April 1874 to 15th June 1875, I am in a position to compare, on the grounds of personal experience, two periods separated by an interval of five years. I have no hesitation in stating that the prevalence of "hospitalism" has been very decidedly less in the year 1880 than in 1874-75. Erysipelas then prevailed epidemically in the hospital, and almost every entry of the knife into tissue was succeeded by cellulitis or erysipelas, and occasionally by the graver form of septic infection. I practised what I thought was antiseptic surgery, and was grievously disappointed with the result. It was not until I went to Edinburgh in 1876, and followed Professor Lister in his wards, that I became aware that what I had been doing was not in full accord with his tenets and teaching, and that a "modified antiseptic" system is a delusion.

5. This leads me to offer some remarks on antiseptic surgery with special regard to its preventive control over "hospitalism." The fact that "hospitalism" has decreased with the increased use of antiseptics is undeniable. Other influences may have been in operation, but I am inclined to attach to these a secondary value. Not one of the cases in which I have succeeded in carrying out strict "Listerism" since I rejoined the hospital in April 1879 has manifested any sign or form of septic infection. In the seven post-operation cases referred to in paragraph 3, either Listerism could not be employed (cases 3, 4, 7), was not employed (case 15), or having been tried failed (cases 11, 12, 13). In the treatment of the other cases, "Listerism," for various reasons, could not be established. Short of rigid "Listerism," however, that is maintenance of a perfectly aseptic state of wound or sore, and complete prevention of putrefaction from beginning to end of the case, the "modified antiseptic" or disinfectant plan of treatment must exercise an advantageous influence on the patient by way of diminishing the risk of septic infection, and a still greater one on the ward and hospital by way of preventing contamination of the atmosphere, &c., with septic impurities.

6. But I believe that the practice of strict antiseptic surgery confers other very substantial advantages in addition to the prevention of septic infection, by aborting the development of septic products in a wound or sore. It reduces mortality, diminishes suffering, and accelerates repair and recovery. When it succeeds, local inflammation and general febrile disturbance are absent, and the natural reparative processes are fulfilled without hindrance. The practice is rather preventive of mischief than corrective of it. When mischief, local or constitutional, does set in, the disinfectant plan may limit its harmful influence, but the aim of antiseptic surgery is mainly preventive, and the scope of its operation embraces a large portion, but not the whole, of the field of practical surgery.

7. It is difficult from bare figures to prove absolute reduction of mortality in operative surgery. So many circumstances, which cannot be represented arithmetically, enter into the question. In 1879 I find that the mortality of operations in the Second Surgeon's ward, of which I was in charge for nine months, was 18 per cent. In 1880 the mortality of operations similarly tabulated in the First Surgeon's ward has been about 10 per cent. I attribute the reduction to the more careful and successful practice of antiseptic surgery. The operations were not less severe, nor the circumstances demanding them less serious, in the one period than in the other. The statistics of particular operations support the general conclusion: 13 amputations, including four of the thigh, two of the shoulder joint, three of the arm, two of the leg, one of the forearm, and one of the hand,—all recovered. In some of these cases the conditions—injuries and diseases—necessitating removal of limb were severe, and the constitutional condition of the patient by no means promising. The cases in which the antiseptic system succeeded best recovered best and fastest. In one case that of a child of two and a half years, in which amputation of the arm was performed for enormous sarcoma of the forearm, I allowed the friends to take the little patient home. The child was brought to hospital every second or third day to be dressed, and the result was perfect repair in 13 days. There was no death among 10 operations for removal of necrotic and carious bone, in which the sound bone surrounding was freely divided. In two cases of scirrhus of the mamma I cleared out the axilla, thoroughly removing all its glands, and both recovered satisfactorily. I shall not carry the analysis further, as I intend publishing a précis of all the cases in the Indian Medical Gazette. The general result of the year's experience is greatly in favour of strict antiseptic surgery.

8. I have already remarked on the great difficulty experienced in keeping the large wounds resulting from the removal of serotal tumours aseptic, and the special proneness of these to become the nidus of septic infection. In 1879 five of these cases contracted erysipelas, and in 1880 three. I have endeavoured to treat these cases during the past six months in accordance with strict Listerism. In all cases in which I have succeeded in arresting putridity, the result has been most satisfactory as regards rapidity of repair and avoidance of constitutional disturbance. Surgical sepsis may roughly be classed as reactive, irritative, or absorptive. Listerism abolishes the last, which is also the most severe and dangerous, and this has been remarkably illustrated in these serotal operations. Only one case in which septicity was thwarted has died, and that from causes which I could not associate with the state of the wound. Indeed, so speedy and perfect was the repair in this instance that I removed the parts after death, and exhibited them to the Medical Society as a good illustration of rapid repair of a severe injury under antiseptic precautions. Failures will occur in many of these cases, owing to circumstances which it is difficult to anticipate or control; but my experience has taught me that even here strict antiseptic practice is capable of saving much suffering and some lives.

9. I am not so sanguine as to believe and assert that Listerism is capable of abolishing hospitalism entirely. Septic diseases, according to the most recent doctrines, possess a threefold causation,—constitutional, hygienic, and local. In so far as the practice of antiseptic surgery prevents putrefaction and other septic changes in wound, it removes the local cause and tends also to minimize the hygienic cause. Over constitutional defects it exercises less influence. But if secondary fever is added to original constitutional debility, vital resistance is thereby lowered, and by obviating secondary fevers antiseptics also attack and weaken the third causative factor. It is necessary, however, to guard against neglect of the personal and hygienic elements of the question in working at and discussing the local element.

10. On the whole, the experience of the past year has impressed me with a conviction of the immense value of strict antiseptic surgery in procuring the recovery of persons afflicted with wounds or sores, and preventing the occurrence of conditions retarding cure or causing death. I have come to consider it a sacred and imperative duty to endeavour, to the best of my ability and means, to prevent every breach of surface, whether wound or sore, from becoming the seat of septic change; and if it has already done so, to correct the vice and restore it to sweetness. In slight cases the process is easy and inexpensive; in severe, it requires greater trouble and involves more cost. It is impossible, however, in the most trivial case, say a small stab, or slight scalp wound, to be certain that septic contamination of the wound may not result in profound and fatal septic infection; on that account I teach and practise in every surgical case which I treat, as close an approach to absolute Listerism, which may be called the perfection of surgical cleanliness, as possible.

11. The appliances used are now all prepared in the hospital; and, looking to the comparatively infrequent change of dressings, the speedier convalescence and the diminished consumption of alcoholic stimulants, I suspect that the strict pursuance of antiseptic surgery does not, on the whole, materially add to the cost of treating patients in the surgical wards. I have very seldom found it necessary to prescribe alcohol in any form to patients during the past year, and when I have ordered stimulants it has mostly been in consequence of septic fever having somehow occurred.

APPENDIX II.

Report by the Second Surgeon, Medical College Hospital, on Antiseptic Surgery.

I use the word septicæmia in its fullest sense, including pyæmia proper, and even the mildest forms of erysipelas.

By antiseptics I mean the method of dressing wounds introduced by Professor Lister, and mainly consisting of a free use of carbolic acid in various ways.

Using the word antiseptics in this full sense, I should mention that I have not employed them indiscriminately in all cases, but only for the more severe operations, such as amputations, hernias, and large chronic abscesses, &c. For minor cases I used the ordinary and less elaborate dressings commonly employed in surgery, partly because I did not consider antiseptics needed in such cases, partly also because the cases in the wards being utilised for teaching purposes, I thought it desirable that the students should learn the more simple methods and not imagine that no wound would heal without antiseptics, and with the object of impressing upon their attention that manipulative skill and cleanliness were in reality all that was necessary in most cases to secure perfect results. The practical inculcating of such a doctrine is, I consider, of great importance amongst students whose practice will hereafter be amongst people unable to give such large fees as would secure the, to them, somewhat expensive appliances necessary for carrying out Listerism in every-day work.

The number of cases of septic poisoning, mild and severe, treated has been considerable; were I to attend merely to figures, I could not say that in my hands antiseptics have been very successful, but figures notwithstanding, I think I may safely state the following opinions:—

1. In severe recent open wounds, whether following operations or accidents, antiseptics thoroughly applied do afford the patient a considerable degree of safety and materially reduce the chance of his contracting the severer forms of septic disease. I shall adduce but one fact bearing on this point. There were 16 amputations of all sorts performed by me during the year, all dressed antiseptically; amongst these 16 cases so treated, osteomyelitis occurred but once, and in that case it was doubtful whether the bone was not affected before the operation.

I doubt if antiseptics have much effect in controlling the spread of simple erysipelas; for I noticed that, when once introduced into the wards, this disease attacked patients dressed antiseptically or non-antiseptically with about equal impartiality.

When severe septicæmia has once been established in the system, I believe that antiseptic dressings to a wound have absolutely no effect in controlling the progress of the disease. Whether by disinfecting the discharges in such cases they may protect other patients is a different question, and I am inclined to think that they might do so.

In treating large chronic abscesses, such as iliac and psoas abscess, Lister's dressing seems to me invaluable. In the few such cases which came under my care, putrefaction of the abscess contents was controlled in a way that surpasses any other dressing with which I am acquainted.

It is a matter of difficulty to fairly estimate the value of any solitary measure or mode of treatment in controlling septic diseases; for not only are the causes of such diseases probably various, but now-a-days no single precautionary measure is, I fancy, ever trusted to; general cleanliness of the wards and beds, as well as of the dressings, antiseptic or otherwise, needing much care.

As an instance of the effects of cleanliness, I would point to the first five cases in the table appended. Finding the disease (erysipelas) spreading, I had all the dressings in use changed, and Dr. Smith had the sacking of the beds destroyed, as they were old and greatly soiled. After this the disease ceased. Here no antiseptics were used. Cleanliness alone, combined with careful dressing in the ordinary way, and isolation of the dressers to individual cases, seemed sufficient.

Some of the cases of erysipelas which occurred during the year were clearly imported from outside; some seemed to originate in the tents and wards, but by isolation of patients and dressers, and cleanliness in the dressings, the disease never assumed any formidable proportions.

Having had no personal experience of the hospital in former years, I cannot compare the results attained by the present more close attention to antiseptic surgery with what was attained in former years, except by statistics, and for such a purpose crude figures would not be of any value.

It should not be overlooked that our predecessors at this hospital also used antiseptics of various kinds before the present elaborate use of carbolic acid became the general fashion, and many of the leading London surgeons stoutly maintain that some of the older antiseptic media are quite as good as the new, and publicly challenge Professor Lister and his disciples to a practical comparison of the results. The difficulty therefore of judging of the effects of Listerism, as opposed to the other methods of dressing wounds, is obviously very great.

I append a tabular statement of all cases in which any form of septic disease appeared in my wards during the year. It should be noticed that this table includes mild cases of transitory erysipelas and other mild septic diseases. A large number of these patients were admitted for diseases other than septicæmic, and hence would not appear in an annual return as having suffered from septic poisoning. For instance,—a patient is admitted suffering from abscess; he gets mild cutaneous erysipelas for a few days while under treatment for the abscess. Such a patient would appear only as a case of abscess, and the erysipelas would not be noticed any more than if he had had diarrhoea for a day or two.

The inclusion of such cases swells the table appended considerably.

Excluding milder cases, which must, I fear, always be expected to appear from time to time in hospitals, the severer cases numbered 17. These 17 cases are of two classes—those occurring primarily in the hospital, of which there were eight; and those admitted already suffering from blood poisoning, numbering nine.

Of the eight severe cases which originated in the hospital, two were wholly beyond control,—namely a lithotrity and a lithotomy case, both affected with “surgical kidney,” and neither therefore capable of being saved by any hygienic or antiseptic means. This reduces the number of possibly preventible severe cases occurring in the wards to six.

In conclusion, although I would never hope to absolutely prevent septicæmia—for it occurs even in cases in which there is no wound nor injury—yet I think that a careful use of antiseptics combined with hospital cleanliness may reduce the number of cases occurring in hospital to smaller figures.

REPORT ON THE WORKING OF THE JUTE WAREHOUSE AND FIRE-BRIGADE ACT IN CALCUTTA.

No. 29, dated Calcutta, the 2nd June 1881.

From—H. L. HARRISON, Esq., Offg. Chairman of the Corporation of the Town of Calcutta,

To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Financial Department.

My predecessor in his letter No. 76, dated the 24th of June 1880, reported on the working of the Jute Warehouse and Fire-brigade Act from 1st of January 1879 to the 31st of March 1880, and I have now the honor to submit the following report for the year ending 31st March last.

2. The report showed that 75 jute warehouses had been licensed within the town of Calcutta on the 31st of March 1880. In the month of April 1880, the premises Nos. 56-57, Strand Road, were divided, the number therefore that stood in the register for the year 1880-81 was 76, but only 68 owners have taken out licenses for the entire year, showing a decrease of 8, which is accounted for as follows:—

1. No. 24, Hurro Chunder Mullick's Lane was refused a license as the premises were not in a satisfactory state; a license was, however, granted from the third quarter, after the necessary repairs had been effected and approved of by the Engineer to the Corporation.
2. No. 6, Beniatollah Street.
3. Nos. 93 to 96, Chitpore Road.
4. No. 178, Upper Chitpore Road, &c.

The above warehouses having been closed, were struck off the list.

5. No. 113, Bowbazar Street.
6. No. 202, Durmahatta Street.
7. Nos. 1 to 5 and 10 to 15, Manick Bose's Ghât Street.
8. No. 27, Strand Road.

Licenses were not applied for for the above four premises as it was stated that jute was not stored in them. The godowns No. 113, Bowbazar Street, however, took fire on the 8th November last, when it was discovered that a quantity of jute had been surreptitiously stored in them. The parties were convicted and fined Rs. 50. The remaining three were kept closed.

3. Five new warehouses were completed, but only four license from the dates on which business was commenced up to the 31st March. The total number therefore of jute warehouses licensed on the 31st of March 1881 was 73, as per list annexed.

4. During the year there were only three prosecutions under the Act. One, as above stated, against the occupiers of No. 113, Bowbazar Street, and two under section 6, clause 2, for drying jute on the roofs without sanction of the Commissioners. The parties were fined Rs. 50 each, but the amount does not appear in the accounts as it was not remitted from the Police Office till after the close of the year.

5. Orders were passed during the year to extend the operations of the Act to warehouses for hemp and flax, but no income is anticipated from this source. A list has been prepared of all the cotton shops liable to pay for a license, but the receipts from this source will be very trifling. The question of how to raise the income of the jute fund so as to equal the expenditure is now before the Commissioners, and will shortly form the subject of a separate report.

6. The following statement shows how the account stood at the close of the year ending 31st March 1881:—

REPORT ON THE ADMINISTRATION OF CIVIL JUSTICE IN THE SONTHAL PERGUNNAHS DURING THE YEAR 1880.

JUDICIAL.

Dated Darjeeling, the 6th June 1881.

RESOLUTION.

The Annual Report on the Administration of Civil Justice in the Sonthal Pergunnahs for the year 1880.

Read again—

The Reports for 1878 and 1879, and the orders of Government recorded upon them.

The progress of litigation in the Sonthal Pergunnahs during the past three years is shown in the following statement :—

2. As regards civil suits, the year was in every respect a normal one, and there was no cause operating to any extent either to repress or stimulate litigation. The excitement and fear that prevailed in connection with the census prevented the people in some parts of the district from attending the courts in order to file their plaints; but this was not until the middle of December, and the litigation of the year was therefore not materially affected. The preparations for the census, however, interfered very considerably with the disposal of the judicial work before the courts, and the result was a falling off in the number of each class of cases disposed of as compared with the returns of the previous year. Altogether the number of cases—civil and revenue suits and executions of decrees—disposed of in the past year fell short of the number disposed of in 1879 by more than two thousand cases, and short of the number disposed of in 1878 by more than four thousand cases. Owing, however, to the great decrease in the number of cases in the past four years, the total number of cases pending at the close of the year 1880 was only 453 in excess of the number pending at the close of the previous year and 379 less than the number pending at the close of the year 1878. Of the total number of cases pending at the close of the year, 921 were civil suits; but as there is now no special work to engross the attention of the local officers, the Lieutenant-Governor trusts that the return for the present quarter will show that a large proportion of these cases has been disposed of. Of the total number of civil cases on the file during the year, 79 per cent. were for unredeemed credit, as compared with 76 per cent. in 1879. The number of cases for damages and mesne profits was 313, for marriage expenses 153, and for breach of contract 67. The percentage of civil suits disposed of on their merits was 63, the same as in the previous year, and one per cent. more than in 1878. The percentages in the different sub-divisions were 58, 66, 70, and 56 in Doomka, Rajmehal, Deoghur, and Godda respectively; the percentages of cases dismissed in default of the plaintiff's appearance in the same sub-divisions being 25, 20, 13, and 25 respectively. Of the 3,842 cases tried on their merits in the different courts in 1880, 3,032, or 79 per cent., were decided in favour of the plaintiffs, as compared with 78 per cent. in 1879. Treating cases dismissed on default of the plaintiff's appearance as determined in favour of the defendant, and cases compromised as in favour of the plaintiff, the percentage of cases disposed of in which the result showed that there was good ground for action was 64 in 1880, against 62 in 1879.

3. The following statement of the number of revenue suits instituted in the past seven years shows the return of this class of litigation to its normal condition after the extraordinary stimulus of the settlement :—

1874.	1875.	1876.	1877.	1878.	1879.	1880.
3,431	7,518	18,254	10,990	6,767	5,070	4,652

The decrease was general throughout the district, except in the Godda sub-division, where there was an increase in suits for arrears of rent owing to special causes mentioned in the Commissioner's report. Even including the returns of Godda, there was a decrease of 607 in the total number of suits for arrears as compared with the returns of 1879. This result is satisfactory, and the Lieutenant-Governor sees no reason to doubt that the cause assigned for the decrease—the certainty which has followed the settlement—is the true one. Of the 5,251 revenue cases on the file during the year, 2,992 were for arrears of rent and 1,660 for possession of jote land. The percentage of cases decided on their merits was 72, against 68 in 1879 and 67 in 1878. The proportion of cases decided in favour of the plaintiffs also rose by 5 per cent. during the past year, and there was a considerable decrease in the number of cases dismissed in default of the plaintiff's appearance. These facts appear to indicate, as remarked by the Commissioner, that the falling off has been mainly in the number of trivial and groundless cases instituted. As usual, the highest proportion of cases decided in favour of the plaintiff and the lowest proportion of cases struck off in default of the plaintiff's appearance were in the Deoghur sub-division.

4. The number of appeals preferred against the decisions of the Subordinate Civil and Revenue Courts bears a very small proportion to the number of original suits. Including cases pending from the previous year, there were only 94 appeals in civil cases and 127 appeals in revenue cases preferred to Sub-Divisional Officers from the orders of their subordinates; in 36 of the civil cases and 26 of the revenue cases the decisions of the lower courts were modified or reversed. There were 115 appeals in civil cases and 131 appeals in revenue cases preferred to the Deputy Commissioner, and in 29 of the former and 37 of the latter cases the orders of the lower courts were modified or reversed. The Commissioner heard 13 appeals from the decisions of the Deputy Commissioner in civil suits and 14 appeals from his decisions in revenue suits; in ten of the civil appeals and eleven of the revenue appeals the orders of the Deputy Commissioner were upheld. Nineteen appeals were made to the High Court in cases above Rs. 1,000 in value, but only eleven of the cases were disposed of during the year, with the result that the orders of the local courts were confirmed in six cases, reversed in four cases, and modified in one case.

5. The provisions against usury in section 6 of the Settlement Regulations, were enforced in only 28 civil and 13 revenue cases, against 133 and 96 cases respectively in 1879, and 271 and 94 cases respectively in 1878. As has been notified in former Resolutions, the effect of the law against usury is now almost entirely preventive, nearly all the old borrowers charging excessive rates of interest having fallen in. The operation of the Usury Law resulted, so far as the courts were concerned, in the remission of only Rs. 552 in civil suits and Rs. 64 in revenue suits.

6. The remarks of the Commissioner and Deputy Commissioner on the several officers who took part in the administration of civil justice during the past year will be noted in the Appointment Department of the Secretariat. By the retirement of Mr. Wilmot, the district of the Sonthal Pergunnahs has lost an officer whose promptitude and firmness in judicial work have for many years been favourably noticed by both the local officers and Government.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

HORACE A. COCKERELL,

Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal.

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are reduced from the traces of the barograph and thermograph, and from observations made at 6h, 10h, 15h, and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The direction of the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckiev's anemograph.

R. G. MOOKERJEE, Manager.

Remarks on Traffic of East Indian Railway for four weeks ending 23rd April 1881.

The approximate figures for the period are as follow :—

	Coaching.		Goods.		Total.	Materials carried on revenue account, including maintenance.
	No.	Ra.	Mds.	Ra.	Ra.	Mds.	Ra.
1881	640,875	9,70,343	66,34,423	22,36,324	32,06,567	13,61,150	78,200

Increase	54,663	40,062
Decrease	7,346	1,72,253	1,17,590	1,76,230	28,316

The total traffic exhibits a falling off of 3½ per cent.

A comparative statement of the passenger traffic is appended—

Coaching traffic for four weeks ending 23rd April 1881, and four weeks ending 24th April 1880

	First Class.		Second Class.		Intermediate.		Third Class.		Total.

Decrease	2,115	1,908	4,045	6,730	3,428	6,457

In goods the weight carried has increased, but the receipts have fallen by 7 per cent., and this is to be attributed to have staples having largely increased in weight carried; but owing to the short distance conveyed over this line, the receipts many not risen in proportion.

The staple statement shows the following fluctuations :—

REMARKS.

Cotton.—Despatches from Cawnpore and Agra to Allahabad improved slightly.

Coal, upwards.—There is an increase of 20,000 cunds of coal sent upwards from Giridi.

Firewood.—Principally despatched from stations on the Jubbulpore line adjacent to Allahabad to that place for local consumption.

Rice.—The demand in Calcutta for export was fair, but not so good as last year; carriage of rice to up-country stations continued during the month.

Other grains and pulses.—Show an increase which may be attributed to the demand in the North-West.

Iron.—Prices in Calcutta being favourable to buyers, advantage was taken to obtain supplies.

Jaggree.—The unusual demand for this article in Rajpootana and the Central Provinces has led to large despatches chiefly from Oudh and Rohilund and Gya divisions.

Salt.—A small increase as compared with last year, but of little moment.

Seeds.—The increase in traffic via Jubbulpore is obtained chiefly from Kutnoo, Sutra, and Allahabad stations.

Tobacco.—Owing to plentiful crops the movement of tobacco has been unusually brisk.

DECREASES.

Coal, downwards.—Limited demand in Calcutta for country coal led to reduced despatches from most of the collieries.

Government Ordnance and Commissariat stores.—Show a falling off of Rs. 32,000 owing to the cessation of Military operations.

Wheat.—A considerable decrease is shown against this staple, owing to the export trade during April having been very dull.

Hides.—Calcutta market reports explain that business was restricted, and exports small owing to short arrivals.

Piece-goods.—The depression seems to be owing to the absence of demand in the interior of the country.

Railway material, foreign.—Has a decrease of Rs. 21,220 in receipts, although the weight carried was increased.

Sugar.—Has decreased probably owing to the large demand for jaggree, and the absence of the enquiry there was last year in the Punjab.

The train mileage for the period has been, excluding maintenance and locomotive coal—after such child's arrival at Calcutta, or if the child be at the time of its arrival less than one year old, within one year and three months after its birth, and the parent or guardian of every unprotected child living in the Town of Calcutta at the date of this Act coming into force, and whose age at such date exceeds one year, but does not exceed fourteen years, shall, within six months from the said date, take it, or cause it to be taken, to a public vaccine station to be vaccinated, or shall within such time as aforesaid, cause it to be vaccinated by some public vaccinator.

5. Vaccinators should endeavour to ascertain—

If there be a failure of one or more points, they should be careful to repeat vaccination at those points, and enter the same on the remark column of the vaccine register. The vaccinators shall again direct the parent or guardian to bring these children once more on the seventh or eighth day that they may ascertain and enter in their register the final result of the operation.

form of schedule (A).

12. This certificate shall remain in force for three months, but shall be renewable for successive periods of three months until the vaccinator shall deem the child to be in a fit state for vaccination, when the child shall, with all reasonable despatch, be vaccinated, and a certificate of successful vaccination given in the form of schedule (C) if warranted by the result.

13. A public vaccinator shall on no account charge any person for granting certificates.

14. Every public vaccinator who gives to any parent or guardian a certificate in any of the forms of schedules (A), (B), and (C), shall, within 21 days after giving the same, transmit a duplicate thereof to the Registrar of Births of the police section where the birth of the child on whose account such certificate was given has been registered, or in which the child, if its birth has not been registered, resides.

15. When a public vaccinator attends at the request of the parent or guardian elsewhere than at a public vaccine station for the purpose of vaccinating a child, he shall charge a fee of four annas for every such vaccination. He is to inspect the child on the 4th and 7th or 8th day, and grant certificates as in cases of vaccination in the stations. No fee is to be charged for inspection and for granting certificates.

16. Public vaccinators are to grant printed receipts for amounts paid to them as fees. These amounts are to be deposited at the office of the Superintendent of Vaccination every Saturday, or oftener if the Superintendent of Vaccination so orders. The vaccinators are warned not to misappropriate any portion of the fees to themselves, for if they do so they are liable not only to be dismissed from the department, but also to be criminally prosecuted.

17. To ensure successful vaccination, the following cardinal points are to be remembered by every vaccinator—viz. good virus, a clean lancet, and the healthy constitution of the person to be vaccinated. The first two rules should have no exception at all. Vaccinators should use none but the best virus; they should remember that vaccination with bad virus is worse than no vaccination; for it not only does not protect the person from attack of small-pox, but brings discredit on both the vaccinator and the vaccination. The vaccinators should not only use good virus, but take it from those persons only who are free from constitutional diseases, especially syphilis. Lymph should never be taken from a child who has an eruption on his skin, lumps about the anus or genital organs, bad teeth, or a sore throat or cold. In fact, none but perfectly healthy children should be used as subjects for conveyance of lymph. A clean lancet should invariably be used; when a foul lancet is used, it produces an amount of irritation in the vesicles which renders success doubtful. In ordinary times persons vaccinating pregnant women.

Healthy persons are only to be vaccinated in ordinary times.
Exception in times of epidemic.

18. In cases of good and successful vaccination, the following phenomena are observed in the places where the virus is inserted:—No change takes place until the third day, when the points of insertion of the virus appear like red spots or mosquito bites. On the fourth day these spots look like little pimples. On the fifth and sixth days the pimples enlarge into vesicles and contain clear lymph. On the seventh day the vesicles are fully developed. On the eighth day areolæ form around the vesicles. There is sympathetic fever from this day. On the ninth day the contents of the vesicles become perfectly yellow, and the surrounding inflammation becomes more intense. After the tenth day a crust gradually forms, brownish-black in colour and of considerable thickness, and should fall off from the 18th to the 20th day, or two days earlier in the hot season. It should leave a well depressed cicatrix, with marked edges and floor lined and pitted.

The period at which the lymph is to be taken.

19. Sixth and seventh day in the winter season, and fifth and sixth day in the hot and rainy seasons.

20. In taking lymph the vesicles are to be punctured from the top, and not from the side. If the vesicles be punctured at the side, the inner septa of the vesicles would prevent the flowing of the lymph into the seat of puncture. The upper surface should not be scraped off. It should only be punctured, and if the lancet be placed flatly an abundance of lymph will flow on it.

Manner of taking the lymph.

The lymph thus taken on the point of the lancet is to be inserted in at least four different places, two on each arm, one above and the other below the insertion of the deltoid muscles, from an inch to an inch and half apart from each other. The virus is to be inserted below the scurf or upper skin, but not deep enough to draw blood. Three such punctures are to be made in each place thus !!!

Manner of inserting the lymph.

21. The vaccinators must be kind and courteous towards the people that come to the public vaccine stations to have their children vaccinated. The people from their ignorance of the vaccine disease will ask many useless and tedious questions of the vaccinators, but the latter should not get annoyed at this. They should particularly explain everything which the parent or guardian of vaccinated children may want to know. While vaccinating at private houses they should be equally kind and courteous in their manners, and although the law does not prohibit their taking any reward or present from persons able and willing to pay, they should make no demands.

B. Instructions to Registrars.

1. The Bengal Vaccination Act, 1880 (Act V of 1880), requires of Registrars of Births the following duties connected with compulsory vaccination, in addition to those duties relating to the registration of births and deaths which the law imposes upon them:—

2. On the registration of the birth of a child, the Registrar shall deliver to the person giving information of such birth a printed notice in the form of schedule E appended to the Act.

Section 18.

3. The Act further requires the parents and guardians of children under 14 years of age not born, but brought to reside, whether temporarily or permanently, in the Town of Calcutta, to have them vaccinated within six months of arrival, or, if at the time of arrival they are below one year of age, within 15 months of birth. On such cases coming to the knowledge of Registrars, a notice should be served in schedule E altered according to circumstances. Such cases should be included in the register of vaccination, column 4 being left blank.

4. These notices will be issued to Registrars in the form of a book, each notice having a counterfoil which will, when filled in, constitute the minutes of the notices required by section 20 of the Act.

5. Vaccinators are directed by the Act, when a person or child is successfully vaccinated, to transmit to the Registrar a duplicate copy of the certificate (Schedule C), the original of which has been handed to the parent, or guardian, or person. Similarly, when the vaccinator considers it advisable to postpone vaccination on account of ill-health or unfitness from any other cause, a certificate to that effect (Schedule A) is given to the parent, or guardian, or person, and a duplicate thereof sent to the Registrar; and when a person or child is found insusceptible of vaccination, a certificate (Schedule B) is given, and a duplicate sent to the Registrar. These duplicate certificates (Schedules A, B, and C) of postponed, unsuccessful, and successful vaccination should be filed in separate bundles, and the information conveyed by them entered in the proper columns of the registers.

6. A register of vaccination will be kept in the following form, of which columns 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5 will be filled up on issue of the notice (Schedule E), and the remaining columns on receipt of the duplicate certificate mentioned in the last paragraph:—

Section 21.

Register of Vaccination for Section—

Serial No.	Name of Child.	Date of birth.	No. of entry in register of birth.	Date of notice—Schedule E.	Date of certificate of successful vaccination—Schedule C.	Date of certificate of insusceptibility—Schedule B.	Signature of Registrar.
------------	----------------	----------------	------------------------------------	----------------------------	---	---	-------------------------

7. An additional column will be in future added to the ordinary "Register of Births" in which an entry will be made to the "number in Vaccination Register." Thus these two registers—the "Register of Births" and the "Vaccination Register"—will contain references to each other, and no difficulty can be experienced in ascertaining whether a certificate has been received regarding the vaccination of any child whose birth has been registered.

8. When a certificate has been received of the postponement of vaccination (Schedule A), an entry should be made in the special "Register of postponed vaccination" (Schedule F) prescribed by the Act. Care should be taken that a child, regarding whom a certificate of this kind is received, is eventually vaccinated, and unless a renewed certificate of postponement has been received, an entry should be made of the name in the return alluded to in the next paragraph.

9. As soon after the first of every month as possible a return will be forwarded to the Superintendent of Vaccination in the following form, showing the cases in which notice has been given or certificate of postponement has been received, and the period mentioned in the notice or certificate of postponement has expired without receipt of a certificate of successful vaccination or insusceptibility (Schedule B or C). A case once returned in this form need not be entered again except in the instance of a fresh postponement:—

Return of cases in which notice of vaccination has been served, but Certificate has not been received, for the month of

Name of child.	Name of parent or guardian.	Residence.	Date of issue of notice.
----------------	-----------------------------	------------	--------------------------

10. The stations, days, and hours of vaccination are as follows:—

In the Town and Port of Calcutta.

Stations.	Police sections.	Days of attendance.	Hours for vaccination.
1 Chitpore Dispensary	A & B	Monday, Wednesday, and Friday	7 to 9 A. M.
2 Mayo Hospital	E & G	Tuesday and Saturday	Idto.
3 Beaton Street (Deputy Supdt.'s house)	C, D, & F	Monday, Wednesday, and Friday	Idto.
4 Medical College Hospital	H & I	Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday	Idto.
5 Municipal Office	J, K, L, and M	Monday, Wednesday, and Friday	Idto.

7 Hastings Hospital	R	Monday and Friday	Idto.
8 Kola Ghat	The Port	Wednesday	9 to 11 A. M.

11. It is obviously desirable, for the purpose of ensuring that every child born in the Town of Calcutta shall be vaccinated, that every endeavour should be made to render the registration of births as perfect as possible. Every endeavour should therefore be made to ascertain and cause the registration of every birth occurring in the station.

2. Whenever a public vaccinator finds that a child, who ought to have been vaccinated according to the above provisions, remains unprotected, he should ask the parent or guardian of such child to have it forthwith vaccinated, and explain to him the liabilities he would incur if he declines to do so; and if the parent or guardian of such unprotected child does not comply with the vaccinator's requisition, the latter should at once bring the matter to the notice of the Superintendent of Vaccination that legal proceedings may be taken against the parent or guardian of such unprotected child.

5. Vaccinators should endeavour to ascertain—

(a) Whether children born in the Suburban Municipality have had their births registered at the police-station of the section, and been served with notices. Information ought at once to be given to the Registrar in cases in which this duty has been neglected.

(b) Whether any child under 14 years of age, not protected by vaccination, inoculation, or small-pox, has been brought to reside in the Suburban Municipality. In such case also information ought to be given at the police-station in order that a notice may be served.

6. In order to facilitate the vaccination of all these unprotected persons, public vaccine stations have been opened in the different parts of the Municipality. The days and hours of public vaccinators' attendance at these public vaccine stations have also been fixed. Public vaccinators attached to each of these vaccine stations must attend at them on the specified days and within the specified hours, with virus child, and vaccinate all unprotected persons free of all charges. A list of the public vaccine stations, and the days and hours of vaccinators' attendance at them, is appended below—

Vaccinators to enter name in the vaccine register.

7. The name, age, caste, &c., of all persons vaccinated at these public vaccine stations should be carefully entered in the vaccine register provided for the purpose.

8. Vaccinators shall instruct the parent or guardian of every vaccinated child to bring it back at these stations on the fourth or fifth day after the operation, that they may see whether all the points of vaccination have taken. If there be a failure of one or more points, they should be careful to repeat vaccination at those points, and enter the same on the remark column of the vaccine register. The vaccinators shall again direct the parent or guardian to bring these children once more on the seventh or eighth day that they may ascertain and enter in their register the final result of the operation.

Insp. of vaccinated children.

9. If the operation proves successful, the vaccinators must deliver to the parent or guardian a certificate to that effect in the form of schedule (C). If it proves unsuccessful, the vaccinators must forthwith again vaccinate the child, and issue instructions for its inspection as before.

Vaccinators to grant certificate of successful vaccination.

10. If a vaccinator finds that a child whom he has three times unsuccessfully vaccinated is insusceptible of successful vaccination, he should deliver to the parent or guardian of such child a certificate in the form of schedule (B).

When unsuccessful, vaccination to be repeated.

11. If a vaccinator shall be of opinion that a child is not in a fit state to be vaccinated, he shall forthwith deliver to the parent or guardian of such child a certificate in the form of schedule (A).

Certificate of postponed vaccination to be given by vaccinators.

12. This certificate shall remain in force for three months, but shall be renewable for successive periods of three months until the vaccinator shall deem the child to be in a fit state for vaccination, when the child shall, with all reasonable despatch, be vaccinated, and a certificate of successful vaccination given in the form of schedule (C) if warranted by the result.

13. A public vaccinator shall on no account charge any person for granting certificates of successful vaccination, of postponed vaccination, or of insusceptible vaccination, whether the same be granted at a public vaccine station or elsewhere.

No fee to be charged for granting certificates.

14. Every public vaccinator who gives to any parent or guardian a certificate in any of the forms of schedules (A), (B), and (C), shall, within 21 days after giving the same, transmit a duplicate thereof to the Registrar of Births of the police section of the municipality where the birth of the child on whose account such certificate was given has been registered, or in which the child, if its birth has not been registered, resides.

Duplicates of certificates to be sent to the Registrar within 21 days.

15. When a public vaccinator attends at the request of the parent or guardian elsewhere than a public vaccine station for the purpose of vaccinating a child, he shall charge a fee of four annas for every such vaccination. He is to inspect the child on the 4th and 7th or 8th day, and grant certificates as in cases of vaccination in the stations. No fee is to be charged for inspection and for granting certificates.

Vaccination at private houses.

Fees to be charged.

16. Public vaccinators are to grant printed receipts for amounts paid to them as fees. These amounts are to be deposited at the office of the Superintendent of Vaccination every Saturday, or oftener if the Superintendent of Vaccination so orders. The vaccinators are warned not to misappropriate any portion of the fees to themselves, for if they do so they are liable not only to be dismissed from the department, but also to be criminally prosecuted.

Receipts for fees to be given to the parent or guardian, and the amount collected should be deposited at the office of the Superintendent of Vaccination every week.

17. To ensure successful vaccination, the following cardinal points are to be remembered by every vaccinator—viz. good virus, a clean lancet, and the healthy constitution of the person to be vaccinated. The first two rules should have no exception at all. Vaccinators should use none but the best virus: they should remember that vaccination with bad virus is worse than no vaccination; for it not only does not protect the person from attack of small-pox, but brings discredit on both the vaccinator and the vaccination. The vaccinators should not only use good virus, but take it from those persons only who are free from constitutional diseases, especially syphilis. Lymph should never be taken from a child who has an eruption on his skin, lumps about the anus or genital organs, bad teeth, or a sore throat or cold. In fact, none but perfectly healthy children should be used as subjects for conveyance of lymph. A clean lancet should invariably be used; when a foul lancet is used, it produces an amount of irritation in the vesicles which renders success doubtful. In ordinary times persons in good health are only to be vaccinated, but in times of epidemic every unprotected person, whether in sound health or otherwise, should be vaccinated. There is no fear in Punishment for misappropriation of fees.

Selection of lymph.

Good virus should always be used.

Healthy persons are only to be vaccinated in ordinary times. Exception in times of epidemic.

vaccinating pregnant women.

18. In cases of good and successful vaccination, the following phenomena are observed in the places where the virus is inserted:—No change takes place until the third day when the points of insertion of the virus appear like red spots or musquito bites. On the fourth day these spots look like little pimples. On the fifth and sixth days the pimples enlarge into vesicles and contain clear lymph. On the seventh day the vesicles are fully developed. On the eighth day arcolæ form around the vesicles. There is sympathetic fever from this day. On the ninth day the contents of the vesicles become perfectly yellow, and the surrounding inflammation becomes more intense. After the tenth day a crust gradually forms, brownish-black in colour and of considerable thickness, and should fall off from the 18th to the 20th day, or two days earlier in the hot season. It should leave a well depressed cicatrix, with marked edges and floor lined and pitted.

The period at which the lymph is to be taken.

19. Sixth and seventh day in the winter season, and fifth and sixth day in the hot and rainy seasons.

20. In taking lymph the vesicles are to be punctured from the top, and not from the side. If the vesicles be punctured at the side, the inner septa of the vesicles would prevent the flowing of the lymph into the seat of puncture. The upper surface should not be scraped off. It should only be punctured, and if the lancet be placed flatly an abundance of lymph will flow on it.

Manner of taking the lymph.

The lymph thus taken on the point of the lancet is to be inserted in at least four different places, two on each arm, one above and the other below the insertion of the deltoid muscles, from an inch to an inch and half apart from each other. The virus is to be inserted below the scurf or upper skin, but not deep enough to draw blood. Three such punctures are to be made in each place thus.

Manner of inserting the lymph.

21. The vaccinators must be kind and courteous towards the people that come to the public vaccine stations to have their children vaccinated. The people from their ignorance of the vaccine disease will ask many useless and tedious questions of the vaccinators, but the latter should not get annoyed at this. They should particularly explain every thing which the parent or guardian of vaccinated children may want to know. While vaccinating at private houses they should be equally kind and courteous in their manners, and although the law does not prohibit their taking any reward or present from persons able and willing to pay, they should make no demands.

B. Instructions to Registrars.

1. The Bengal Vaccination Act, 1880 (Act V of 1880), requires of Registrars of Births the following duties connected with compulsory vaccination, in addition to those duties relating to the registration of births and deaths which the law imposes upon them:—

2. On the registration of the birth of a child, the Registrar shall deliver to the person giving information of such birth a printed notice in the form of schedule E appended to the Act.

Section 18.

3. The Act further requires the parents and guardians of children under 14 years of age not born, but brought to reside, whether temporarily or permanently, in the Suburban Municipality, to have them vaccinated within six months of arrival, or, if at the time of arrival they are below one year of age, within 15 months of birth. On such cases coming to the knowledge of Registrars, a notice should be served in Schedule E altered according to circumstances. Such cases should be included in the register of vaccination, column 4 being left blank.

4. These notices will be issued to Registrars in the form of a book, each notice having a counterfoil which will, when filled in, constitute the minutes of the notices required by section 20 of the Act.

5. Vaccinators are directed by the Act, when a person or child is successfully vaccinated, to transmit to the Registrar a duplicate copy of the certificate (Schedule C), the original of which has been handed to the parent, or guardian, or person. Similarly, when the vaccinator considers it advisable to postpone vaccination on account of ill-health or unfitness from any other cause, a certificate to that effect (Schedule A) is given to the parent, or guardian, or person, and a duplicate thereof sent to the Registrar; and when a person or child is found insusceptible of vaccination, a certificate (Schedule B) is given, and a duplicate sent to the Registrar. These duplicate certificates (Schedules A, B, and C) of postponed, unsuccessful, and successful vaccination should be filed in separate bundles, and the information conveyed by them entered in the proper columns of the registers.

6. A register of vaccination will be kept in the following form, of which columns 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5 will be filled up on issue of the notice (Schedule E), and the remaining columns on receipt of the duplicate certificate mentioned in the last paragraph:—

Section 21.

Register of Vaccination for Section—

Serial No.	Name of child.	Date of birth.	No. of entry in register of birth.	Date of notice—Schedule E.	Date of certificate of successful vaccination—Schedule C.	Date of certificate of insusceptibility—Schedule B.	Signature of Registrar.
------------	----------------	----------------	------------------------------------	----------------------------	---	---	-------------------------

7. An additional column will be in future added to the ordinary "Register of Births" in which an entry will be made to the "number in Vaccination Register." Thus these two registers—the "Register of Births" and the "Vaccination Register"—will contain references to each other, and no difficulty can be experienced in ascertaining whether a certificate has been received regarding the vaccination of any child whose birth has been registered.

8. When a certificate has been received of the postponement of vaccination (Schedule A), an entry should be made in the special "Register of postponed vaccination" (Schedule F) prescribed by the Act. Care should be taken that a child, regarding whom a certificate of this kind is received, is eventually vaccinated, and unless a renewed certificate of postponement has been received, an entry should be made of the name in the return alluded to in the next paragraph.

9. As soon after the first of every month as possible a return will be forwarded to the Superintendent of Vaccination in the following form, showing the cases in which notice has been given or certificate of postponement has been received, and the period mentioned in the notice or certificate of postponement has expired without receipt of a certificate of successful vaccination or insusceptibility (Schedule B or C). A case once returned in this form need not be entered again except in the instance of a fresh postponement:—

Return of cases in which notice of vaccination has been served, but Certificate has not been received for the month of

Name of child.	Name of parent or guardian.	Residence.	Date of issue of notice.
----------------	-----------------------------	------------	--------------------------

10. The stations, days, and hours of vaccination are as follows:—

In the Suburbs of Calcutta.

Stations.	Days of attendance.	Hours for vaccination.
1 { Tollygunge police section	Monday, Wednesday and Friday	From 7-30 A. M. to 10 A. M. from 15th October to 15th March, and from 6 A. M. to 9 A. M. during the rest of the year.

11. It is obviously desirable, for the purpose of ensuring that every child born in the Suburban Municipality shall be vaccinated, that every endeavour should be made to render the registration of births as perfect as possible. Every endeavour should therefore be made to ascertain and cause the registration of every birth occurring in the station.

Occasional Obscuration of Light by Fog.

The attention of Mariners is called to the following remarks relative to False Point Light:—

During the months of January, February, and March, the prevalence of low-lying, heavy fog—over the land which lies between the light-house and the sea—occasionally interferes with the proper visibility of the light, and, at times, may even obscure it, although the weather at sea may be clear.

The rules as now amended are published below.

RULES UNDER ACT III (B.C.), 1876.

1. The Collector, before awarding compensation under section 16, or for making a reference under section 17 of the Act, shall obtain the written opinion of the Superintending Canal Officer, which shall form part of the record of the proceedings.

2. Persons desirous of acquiring land for the construction of a village channel, or for having a village channel constructed by Canal Agency, shall prefer a written application to the Divisional Canal Officer, or to any other officer duly authorized by him to receive such application.

3. Ordinarily, no village channel shall exceed two miles in length from its head to the point of contact with the village boundary.

4. It shall be the duty of the Canal Officer to register all village channels after due notice has been given to the owner of his intention to do so; if the latter objects, no water will be given.

5. No alteration among the shareholders will be recognized, unless the sanction of the Canal Officer has been first obtained.

6. Persons desirous of taking water from a registered village channel shall, previous to doing so, prefer a written application (Appendix A) to the Divisional Canal Officer, Sub-Divisional Canal Officer, or any subordinate duly authorized by the Divisional Canal Officer to receive such application; and no water shall be taken until after the receipt of a permit (Appendix B) from competent authority.

7. Water shall not be granted where, in the opinion of the Canal Officer, waste is likely to occur.

8. An application under Rule 6 shall, if granted, and unless otherwise specially agreed upon, be subject to the following conditions:—

(a)—That the water supplied shall not be used for other purposes than irrigation without the written consent of the Divisional or Sub-Divisional Canal Officer.

(b)—That the Sub-Divisional Canal Officer shall, in consultation with the applicants, appoint a headman (to be called a Lambardar), known, or ascertained to be, a substantial person possessed of property, to attend to their interests, to receive and carry out the orders of the Canal Officers, and to distribute the water among the shareholders in the village channel according to their shares.

(c)—That in any case where the Sub-Divisional Canal Officer cannot agree with the applicants in the appointment of a Lambardar, the Sub-Divisional Canal Officer shall make the appointment himself, subject to the approval of the Divisional Canal Officer.

9. The Divisional Canal Officer is empowered to pay to the Lambardar appointed under Rule 81, the fees detailed in the rule next following, subject to the condition of satisfactory performance of duty.

10. The allowance to the Lambardar for duties connected with the village channel, such as arranging that it shall be kept in proper repair, reporting unauthorized irrigation, distributing the water to the shareholders, seeing that the outlet is closed according to the orders of the Sub-Divisional Canal Officer, and generally assisting the officers of the Irrigation Department, shall be half anna in the rupee on the amount of canal water-rates assessed on the lands irrigated from the village channel under his charge. The Divisional Canal Officer may retrench the whole or any part of the fees under this rule in the event of non-compliance with these conditions.

11. The Sub-Divisional Canal Officer may, by written order under section 76 (a), stop the supply to any village channel when he is satisfied, after inspection by himself or by one of his subordinates, that it is not maintained in proper repair; such order shall be recorded in the Sub-Divisional Office.

12. The Divisional Canal Officer may close the outlets in rotation as he may consider necessary. Such closures shall not extend beyond ten consecutive days, and shall be notified to the Jambardars of village channels. For longer closures the authority of the Superintending Canal Officer is required.

13. Nothing in the above rules shall be taken to affect the power of the Superintending or Divisional Canal Officer to stop the supply of water in case of pressing emergency.

14. The water-gauges on distributaries or other channels shall be held to give authoritative data for all calculations of discharge required to verify claims for remission of water-rate on account of loss of water.

15. Claims to remission of water-rates under section 76(b) shall only be admitted on proof of actual loss caused by the stoppage of supply. On proof of such loss, the Divisional Canal Officer may remit the whole or any portion of the rates. All applications for remission of water-rates shall be made in writing by the parties concerned, either in person, or through their headman, to the nearest Sub-Divisional Canal Officer, at least seven days prior to the cutting of the crop. On receipt of such application, the Sub-Divisional Canal Officer shall, after due local enquiry, forward the application with his remarks to the Divisional Canal Officer for decision.

16. Before awarding compensation under section 76(c), the Collector shall obtain the written opinion of the Divisional Canal Officer, and such opinion shall form part of the record of the proceedings.

17. Contracts between the Divisional Canal Officer on the part of Government, and private individuals, for the use of water as a motive power, or for any other purpose whatsoever, not included in the published schedule of rates, shall, if for any period not exceeding one year, require the previous sanction of the Superintending Canal Officer. If proposed for longer periods, such contracts shall be submitted for the sanction of the Lieutenant-Governor in the Irrigation Department.

18. Tanks may be filled with canal water without charge, and without reference to the area irrigated in any village, wherever water can be made available without injury to the cultivation dependent on any canal, under the following conditions:—

- (a).—No tank shall be so filled unless the water is to be exclusively used for domestic purposes or for watering cattle, or both.
- (b).—No tank shall be so filled from which irrigation is practised.
- (c).—No tank shall be so filled which, intercepting any line of drainage, is liable to overflow from accumulation of water derived from natural causes.
- (d).—No tank shall be so filled except on the written order of the Sub-Divisional Canal Officer issued on the written application of the parties concerned.
- (e).—No tank shall be so filled unless the village channel used to fill it shall be shown to the satisfaction of the Sub-Divisional Canal Officer to be in a sound condition when the application is made.
- (f).—The privilege herein accorded may, by written order of the Divisional Canal Officer, subject to revision by the Superintending Canal Officer, whose decision shall be final, be suspended for 12 months for breach of any of the above conditions.

19. Leases for terms of five years for the supply of water between the 25th June of one year and the 1st April of the following year will be given at the rates fixed in the Schedule, Rule 33, provided that land leased in any village forms one or more compact blocks, each of not less than 50 acres, defined by well-marked boundaries of such a nature as clearly to distinguish leased from the adjoining unleased lands, and to prevent the latter from being surreptitiously watered under cover of the lease.

20. Well-marked boundaries of the nature required by the foregoing rule generally exist. Village roads, bunds of akhrahs, village boundaries, and similar natural marks will be sufficient. If such do not exist, and it appears advisable to grant the lease, the villagers may, at the discretion of the Divisional Canal Officer, be required to make small bunds round the leased area, or mark its limits by the erection of cheap boundary marks, or cause to be carried out such arrangements as may suffice for the future identification of the leased area.

21. No restriction is placed on the description of crop to be grown under five-year leases, but no water will be given on those leases between the 1st of April and the 25th of June. The Superintending Canal Officer may relax this rule in the case of water being required for rice-seed beds.

22. If in the opinion of the Divisional Canal Officer it appears advisable to grant a lease for a block of less than 50 acres in area, he must refer the matter for the decision of the Superintending Canal Officer, at whose discretion the restriction as to area may be relaxed.

23. Present holders of three-year leases may at their option avail themselves of the terms offered to the holders of five-year leases, but without retrospective effect.

24. Leases for five years at the rates entered in Rule 33 may be given—(1) on the application of all the cultivators of the area proposed to be leased, on condition of their agreeing in such application to become jointly and severally responsible for the payment of all amounts due on account of water-rates; or (2) on the joint application of the cultivators and of some person hereinafter called the Contractor, who may agree to collect and pay to Government, under section 82 of Act III (B.C.) of 1876, all sums due under the agreement on account of water-rates. The agreement of villagers binding themselves jointly and severally will be in the form prescribed in Appendix C. The joint agreement of villagers and a water-rate Contractor shall be in the form prescribed in Appendix D. Every agreement under this rule must be signed by each applicant in the presence of at least one respectable witness.

25. Contractors shall be entitled to collect water-dues, at the rates given in schedule 4 attached to Rule 33, from the cultivators who have applied for the water supplied. Every due from a cultivator to the Contractor on account of water-rates shall be deemed to be a sum due to Government under sections 82 and 85 of Act III (B.C.) of 1876.

26. A Contractor (or in case there be more than one, each Contractor severally and jointly) shall use due diligence in the collection of the water-rates specified in the agreement from the cultivators, who have applied for the water supplied. In the case of his failure after due diligence to collect, he shall, without loss of time, submit to the Collector a list showing the names of the defaulters, with the sums due from each, and the Collector shall thereon proceed to realize the amount due from the said defaulters according to law.

26a. A Contractor (or in case there be more than one, each Contractor severally and jointly) shall be responsible for all sums payable on the agreement, except such sums as he may satisfy the Collector that he has been unable to collect after using due diligence.

27. No water shall be taken previous to the receipt of a permit (Appendix B) signed by the Divisional Canal Officer. When an agreement has been made for the collection of the rates by a Contractor, the Divisional Canal Officer shall under section 82 furnish such Contractor with a written authority to collect the amounts due by the cultivators according to a list furnished in the application, one copy of which is to be sent to the Collector.

28. Every Contractor shall nominate a headman, to be approved of by the Divisional Canal Officer, to perform the duties specified in Rule 10. Such headman or the contractor, according to the arrangement made at the time of contract, shall receive 5 per cent. on the assessment, but the Divisional Canal Officer may retrench the whole or any part of these fees if the duties are not properly performed.

29. All water-rates leviable under the above rules for five-year leases shall become due on the 31st December and 15th March in equal portions, and shall be paid within one month of such dates.

Water-rate on summer crops, cheena, &c. ...	15th July.
Water-rate on bhadoi crops, early rice, indian-corn, murwa, &c. ...	31st October.
Water-rate on annual and winter crops, sugarcane, aghani rice, jowar, &c.	31st December.

36. In the case of lands held in bhaoli, the water-rate shall be recoverable from both the cultivator and the person or persons in receipt of the bhaoli rents in the same proportion as the produce is divisible amongst them.

37. In the case of lands held in bhaoli, the zemindar shall sign jointly with the cultivators. (This rule only applies to the case of five-year leases.)

38. The area irrigated in any village shall be measured by an Ameen appointed for the purpose. The Putwari shall be present at the measurement, and shall at the time take a copy of the khusrak of the Ameen; if for any reason the Putwari is not present, the cost of preparing the copy will be charged against him. This copy shall be delivered to the Putwari, or, in his absence, to the Lambardar. Both the Lambardar and Putwari shall sign the khusrak.

39. When the measurement is completed, the khusrak shall be forwarded to the Sub-Divisional Canal Officer, who shall prepare the khatiani with all possible despatch. A copy of the khatiani, signed and sealed by the Zilladar, shall, as soon as it is prepared, be forwarded to the Putwari, who shall grant a receipt for the same. If the Putwari is not present, or declines to receive the khatiani, the Sub-Divisional Officer shall forward it direct to the Collector.

40. It shall be the duty of the Putwari, immediately on the completion of the measurement, to inform each ryot, on application, of the fields measured against him, and on receipt of the khatiani to supply each person charged with a percha showing the water-rates due. For these duties, and for attending the measurement and rendering such other reasonable assistance to the Canal Officer and Collector as may be required, an allowance of one quarter anna per rupee on the amount collected shall be made.

41. This allowance shall be paid to the Putwari by the Collector if he is satisfied that the work has been properly done.

42. The Canal Officer shall note on the khatiani whether the Putwari has given proper assistance during the measurement.

43. If a cultivator is dissatisfied with the entries made against him in the khatiani, whether as to the fact of the land having been charged "flow" instead of "lift" or as to the measurements and entries of classes of crops, he must lodge a complaint, either personally or through the Lambardar of his village channel, with the Divisional or Sub-Divisional Canal Officer within a month after the date of the demand being made on him.

44. The Zilladar shall submit his check measurements in a form (Appendix E) which shall be sent in for the inspection of the Divisional Canal Officer. The Sub-Divisional Canal Officer shall check the Ameens' measurements as often as he possibly can. If it be found that any ameen wilfully or frequently makes wrong measurements, he shall be punished by dismissal.

45. Collection of all water-rates shall be made by the Collector in accordance with the statement of demands furnished to him by the Divisional Canal Officer.

46. Objections to the demand addressed to the Collector, if preferred within one month after the demand has been made, shall, if remission be claimed on the score of short supply, or of any matter affecting the Irrigation Department, be referred for orders to the Divisional Canal Officer. The Collector shall have discretion to suspend collections by a written order in cases where (objections having been filed) it may seem advisable to do so.

47. Claims for remission, referred by the Collector and admitted by the Divisional Canal Officer, shall be reported by him for the sanction of the Superintending Canal Officer, except in cases where remissions are made on account of excess areas having been charged, or a wrong name entered in the khatiani.

48. If the Divisional Canal Officer reject the claim, an appeal may be made to the Superintending Canal Officer, provided that it is preferred within forty days from the issue of the order of the Divisional Canal Officer.

49. A remission statement, signed by the Superintending or Divisional Canal Officer, shall be sufficient authority for a refund by the Collector.

50. In special cases not otherwise provided in these rules, and in cases where water-rates are not recoverable owing to the absconding or bankruptcy of the defaulter, the Collector will obtain the sanction of the Commissioner of the Division to the remission of such sums as he may deem irrecoverable. The details of such remission shall be communicated at the close of each official year to the Divisional Canal Officer.

51. The Collector shall appoint a headman (to be called a Tehsildar), whose duty will be to collect and pay in, to the Collector or other duly authorized person, all water-rates leviable on the land irrigated.

52. The Tehsildar shall furnish security for the payment of all sums realized by him, the stamp and registration fees on security bonds being deducted from the percentage allowed, under the following rule.

53. The allowance to the Tehsildars of a village or villages for collecting the water-rates shall be fixed by the Collector, but the total amount to be paid in any one year to all the Tehsildars in a district shall not exceed half an anna in the rupee on the amounts actually paid in. If the Tehsildar shall satisfy the Collector that arrears have not accrued through any negligence on his part, it shall be at the option of the Collector to pay him the allowance on the whole or any part of such arrears.

54. If only a portion of a field be irrigated, the water-rate shall be chargeable on the whole field, unless such portion shall have been clearly demarcated, previous to the admission of the water, by a ridge not less than half a foot high.

55. When a portion of a field has been irrigated with canal water, and a portion with well or reservoir water, the whole field shall be liable for canal water-rate, unless a clearly distinguishable boundary exists between the two portions.

56. If well or reservoir water is conveyed in the same channel as canal water, the whole of the irrigation from that channel shall be liable to canal water-rate. The Lambardar will be held personally responsible that any breach of this rule or of Rules 54 and 55 is duly reported.

57. Irrigation from escape channels, when the supply is permanent, shall be governed by the same rules as irrigation from other parts of the canal.

58. Irrigation from such channels, when the supply is intermittent, may be allowed at such reduced rates as shall from time to time be fixed by the Lieutenant-Governor.

59. Persons using water without a written permit, or taking water at times prohibited by proper authority, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding double water-rates on the area irrigated, and such charge shall be leviable at the time of report to the Collector.

60. The charge leviable for water suffered to run to waste on uncultivated lands shall be calculated at the highest rate specified in the schedule, on the area flooded; provided that in every such case the Divisional Canal Officer may impose a lower rate if he thinks fit. The Lambardar is to be held responsible for reporting such waste of water.

61. When the original crop sown in a field irrigated by canal water fails, and is ploughed up, and a fresh crop is sown in the same season, the water-rates shall be levied on the second crop.

62. No person shall, without the permission in writing of the Divisional or Sub-Divisional Canal Officer, pass, or cause any animal or vehicle to pass, on or across any of the works, banks, or channels of a canal or drainage work after he has been desired to desist therefrom, excepting by means of such bridges, fords, and ferries, and their approaches, as are provided by the Divisional Canal Officer.

63. No Canal Officer, unless specially exempted by the Lieutenant-Governor from the operation of this rule, shall have any interest in the distribution of water from any of the canals, or purchase or bid for any Government property sold thereon, either in his own name, or in the name of another, or jointly, or in shares with others.

CALCUTTA PORT TRUST.

GENERAL DEPARTMENT—MARINE—CALCUTTA PORT TRUST.

Calcutta, the 15th June 1881.

READ—

The Administration Report of the Commissioners for making Improvements in the Port of Calcutta for the year 1880-81.

The total value of the property held by the Commissioners at the close of the year estimated, with reference only to the amount actually expended on works and in the formation of Reserve Funds, but exclusive of the value of the foreshore lands made over to the Trust by Government free of charge, was Rs. 1,27,36,752, thus—

	Rs.
Expenditure on jetties and works for the accommodation of sea-going vessels	49,63,042
Expenditure on wharves, jetties, and landing-stages for the accommodation of boat traffic and tramway to connect railway with wharves and jetties	50,98,477
Expenditure on buoys, moorings, anchor vessels, and boats, &c.	19,89,974
Investment for Jetty Reserve Fund	79,920
• Ditto for Port ditto	3,64,250
• Ditto for Depreciation Reserve Fund	1,99,995
Ditto for Insurance ditto	41,094
	1,27,36,752

The addition made to the value of the Port property during the year under review was Rs. 6,25,941, of which Rs. 17,426 were contributions to the Reserve Funds, the balance, Rs. 6,08,515, being the amount spent on improvements.

The above expenditure has been met from the following sources:—

	Rs
By loan from Government (re-payable)	60,25,100
Less unexpended balance	41,022
	<hr/> 59,84,078
By loan from Government (not re payable) ...	17,65,000
Contribution from Government towards purchase of land ...	74,584
Ditto ditto ditto landing-stage at Prinsep's Ghat	10,000
Contribution from Government towards purchase of River Police Block	11,650
From sale of surplus land	4,07,817
From revenue derived from works since formation of Trust	41,83,623
	<hr/> 1,27,36,752

2. The liabilities of the Trust on the 31st March last amounted to Rs. 70,18,564 made up as follows:—

	Rs.
Consolidated debt re-payable	52,53,564
Port book-debt not re-payable	17,65,000
Total ...	<hr/> 70,18,564

The total re-payable debt, which amounted to Rs. 53,40,349 when the Act for the amendment of the Calcutta Port Improvement Act of 1870 [IV (B.C.) of 1880] became law, has thus been reduced by Rs. 86,785. By the orders of the Government of India in the Financial Department, issued in September 1878, the further grant of loans by Government under the Public Works Loan Act was prohibited, and it became necessary for the Commissioners to look to the open market for such loans as they might in future require. To enable them to do this the amending Act of 1880 provided that such loans should only be contracted with the sanction of the local Government and on the security of the whole, or, with the permission of Government, of any part of the property of the Trust, and that the Commissioners should form a sinking fund to pay off within 30 years any loan that might be negotiated. It was then believed that these provisions would suffice to protect the creditors of the Trust, and it was hoped, in the words of the Lieutenant-Governor's resolution of last year, that "the ample security afforded by their property and income, and provided by the recent law, would place the Commissioners in a position of credit as borrowers in the open market." These anticipations have unfortunately not been realized. The Commissioners invited tenders during the past year for a loan of ten lakhs of rupees, but no response was made, and it was found on enquiry that the Banks objected to some of the clauses of the Act. The Advocate-General was consulted on the question and recorded the following opinion:—

"Although I think that persons lending money to the Port Commissioners under the provisions of Bengal Act IV of 1880 would be practically safe, yet there exist doubtless legal objections which may be taken to the scheme developed by that Act with reference to loans and the remedies relating thereto. It has lately become usual to make loans re-payable in default of payment of any one instalment of interest. There is no such provision in the Act, but, on the contrary, there is an express provision by which the principal may be tied up for thirty years.

"Furthermore, no individual debenture-holder has any independent power of action in the event of any instalment of interest being unpaid, and all the ordinary legal remedies by decree and execution, or the appointment of a receiver by a civil court, are taken away from individual debentureholders by section 17, and the appointment of a receiver is vested in the Lieutenant-Governor in the manner provided by that section. The objections above noticed principal stand in the way of the proposed loan being taken up. Sections 18 and 19 which appear to flow out of the provisions of section 17, are, I presume, all objected to.

"Under these circumstances the Act must, I think, be altered in such a manner as get rid of the two principal objections above noticed; consequently section 17, 18, and 19 must be omitted.

"As a member of the Select Committee I did not foresee the difficulties which have arisen. I thought that practical safety under the immediate supervision of the local Government, entailing no serious expenses, would have been a sufficient inducement to persons to lend money."

With the consent of the Government of India a new Act (I of 1881) has been passed by the Bengal Council which, it is believed, will do away with the objections entertained by capitalists to lending money to the Commissioners. The security offered certainly appears ample, and the credit of the Trust should not be affected in any way by such reductions in charges as are in contemplation. It is always open to the Commissioners and Government to revise the scale of charges to meet the requirements of the Trust, though, for his own part, the Lieutenant-Governor believes that the removal of burdens upon trade will in the end improve the income and financial position of the Port.

3. The total expenditure on new works during the year amounted to Rs. 6,19,589, of which Rs. 3,09,230 were spent on jetty works, Rs. 1,42,170 on the inland vessels wharves, Rs. 58,436 on the tramway, Rs. 20,067 on the Howrah foreshore road, and Rs. 89,682 on miscellaneous works.

The chief improvements effected by the Commissioners were the following:—A new jetty (No. 8) was constructed at a cost of Rs. 84,058. The jetty embankment continued to make satisfactory progress. (The total length of the work to be carried out is 2,235 lineal feet, of which 1,413 feet have been sanctioned and taken in hand. Of the sheet piling necessary for this work, 891 feet had been driven up to the end of 1879-80; the remaining 522 feet were completed during the year under review, and the formation of the embankment has proceeded simultaneously with the pile driving.) The spaces between the sheds have been metalled to allow carts to have access to the jetty heads, and the tramway lines have been relaid on the jetties so as to suit the present arrangements of the sheds. The import shed at No. 1 jetty was taken down and re-erected at No. 4 jetty on the completion of the latter, and there are now four jetties at which cargo can be landed directly into the sheds without the use of trollies. The road between Akreerolah and Nimtolah Ghâts, a length of 665 feet, was widened by 18 feet. The embankment between No. 8 jetty and Chandpal Ghât is now nearly completed. Two floating stages for the convenience of the inland boat traffic have been finished. Further extensions, amounting in all to 5,100 feet, have been made to the tramway. A new anchor vessel to replace the Cavery which was sanctioned in July 1880 is nearly ready, and the following works are in progress—twenty new wagons for the tramway, a new hopper barge, engines for the old hopper barge, and new engines and a boiler for the Vectis.

4. The gross income from the jetties amounted to Rs. 7,24,900, and the net income after deduction of expenditure to Rs. 2,52,979, the corresponding figures for the previous year being Rs. 6,69,654 and Rs. 2,02,077. The rise in jetty receipts which has been entirely on import cargo, was due to an increase in the quantity of goods, principally cotton piece-goods, twist and yarn, passing over the jetties. The increase of expenditure is said to be chiefly owing to the charges necessary for working the new jetty (No. 8) which has been open for the greater part of the year. There was an increase also in the charge for repairs of nearly Rs. 7,000. The proportion of expenditure to gross income was nearly 70 per cent. in the year under review, as against 64 per cent. in 1880-81.

The number of ships (193) using the jetties was greater by one only than was the case last year, but the average tonnage (1,680) of each vessel is higher than it has ever yet been. The rate of clearance seems to be but little affected by the increase in average tonnage.

The following statement shows the extent to which the jetties have been utilized by vessels trading at the port :—

PERIOD.	Number of jetties.	Number of vessels accommodated.	Registered net tonnage.	Total number of days occupied at all jetties.	Total amount contributed by vessels for use of jetties.	Average tonnage of vessels.	Average length of stay at jetties.	Average number of days each jetty was at work throughout the year.	Average amount paid by each vessel for use of jetties. 5. The income and expenditure on account of the tramway have this year for the first time been shown separately from those for the inland vessels wharves. Excluding, therefore, the former items, the figures for the wharves alone for the past three years appear to be as follow :—

	Income.	Expenditure.
	Rs.	Rs.
1878-79	3,79,375	2,01,927
1879-80	3,46,022	2,47,516
1880-81	3,76,444	1,92,091

It is pointed out, however, that the charge for interest included in the expenditure of 1878-79 and 1879-80, comprised a considerable sum on account of the tramway. The tolls collected at the inland vessels wharves show an increase of Rs. 34,747 as compared with the previous year, the total amount being Rs. 3,70,568. The anticipations expressed last year that the railway would to an increasing extent absorb the grain and seed traffic to the detriment of wharves' receipts have not been fulfilled in the year under review as the tolls from these two sources, are higher by Rs. 41,000 than in 1879-80. There has, on the other hand, been a falling off of Rs. 8,292 under the head of "Tolls from jute."

6. The new agreement between the Eastern Bengal Railway Company and the Commissioners regarding the working of the tramway, came into operation during the past year. Under it the Commissioners have made over to the Railway Company the terminal charges and the amounts paid for loading and unloading goods, while the Company defrays the charges for the supply of coolie labour, and pays to the Port a monthly rental of Rs. 1,000 for the premises occupied at Armenian Ghât and Ruthollah. The total earnings shown under the new system amount to Rs. 1,12,026, against Rs. 1,34,901 under the old in the previous year. The falling off is, however, apparent only, and disappears if the rent now paid by the Railway Company, and the decrease in expenditure, amounting to Rs. 25,096, be taken into consideration. The net revenue was Rs. 30,557, as against Rs. 28,536 in 1879-80. The advantages offered by the tramway are fully appreciated by the mercantile public, and there is no doubt that its extension to Chandpal Ghât, and the increased facilities for its use, which the additional rolling stock now under construction will afford, will further add to its popularity and render it a very profitable source of income to the Commissioners.

7. The receipts and ordinary expenditure on account of the Strand Bank Lands varied little from the figures of the previous year. The net revenue was Rs. 63,153, against Rs. 69,406, owing apparently to the outlay of Rs. 6,442 on 'renewals,' a new and unexplained heading. The improvements now going on upon the Howrah foreshore will probably augment materially the income of this portion of the Trust.

8. The following table exhibits the gross income, expenditure, and profits of the Harbour Master's Department, or Port Proper, for the past ten years:—

			Gross Income.	Expenditure.	Profit.
			Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
1871-72	4,48,111	2,80,939	1,67,172
1872-73	5,43,020	3,95,186	1,47,852
1873-74	4,26,974	3,84,858	42,116
1874-75	4,25,390	4,19,923	5,467
1875-76	4,30,551	4,24,931	5,620
1876-77	4,69,290	4,25,566	45,724
1877-78	6,10,171	4,28,909	1,81,262
1878-79	5,80,184	3,98,106	1,82,078
1879-80	5,61,299	3,92,353	1,68,946
1880-81	4,93,644	4,63,514	30,130

The net income for the year under review exhibits a very considerable falling off as compared with the years immediately preceding it. None of these can, however, be taken as normal years. The Madras famine caused a large influx of shipping at the commencement of the period, and the subsequent depression of trade led to the detention in port for long periods of a large number of vessels in 1878 and 1879. The receipts, moreover, were enhanced in the latter year, as was explained in the Resolution reviewing the Commissioners' Report for 1879-80, by the payment of a debt of Rs. 36,000 by Government. It is to be noted also, that the charge for Depreciation, which amounted to Rs. 150 only in 1879-80, was unusually high in 1880-81, amounting to Rs. 80,940, and including the cost of a new anchor vessel to replace the Cavery. The Lieutenant-Governor has recently drawn the attention of the Commissioners to the question of the Annual Depreciation charge, and the correct method of treating the Reserve Depreciation Fund.

9. It is satisfactory to observe that the total number of vessels entering the port during the year (984) was higher than it has been for the last fifteen years, setting aside the abnormal periods 1876-77 and 1877-78. The number of canal steamers has risen from 128 in 1878-79, to 163 in the year under review. The average tonnage of these vessels though still very high (2,581 tons) shows a slight tendency to decrease, having reached 2,680 tons in the preceding year, and 2,714 in 1878-79. The following table exhibiting the number of sailing vessels and steamers visiting the port during the last eleven years, and their average tonnage, shows conclusively the tendency of the general trade of the port to pass away from the former class of shipping:—

Sailing Vessels.			Steamers.
	Number.	Average tonnage.	Number.	Average tonnage.
1870-71	672	991	259	1,266
1871-72	655	1,052	300	1,439
1872-73	615	1,024	338	1,523
1873-74	552	1,027	429	1,488

1879-80	454	1,250	412	1,920
1880-81	478	1,194	506	1,994

10. The number of accidents to ships within the jurisdiction of the Commissioners (nine), is in excess of that of last year (four), but in two cases only was any serious damage done. The Cape Verde when dropping down the river, on the 12th August 1880, forged over a buoy in Garden Reach and knocked a hole in her bottom, and the Meinam when lying at anchor sustained considerable damage owing to the steam ship City of Venice, in charge of a pilot, running into her. In neither of these cases was the Assistant Harbour Master on board to blame. The floating fire-engine Hooghly was kept under steam throughout the year, and was employed on sixteen occasions. None of the fires which occurred on board sea-going vessels was of a grave character, but the Hooghly was of considerable service to the Cape Verde on the occasion of the accident to that vessel. Some difficulty is said to be experienced in keeping the floating fire-engine under weigh while the pumps are being worked, as also in turning her in a narrow channel. To obviate this it is proposed to fit her with twin screws worked by separate engines. The Lieutenant-Governor will await the report of the Commissioners on this point. All the moorings belonging to the port were examined during the year, and where necessary repaired. Two new sets of moorings were laid down at Metiabruj Ghât for oil ships, and one swinging mooring off Calcutta. It appears from the report of the Deputy Conservator that considerable inconvenience was felt for want of mooring accommodation in August, September, and October, and the Commissioners have in consequence provided in the Budget Estimates for the current year for the expenditure necessary for laying an additional line of moorings from Chandpal Ghât to Fort Point, to replace the accommodation lost by the silting up of the moorings at Prinsep's Ghât and Hastings.

11. The Return of dredging operations, which was not satisfactory last year, is even less so in that under review, as will appear from the following table:—

PARTICULARS.	1880-81.	1879-80.	1878-79.	1877-78.	1876-77.	1875-76.	1874-75.

Rate per 1,000 cubic feet	24'93	8'2	7'6	3'5	9'2	13'4	20'3

It is explained that during four months the dredger was laid up for repairs, and that for the whole year one barge only was at work. The latter fact, combined with the employment of the Hetty in towing vessels through the bridge, is said to account for the small earnings from towage.

12. The Moyapore Powder Magazine was inspected twice, and was found to be in good order. The total quantity of powder stowed in it was 100,257lbs., besides 30 sample packages, and 264 ammunition packages; of this amount 32,832lbs., 34 sample packages, and 29 ammunition packages, remained in store on the 30th April last.

13. The total amount paid as license fees for cargo and passenger boats, and the number of boats surveyed and licensed were as follows:—Rs. 18,420 paid by 5,548 cargo-boats, and Rs. 7,154 by 2,060 ordinary passenger boats; eight passenger steamers, two flats, and one budgerow. Rs. 2,303 were received for licenses to manjhis, and Rs. 393 as registering charges.

14. The question of the advisability of carrying out permanent improvements from capital, and devoting surplus revenue to reducing the charges of the jetties, wharves, and Port, has been prominently before Government in connection with the Budget Estimates for the current year, and is noticed at length by the Commissioners in their present report. The Government is still in correspondence with them as to the proper mode of giving full effect to the Lieutenant-Governor's views upon this subject. The proposals of the Commissioners with reference to the provision of Bonding accommodation, and the erection of a Tea warehouse, have not yet come before Government in any complete form. The Lieutenant-Governor has said that he desires to know the opinion of the mercantile community upon these schemes. He is glad to observe that the removal of the municipal pumping station from Chandpal Ghât is now in a fair way of being carried out.

15. The question of the amalgamation of the duties of the Port Officer with those of the Port Commissioners, was taken up again during the year under review, and a Committee which was appointed to consider the subject in all its bearings, made a report, of which the following is a summary:

- (1) We do not recommend the transfer of the Pilot Service to the Port Commissioners;

- (2) But we recommend that the port approaches, including the light-ships, light-houses, buoying and survey, the expenditure on which has to be met from Port Funds, should be transferred to the Port Commissioners.
- (3) Under this arrangement the Port Officer would not be transferred to the Port Commissioners, but would remain in charge of the Pilot Service and of all duties connected with vessels under the Government of Bengal. He would conduct the quarterly examinations of masters, mates, engineers, and pilots, and make such surveys under the Passengers Act as are required by Government. These duties are, however, hardly sufficient to occupy the whole time and attention of the Port Officer, and the Committee think that they might with advantage be amalgamated with the duties of the Superintendent of Marine.
- (4) If the appointment is to be maintained separate from that of the Superintendent of Marine, the title of the officer holding it should be changed, and the officer of the Commissioners, now known as Deputy Conservator and Harbour Master, should be styled the Port Officer.
- (5) The officer in charge of the port approaches should be styled the Deputy Conservator. He should be a thoroughly trained Marine Surveyor, and his head-quarters should be at Diamond Harbour.
- (6) The block of the port approaches to be made over to the Port Commissioners without any charge for interest, provided the Port Commissioners agree to maintain and renew it as may be necessary.
- (7) Before the transfer is made, Act XII of 1875 should be amended, and the schedule of port dues for Calcutta, increased from four annas to six annas per ton, a corresponding reduction of 15 per cent. being made in the schedule of pilotage charges.
- (8) The office establishment now employed under the Port Officer on work in connection with the port approaches, to be taken over, as far as necessary, by the Port Commissioners; the officer in charge of the Pilot Service to retain the establishment now employed on this work.
- (9) The officers and men employed on the survey, light-vessels, &c., connected with the port approaches, to retain, on their transfer to the Port Commissioners, all the privileges they now enjoy in regard to pension and leave.

The Lieutenant-Governor concurred in the views taken by the Committee which he recommended for the acceptance of the Government of India. The Supreme Government has consented generally to the proposal, and the necessary arrangements for carrying it into effect are now under consideration.

16. An important addition has been made to the duties of the Commissioners by their investiture with all the powers conferred on the local Government by chapter II of the Merchant Shipping Act of last year, except the powers of appointing a Judge and Assessors for the Court of Survey under sections 14 and 15, and of making rules under section 68 of the Act.

17. The new Act for the amendment of Act IV (B.C.) of 1880 provides for the appointment of an extra Port Commissioner, which will enable the interests of Howrah to be represented. It also empowers the local Government to make rules to regulate the employment of European sailors and others in the port. This provision was necessary, as it was discovered that the Commissioners could not by their bye-laws interfere to prevent the unnecessary exposure to the sun of sailors on board ships within their jurisdiction.

18. An arrangement has now been arrived at between the Commissioners and the Calcutta Municipal Corporation, under which the latter has consented to reduce the cost of filtered water supplied to the shipping at the jetties, from Rs. 8 to Rs. 4 per 1,000 gallons.

19. The Commissioners held 28 meetings during the year, the attendance at which was satisfactory and testifies to the strong interest taken by them, as a body, in their important duties. Mr. Buckland was Chairman of the Commissioners throughout the year, an office which he resigned shortly after its close, on his retirement from the service of Government. The Commissioners have placed on record their appreciation of the services which he rendered to the Port Trust during the time that he held the office of Chairman, and their regret at his retirement.

The thanks of Government are again due to the Commissioners generally and to their Vice-Chairman, Mr. W. Duff Bruce in particular, for the efficient manner in which the affairs of the Trust have been conducted during the period under review.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

A. MACKENZIE,

Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

THE INDIAN FACTORIES ACT.

No. 12—712, dated Simla, the 27th May 1881.

From—THE HON'BLE C. GRANT, C.S., Offg. Secy. to the Govt. of India, Home, Revenue and Agricultural Department,

To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

IN inviting the attention of the Government of Bengal to the Factories Act (No. XV) of 1881, I am desired to convey to you the following observations regarding the principles which should be observed in its administration.

2. The Act, it will be seen, does not apply to indigo factories or premises situated on and used solely for the purposes of tea or coffee plantations; nor to temporary establishments wherein operatives are employed for less than four months in the year; nor to comparatively small undertakings providing work on any day for less than one hundred persons. Moreover, the restrictions which it imposes on the hours of labour extend only to children; and, except in so far as the Act provides for the fencing of machinery and notice of accidents, it does not impose any obligation on mill-owners for the protection of adults.

3. The scope of the law is thus comparatively limited, and it will be apparent that, in framing it, the most careful regard has been paid to the representations of the mill-owners and commercial and other associations which have memorialised the Government of India on the subject of factory legislation. Indeed, consistently with the objects in view, it would have been scarcely possible to frame a more moderate measure; and the Governor-General in Council believes that the uneasiness which is still felt in some quarters regarding its possible effects on the manufacturing industries is caused not so much by objection to the protection of children and to the fencing of machinery as by the fear that the provisions designed for these purposes may be injudiciously worked to the detriment of legitimate operations. Such apprehensions are not altogether unnatural; for there is always a risk that, in the absence of suitable precautions, administrative zeal in enforcing a new law may overstep due limits and prove injurious to the conduct of commercial enterprise. Similar difficulties, however, have been satisfactorily surmounted in England; and, having regard to the great importance of providing for the people of this country fresh outlets for surplus labour, and of avoiding all unnecessary restraints upon industrial employment, the Governor-General in Council desires to impress upon all Local Governments the necessity of regulating the machinery of inspection and of selecting the inspecting agency in such a manner as to prevent all reasonable cause of complaint. The Government of India attach great importance to the choice of Inspectors, who, while they will take care that the provisions of the Act are honestly and thoroughly carried out, will discharge their duties in the most conciliatory manner.

4. On the other hand, it must be borne in mind that, although many factories are managed on enlightened and liberal principles, yet the enquiries of the Bombay Commission of 1875 did undoubtedly disclose the existence in many places of grave defects in factory management; and it was to prevent the possibility of such abuses that the present law was enacted. In consideration of the important interests involved, and in deference to the opinions of many of the local Governments and public bodies and associations consulted, the restrictions which were at first thought necessary have been very materially relaxed. In one respect, indeed, viz., in the reduction to seven years of the minimum age at which a child may be employed, the Governor-General in Council does not yet feel sure that relaxation may not have been carried too far. He has assented to the experimental adoption of the existing limit on the grounds that children of seven years of age are at present largely employed in factories without apparent injury to them; and that several local Governments thought the limit of eight years as fixed in the Bill too high. But he considers that the working of this provision in the law will need to be carefully watched; and that it cannot be maintained unless it is found beyond doubt to provide an adequate measure of protection to children of tender years.

5. I am to request that the rules framed under section 18 of the Act may be submitted to the Government of India; and a report will be required on the operation of the Act when a year has elapsed from the date of its introduction.

GENERAL DEPARTMENT.—MISCELLANEOUS.

Dated the 17th June 1881.

RESOLUTION.

READ —

- (1) "The Indian Factories Act, 1881."
- (2) Letter from the Government of India, in the Home, Revenue and Agricultural Department, No 12—712 of the 27th May 1881, conveying the observations of His Excellency the Governor-General in Council regarding the principles which should be observed in the administration of the Act.
- (3) Letter from the Commissioner of the Presidency Division, No. 35MR of the 9th June, submitting with remarks a set of Rules under section 18 of the Act, drawn up by him in communication with the Commissioner of Police, Calcutta, and the Magistrates of the 24-Pergunnahs and Howrah, as directed in the orders of this Government, No. 3303 of the 21st March last.

The orders of the Government of India, explaining the manner and spirit in which the Factories Act is to be worked, will be published along with this Resolution in the Calcutta Gazette, and circulated to all officers having to do with the administration of the Act.

2. The Lieutenant-Governor believes that he will best ensure that efficient and conciliatory discharge of the duties of Inspectors under section 3 of the Act, upon which so much stress is laid by the Government of India, by leaving those duties, as a general rule, in the hands of the District Magistrates, within the local limits of their jurisdictions. For the present, therefore, no special appointments of Inspectors will be made by this Government, save in Calcutta and the 24-Pergunnahs. In Calcutta the Deputy Commissioner of Police, and in the 24-Pergunnahs (where the district officer is already over-worked) the Senior Joint-Magistrate for the time being, will, on the 1st July, be appointed ex-officio Inspectors. The Commissioners of Divisions, and in Calcutta the Commissioner of Police, will be vested with powers to hear appeals from the orders of Inspectors subordinate to them under section 12(c) of the Act.

3. Under section 5 the Civil Surgeons, or such other persons practising medicine or surgery as the local Government may, from time to time, appoint in this behalf for any local areas, are to act as certifying Surgeons. There is no provision in the Act for the payment of fees to certifying Surgeons, and the Lieutenant-Governor considers that any fees allowed must be paid by Government. He thinks that for the present a fee of four annas for each child presented for examination under section 5 should be sufficient. The Commissioner of Police and Commissioners of Divisions must report at once what medical men they would recommend for appointment, and what local area they would assign to each. Civil Surgeons may be allowed to do the work, where this is convenient both to them and to employers of labour, and must do it outside Calcutta until other arrangements are sanctioned. For Calcutta, nominations must be made before the 25th instant. The main point to be borne in mind by Commissioners in submitting their recommendations is the convenience of employers and employes; and the nearest qualified medical man should as a rule, be selected for appointment.

4. The attention of the Inspectors is drawn to section 7 of the Act, under which the intervals for food and rest to be allowed to children have to be fixed by the local Government for each factory; after ascertaining as far as possible the existing practice in such factory, and the wishes of the occupier thereof. No time should be lost, after the Act comes into force, in settling with employers those hours of relaxation, and reporting them to Government for approval.

5. The rules which the Lieutenant-Governor is pleased to lay down under section 18 are set forth in the schedule below. They will be published at once for general information, and submitted to the Government of India, as requested in their letter already quoted. No rules regarding the "fencing of machinery and mill-gearing" in factories are for the present laid down. The Act itself, in sections 10 and 12, provides all that is immediately necessary. But the Lieutenant-Governor will be prepared to prescribe any rules which experience and the reports of the Inspectors may hereafter show to be required.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

A. MACKENZIE,

Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

SCHEDULE.

*Rules made by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal under Section 18 of Act XV of 1881
(The Indian Factories Act).*

1. The terms 'factory,' 'child,' 'mill-gearing,' 'employed,' and 'certifying surgeon,' when used in these Rules, or in any supplementary Rules that may hereafter be made under the Act, shall have the meaning given to them in the Act.

'Inspector' means the Magistrate of the district, or an Inspector appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor under section 5 of the Act.

2. Every Inspector who is not himself the Magistrate of the district, shall be officially subordinate to the Magistrate of the district to which he is appointed, and in Calcutta to the Commissioner of Police.

3. Each Inspector shall keep a register of all factories within his jurisdiction in the form (A) attached to these Rules.

4. As soon as possible after the 1st day of July 1881, the Inspector shall send through the post, under registered cover, a notice to the occupier of every factory within his jurisdiction, intimating his intention of placing such factory upon his register of factories.

5. Any person served with a notice under Rule 4, whose premises do not fall within the definition of a factory given in the Act, may, within 15 days of the receipt of such notice, forward to the Inspector a statement setting forth his objections to the registration of his premises as a factory. The Inspector shall consider and dispose of such objections, after making such enquiry as he may deem necessary, and shall make up his register of factories in accordance with the provisions of the Act.

6. The Inspector may at any time serve a notice, as provided in Rule 4, upon the occupier of any factory, which is not already entered in his register of factories, and the provisions of Rule 5 shall apply to the subsequent proceedings in all such cases.

7. When any premises cease to be occupied as a factory, the occupier may give notice of the fact to the Inspector, who shall, if satisfied that the Act is no longer applicable to such premises, remove them from his register of factories.

8. Each factory shall be inspected by the Inspector at least twice in each calendar year.

9. The Inspector shall keep a register of his inspections of each factory in form (B) attached to these Rules, in which he shall record all orders and remarks made by him on each occasion of his inspection.

10. The Inspector shall without delay furnish a copy of such orders and remarks to the Commissioner of the Division (through the Magistrate of the district, if the Inspector be not himself such Magistrate), and also to the occupier of the factory concerned.

The despatch through the post, under registered cover, of the copy of such orders and remarks shall be deemed to be sufficient service on the occupier of the factory of any orders or directions therein contained.

11. The occupier of a factory shall, if required by the Inspector, bring before him, on the occasion of any inspection, all children employed in the factory, and any other persons in the service of such occupier whom the Inspector may wish to see.

12. Each 'Certifying Surgeon' shall give the certificate described in section 5 of the Act in the form (C) attached to these Rules. Forms of certificate in counterfoil will be supplied to certifying surgeons by the Magistrate of the district, and in Calcutta, by the Commissioner of Police.

13. Every occupier of a factory shall keep a file of all certificates of certifying surgeons relating to persons in his employ, and shall produce this when required by the Inspector. Every such certificate shall be returned by such occupier to the parent or guardian of the person to whom it relates on his leaving the factory for other employ, and on demand of such parent or guardian.

14. Every occupier of a factory shall keep registers in forms (D) and (E) attached to these Rules, and no such register shall be destroyed or removed from the factory without the written permission of the Inspector.

15. Every occupier of a factory shall give notice to the Inspector of the four days fixed by him as monthly holidays for children under section 8 of the Act.

16. An appeal shall lie to the Commissioner of Division (and in Calcutta to the Commissioner of Police) from every order of an Inspector under Rules 5 and 6 of these Rules, and under section 12, clause (c) of the Act. Such appeals must be submitted in writing through the Inspector within 15 days of the order appealed against; and the Inspector shall forward each such appeal within seven days of its presentation, with any remarks or explanations he may see fit to make. The Commissioner shall, on receipt, fix a day for disposing of the appeal, and give due notice thereof to the appellant.

GOVERNMENT ENGINEERING COLLEGE, SEEBPORE.

No. 505T, dated Da jeeling, the 17th June 1881.

From—A. MACKENZIE, Esq., Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Revenue and General Departments,

To—The Director of Public Instruction.

I AM directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 4T, dated the 11th June 1881, regarding the insubordinate conduct of the native students of the Seebpore Engineering College, and to convey to you the thanks of Government for your very full and exhaustive report on the subject.

2. The Lieutenant-Governor has given the matter his careful consideration, and he entirely approves of the action hitherto taken by you, and concurs generally in the conclusions at which you have now arrived.

3. While it is to be regretted that, even under the very great provocation he received, Mr. Fouracres went so far as to lay hands upon Srish Chunder Lahiri at all, there was nothing in the circumstances of the altercation between them calling for the intervention of superior authority, and certainly nothing to warrant its being taken up as a personal question by the rest of the students. It really affected them in no way, and was a matter with which they had no immediate concern. It has never been alleged that Mr. Fouracres has been in the habit of using any sort of personal violence to the students of the College, and they cannot have therefore supposed that any combination to protest against Mr. Fouracres' action in this isolated case was necessary for their common protection. Even had the facts been otherwise, it cannot for a moment be tolerated that lads subject to school discipline shall be allowed to combine to criticise in formal memorials the conduct of their teachers, and dictate to the head of the Education Department, and to Government, the removal of officers who chance to have incurred their boyish displeasure.

4. As shown by you, this is not the first case of the sort that has come before the Bengal Government, or the first occasion on which the intolerable conceit and self-sufficiency of native students have betrayed them into making frivolous complaints against their teachers and superiors, which have on enquiry been shown to have been altogether unjustifiable. There should be no room left for any further doubt as to the position of subordination to which lads in a state of pupilage must be restricted; and you should cause a circular to be sent to all schools and colleges making known to the students that conduct of this sort will in future certainly be followed by the expulsion from the school or college of all who take part in such proceedings.

5. As regards the general charges against Mr. Fouracres put forward by the students in their memorial, and by certain organs of the native press, the Lieutenant-Governor is glad to find them, as he from his knowledge of Mr. Fouracres expected them to be, either absolutely groundless, or contemptibly frivolous. The students have shown themselves not merely absurd and petulant in the complaints which they have made regarding their accommodation and treatment, but have evinced towards Mr. Fouracres, ingratitude of the worst description in return for many substantial kindnesses done. Mr. Fouracres was specially selected by the Lieutenant-Governor for the office he now holds in consequence of the well-earned reputation he enjoyed for special qualifications, not the least of which was his notorious kindness of heart in the management and training of workmen, and especially of native students. His whole thoughts since the opening of the College have been devoted to making it a success, especially in respect of the training of the native youths attending it; and the results which have followed his efforts elsewhere, to train youths and men of this country in the mechanical arts, prove that any failure at Seebpore will be attributable, not to shortcomings on his part, but to the character of the material with which he has now to work. The Lieutenant-Governor cannot help hoping that when the students see their complaints formulated as they now are in your letter under reply, they will be overwhelmed with shame at the frivolous, childish, and unmanly grounds which have been brought forward on their behalf as sufficient excuse for their insubordinate conduct.

6. Foolish, however, as the students have been, the Lieutenant-Governor does not consider them so much to blame as those older and irresponsible advisers, who have been from the outset encouraging them in insubordination, and urging them, by specious flattery and exaggerated professions of sympathy, into the belief that they were by their attitude of disobedience maintaining a sound principle, and showing a proper spirit of independence. The students will by this time, it is hoped, have realized that they have been made tools of by persons desirous of converting a school dispute into a great question of race antagonism; and they will in future appreciate at its true value the advice of such false friends which has all but led to the permanent ruin of their educational and professional prospects, and gone far to deprive them of the sympathy of those Europeans who are most interested in native progress.

7. It is mainly in view of the fact that the students have been thus ill-advised and misled that the Lieutenant-Governor feels himself able to entertain their present application for pardon. The wording of that application is, however, far from being either sufficient or satisfactory. As pointed out by you, there is no reference to the gravest and most positive act of insubordination—the refusal to submit to your order of the 3rd May last. Still the Lieutenant-Governor is willing to believe that the act of submission is meant to be absolute and complete, and he will not attach undue importance to mere verbal omissions. He is ready, therefore, to accede to your proposal that those students who have specifically withdrawn their names from the original memorial should be readmitted to the College in November next, on their personally expressing to the Principal, in the presence of Mr. Fouracres, their regret for their conduct in failing to obey your orders of the 3rd May, and tendering their apologies to Mr. Fouracres for the frivolous and groundless complaints made by them against that gentleman.

8. The effect of this readmission in November, under the proposals made in paragraph 41 of your letter (which have been accepted), will be that each student will lose six months time. The conduct of the students in so long failing to avail themselves of the opportunity you offered them of withdrawing their names from the joint memorial submitted to you, renders any more favourable arrangement impossible. They have so broken into the course of this term's instruction that it has become impossible for them to take up again their places in their classes, or to pick up lost ground before the commencement of the vacation on the 15th of August.

9. You have fully explained in your letter that the accommodation provided at Seobpore for the native students was avowedly of a temporary character. The students themselves were well aware of this from the first. At the same time the Lieutenant-Governor has no hesitation in saying, from personal observation, that the bungalows are very much more comfortable and healthy than the quarters which the majority of the students of the colleges and schools of Calcutta have to occupy. Much has been said in the native press of the injustice of making over to the students of European origin the "palatial buildings" bought from the Bishop's College, but it must be remembered that the bulk of these boys were transferred from an existing school—the Dehree School;—that they had to be provided for at once; that it was not at first intended to provide any large amount of accommodation for native students as great doubts were expressed regarding the probability of their entering the College as boarders. The question which had to be settled before the opening of the College was, whether the Dehree lads should be at once located in the empty buildings designed for the Christian students of Bishop's College, then standing empty, or whether they should be placed in the bungalows formerly occupied by the native converts of Bishop's College, the dormitories being left empty on the chance of native students wishing to come as boarders to the Engineering College. It seems to the Lieutenant-Governor that there can be no doubt as to the proper answer to be given to this question; and yet a cry of race antagonism and favouritism to the Europeans has been raised because the Christian quarters were not kept for possible native students, and the native quarters given to Europeans. The European rooms are altogether unsuited to native habits, and native ideas; and after all, the accommodation provided there is of the most unpretentious character—four students occupying one small room. It would have been quite impossible to mix the European and native students up in these rooms, and still less feasible to arrange for messing them in a common hall. The only course possible was adopted. The Europeans were placed in the old dormitories with their hall and chapel under the same roof. The native students were placed, as they joined, in very commodious and comfortable bungalows; and other temporary bungalows were run up for them, as required, until it could be determined what permanent accommodation was necessary, and of what character it should be.

10. The Lieutenant-Governor has visited the native students' quarters and found them very comfortable, and ordered immediate compliance with the requests of the students for a few petty alterations. In the meantime he personally examined the country round the College with the officers of the Public Works Department, and at a great expense took up a large plot of new land for the future permanent accommodation of the native students. The land has only just been made over, and Dr. King of the Botanical Gardens, and Mr. Fouracres, have prepared a careful plan for laying it out, improving and planting and draining it. The students were well aware of the intention of Government to provide them with permanent accommodation of an improved character; and their complaints on this score are, therefore, altogether unjustifiable and ungrateful. Any way, as you have shown, Mr. Fouracres is in no sort of way responsible for the accommodation provided by Government for the convenience of native students desiring to reside on the College premises. If the boys did not like residing in the College, it was perfectly open to them to live in lodgings of their own procuring elsewhere. The number of native students remaining, even after the recent secession, and the readiness with which the vacancies could evidently have been filled up, would have warranted the provision at once of the proposed permanent accommodation for this class of students. The Public Works Department will accordingly be instructed to take the work in hand as soon as possible.

11. In order that the reasonable wants and wishes of the native and other students of the College might be readily known and considered, the Lieutenant-Governor appointed a Board of Visitors on which several leading native gentlemen kindly consented to act. The Board should endeavour in future to meet at the College at least once a month, and you should submit the names of additional members for appointment, so that the monthly meeting may take place without imposing any irksome liability on individual members, many of whom are at times absent from Calcutta.

12. The Lieutenant-Governor does not consider it right that Mr. Fouracres, whose feelings have naturally been deeply hurt by the conduct of the native students, should be burdened with the care of their boarding arrangements in future. These will remain under the direct charge of the Principal, who will see that the strictest attention is paid to all rules and regulations. Any student failing to conform to these, or evincing the least spirit of insubordination, should be at once dismissed from the College.

13. In conclusion, I am to request that you will convey to Mr. Fouracres the assurance of the Lieutenant-Governor's entire confidence in him, and his sympathy with him under the annoyance caused him by the malicious and totally unfounded charges brought against him by the students for whom he has done so much. His Honor feels assured that Mr. Fouracres will not allow this ingratitude in any way to affect the energy and the intelligent interest which he has always hitherto shown in the welfare of the College and the Workshop; and is convinced that in time these young men will learn thoroughly to appreciate the advantage which it is to them to be placed under such an able and kind hearted instructor.

No. 4T, dated Darjeeling, the 11th June 1881.

From—A. W. CROFT, Esq., Director of Public Instruction, Bengal,

To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, General Department.

I HAVE the honor to submit, for the consideration and orders of Government, the enclosed petitions, dated the 6th instant, from 60 students of the Seebpore Engineering College, who were lately expelled under my orders for insubordination, in which they apologise for their misconduct, and pray to be re-admitted to the College. I have also received separate applications to the same effect from six other dismissed students of the College. The circumstances under which these students were removed from the College are the following.

2. On Friday, the 22nd April, Srish Chandra Lahiri, a student of the second-year Engineer Class, who was working in the carpenters' shop, left his bench for the fitters' shop, and proceeded to punch a hole in a bar of iron at one of the machine tools which he set in motion for the purpose. The student was quite ignorant of the powers of the machine, for the bar was, as a workman would have known, much too thick for the punch employed, and the result was that a valuable machine was broken and rendered useless for some days. What followed when the matter was reported to Mr. Fouracres, the Superintendent of the Workshops, may be stated in his own words, taken down by me at a meeting of the Board of Visitors convened some little time afterwards—

"On Friday, the 22nd April, on going into the shop, I was informed by the foreman that the bottom-die of the punching-machine had been broken, that it would take three or four days to repair it, and that some work then in progress would be stopped in consequence. On inquiring how the damage was done, I was told that Srish Chandra Lahiri had broken it. I sent for him immediately and questioned him, saying, 'What business had you to meddle with this machine? Are you a fool or an idiot to do so silly a thing?' He replied, 'I wanted to punch a hole in a piece of iron.' I said nothing more, but ordered him to his work at once. He did not move, but remained lolling across the table, and looking me up and down. He finally went away slowly to his work. When I saw that he did not remain in the fitters' shop, but went to the carpenters' shop, I followed him there, and took him by the collar, when he struggled round me, I still keeping my hold of his collar. I then brought him by the collar to the middle of the fitters' shop, and pointing towards the broken machine, I told him never to go near a machine without orders, or I would have him turned out of the shop immediately. At the same time I struck the bench with my stick, saying 'Never you leave your work again without permission.'

"After the occurrences described above, the boys went on with their work as usual. Shortly afterwards, one of them, Chandra Kanta Sen, came to me and said, 'Sir, the boy would rather have paid for the damage than have been caught by the neck.' I said 'How could he pay for the damage?' Srish Chandra Lahiri never expressed a word of regret to me."

Questioned as to the Workshop Rules, Mr. Fouracres stated:—

"It would be impossible to put up written orders defining the students' duties in every detail. At the same time it is thoroughly understood that no boy is to meddle with a machine which he has not been set to work at. I have never had any previous occasion to find fault with a boy for meddling with a machine.

"Every boy knows beforehand in what shop he is to work, according to a list that is made known to them. When a boy is working in one shop, he is allowed, with the permission of the monitor or foreman instructor, to leave his shop and go to another in which any interesting work is going on. Generally the permission of the instructor is necessary; but latterly, on one occasion, when the weather was very hot, I told the boys of the blacksmiths' shop that they might go into the fitters' shop and look on at what was being done. No similar orders were ever issued to boys working in the carpenters' shop, nor were these orders intended to apply generally and at all times; when a boy goes into another shop, he is not allowed to start another machine, or to put it into gear, without the permission of the workman in charge or the foreman of the shop.

"The machine in question was a punching-machine, diameter five-eighths of an inch. The boy took a three-quarter of an inch square bar and put it into the machine with the object of punching a hole through it. Had he placed it quite accurately, there would have been only one-sixteenth inch on each side; and any workman would have known that there was danger of injury either to the die or to the punch if so narrow a margin was left. A five-eighth inch punch will punch a hole with perfect safety in a three-eighth inch plate. In a half inch plate there is some danger of its being broken. In a three-fourth inch plate a five-eighth inch punch would be almost sure to be broken; and a narrow square bar of the same diameter would, if put under the punch, almost certainly lead to either the die or the plate being broken."

As to the dangers that attend the incautious or ignorant use of machines, Mr. Fouracres added:

"On two previous occasions in these shops damage has occurred to machines owing to improper use of them. At Dehree, the jaws of a large punching-machine, worth Rs 3,000, were split open, and the machine ruined, from a similar cause. On one occasion, a boy entering the shop lost two fingers of his hand in the same machine; on another occasion, a boy from outside had four fingers cut off by a circular saw with which he meddled without orders. In Cuttack, a boy had his foot cut off at the instep."

3. Mr. Fouracres might, indeed, have taken another course. He might have reported the boy to the Principal, for mischief, in accordance with the 16th Rule of the College, which provides, that breaches of discipline committed in the Workshops by engineer-students shall be reported by the Superintendent to the Principal. Had he done so, there can be little doubt that a serious penalty would have been inflicted on Srish Chandra Lahiri for the gross and culpable recklessness of which he had been guilty, and the mischief which he had caused. Mr. Fouracres did not report the boy. In taking the course he did, he states that, irritated though he was at the student's unworkmanlike act, he did not wish to push the matter to a formal complaint and punishment, but considered that a more salutary lesson would be given by a rebuke at once and publicly administered, so as to let all the students understand that they must not meddle with machines of the use of which they are ignorant, at the risk of life, limb, and property. "My action," he maintains, "was that of a man having responsible duties to fulfil. If an accident had at any time occurred, and a student had got maimed for want of proper warning about the use of machines, I should have been condemned for not having taken sufficient precaution."

4. After this public rebuke and warning, the matter should rightly have ended; unless, indeed, Srish Chandra, feeling himself aggrieved, had appealed to the Principal or to me against the treatment to which he had been subjected. It was quite open to him, and would have been perfectly constitutional, to say: "with the offence that I committed the Principal alone should have dealt, but instead of reporting me to the Principal for punishment, Mr. Fouracres called me an idiot, seized me by the collar, and administered to me a severe and public rebuke." Such a complaint would have been legitimate; but in dealing with it, I should have looked to the provocation which the student had given; to the necessity of bringing home to all the students emphatically and on the spot the folly and danger of such actions as that of Srish Chandra's, and to the real kindness and forbearance which prompted Mr. Fouracres' conduct. I should have told the student that he had been cheaply let off; and that after he had escaped substantial punishment for the mischief he had committed, it was not very becoming in him to complain of the lesson which he had received as an indignity or as unwarranted by rule, whatever ground might have been afforded for such a complaint under ordinary circumstances.

5. But whatever might have been the result of such an appeal, that question may be dismissed from consideration, for Srish Chandra Lahiri and his treatment by Mr. Fouracres no longer concern us. We have now to deal with the action of the other students which followed upon the events above described. The first note of warning was struck on Monday, the 25th April, when the students refused to attend the shops, and the Principal had to issue two orders before they could be induced to go to their work as usual. The same day a petition, addressed to myself and signed by 87 native students of the College, including Srish Chandra Lahiri, was presented to the Principal. In this, after referring to the harsh and unkind treatment which, as they said, they habitually received from Mr. Fouracres, and to a previous petition in which they had asked to be relieved of his authority but which, owing (as they admitted) to its disrespectful and objectionable tone the Principal had refused to forward, they stated that it had again become their "painful duty" to bring a complaint against Mr. Fouracres; and they proceeded to relate the circumstances of Srish Chandra's affair, saying that they were the sons of gentlemen and that their self-respect had been deeply hurt. It appeared that Srish Chandra, "while working at a punching-machine, accidentally injured the die." On receiving the information, "Mr. Fouracres appears to have completely lost his temper." Srish Chandra, on being called upon to explain, "admitted that he had injured the die, and expressed his willingness to pay for the cost of repair." After dismissing him with a rebuke, Mr. Fouracres subsequently learnt that the student came from the carpenters' shop. "This threw Mr. Fouracres into what we are constrained to say, amounted to an ungovernable fit of passion." He "rushed into the carpenters' shop, caught hold of the student by the neck, and turned him about for a time with violent jerks. Immediately after he again caught hold of him, raised a stick and struck the carpenters' bench several times with it." It was added that "the student throughout showed the utmost forbearance, and though his temper was put to the severest trial, did not use a single disrespectful word to Mr. Fouracres."

"Certainly," the petition goes on to say, "Srish Chandra was to blame for his ignorance and perhaps his carelessness; but a student must make a great many mistakes and such mistakes deserve kind and considerate treatment. But Mr. Fouracres, forgetting what was due from a teacher to the taught, committed a most unprovoked assault upon one who was guilty of no offence whatever, and who received the unbearable insult to which he was subjected with calm dignity." Finally, the students appealed to me for protection from similar indignities in future, declaring that "the insult which has been offered to Srish Chandra has been offered to the entire body of the native students of the College." They urged that in seeking to learn engineering they had not ceased to be gentlemen, and they prayed me to relieve them from the authority of Mr. Fouracres.

6. On receiving this petition, Mr. Slater, the Officiating Principal, pointed out to the students its insubordinate character, and gave them 24 hours to withdraw it. This they declined to do, and the petition was accordingly forwarded to me. Mr. Slater would indeed have been justified in refusing to forward the petition; but he considered that he had already given the students ample warning and opportunity; and seeing the temper they were in, he thought it the better course to send the petition to its destination. When it reached my hands, I saw at once that it must be withdrawn. The students had in fact taken upon themselves to be the judges in a cause with which they had no concern, to criticise and condemn the conduct of one placed in authority over them, and to combine together with the object of getting Mr. Fouracres censured, and themselves relieved from his control. Whatever Mr. Fouracres' violence on the occasion referred to may have been, it was at any rate not directed against them; the aggrieved student might have appealed to myself or to the Government, and an inquiry would have been made; but it would be impossible to maintain a shadow of discipline in our schools and colleges, if the students were allowed openly to canvass an act of authority by which they were not personally affected, and to award public praise or censure according to their estimate of its character. A memorial of students which is based on that ground is essentially and under all circumstances an offence against discipline; it cannot be listened to, but must be withdrawn and atoned for at once, without inquiry into the subject-matter of the complaint.

7. The memorial of the students was based on the specific case of Srish Chandra Lahiri; but it alleged further that they were habitually ill-treated by Mr. Fouracres, and that Srish Chandra's case was merely the climax of a long series of insults and injuries. Had their memorial been confined to a statement of the injuries of which they themselves had been the victims, it would have been possible to receive it. If a number of students have been the sufferers by a common outrage or injustice, I should not hesitate to receive a joint memorial in which they stated their grievances and asked for redress in respectful terms. At the same time, combinations even of this kind tend to subvert discipline and are by no means to be encouraged. Students should thoroughly understand that, if they combine in a memorial against their teachers on those placed in authority over them, they do so at their own risk. If they fail to make out their case, or if the grievances complained of are trivial, they render themselves liable to punishment for their act of combination, which is an extreme measure only justified by success. But in the present instance such an inquiry was not necessary or possible. The statement of habitual ill-treatment was couched in the most general terms; but even had it been specific and detailed, it would have been impossible to receive it when put forward in support of an appeal against conduct by which the memorialists were not aggrieved, and with which they had no direct concern. The fact that their memorial was a protest against Mr. Fouracres' treatment of Srish Chandra, made it impossible, so long as that memorial was in existence, to inquire whether the other grievances referred to had any foundation. In fact, their action in tacking on Srish Chandra's case to a statement of their own grievances was irrational; since their interference in the former made it impossible for me to take any immediate notice of the latter.

8. I therefore sharply criticised the conduct of the students in my letter No. 3T, dated 3rd May, to the Principal, and ordered them, under pain of removal from the College, to withdraw their signatures from the memorial with an apology, and to pay a nominal fine for their insubordination. After pointing out that it was open to Srish Chandra to have appealed against any grievances of his own, I observed:—"It is not to be tolerated that his fellow-students should take up his quarrel, should combine to frame a joint memorial in his interest, and constituting themselves the judges in his cause, should demand their removal as a body from one who has been placed in authority over them. Such a proceeding strikes at the root of all discipline." Three days were allowed them to make up their minds. I added that Srish Chandra had made no attempt to atone for his original offence, and had aggravated it by joining the other students in signing the memorial. I therefore directed his removal from the College. Before these orders were issued, seven students had voluntarily withdrawn their names from the memorial with an expression of regret. They stated that in signing the memorial they had been 'misinformed as to the facts of the case;' and they added that they had "never been harshly or unjustly treated by Mr. Fouracres." These students were allowed to withdraw their names, and no further action was taken against them. There remained therefore 79 students who had to choose between submission and expulsion. During the three days of grace, Mr. Slater, the Principal, spoke privately to the monitors and to the more prominent among the students, and pointed out to them how untenable was the position they had taken up. Knowing also how strong the combination was, Mr. Slater let the students know, through the head monitor, that he had made an arrangement by which any student who wished to apologise might do so without its being known to his fellows. It turned out afterwards, that all the students who signed the memorial had bound themselves by an oath that if they did not get redress they would leave the College.

9. On the expiration of the days of grace, the Principal informed me to my surprise that only five students had submitted (one of whom stated that his signature had been added to the memorial without his consent), and that the remaining 74 had consequently been expelled from the College. Four of these, who had been absent from the College when my orders were read out, and who professed ignorance of them, were afterwards re-admitted on apologising and paying the fine. The number of students finally expelled was therefore 70; and after their removal, the College consisted of 102 students, of whom 71 were Europeans and 31 natives. The number has since increased to 110 by the admission of new students, of whom four are natives.

10. I have said that the refusal of the students to obey my orders surprised me, for my previous experience of insubordination and its treatment had led me confidently to expect that the students would follow the wise course and submit to the voice of authority when once clearly expressed. They refused to submit, and no alternative was left but to remove them from the College. It is therefore worth while to show that the course which followed was in complete conformity both with the orders of Government and with the constant practice of this Department. The case indeed is completely covered by the Resolution of the Government of India in the Home Department, No. 1649, dated the 19th October 1876 with regard to the submission of joint memorials by officers of all classes in civil employ; and what is applicable to bodies of public servants of full age and matured judgment, may be regarded as being à fortiori applicable to students still under instruction and discipline:—

“Certain memorials have recently been presented to the Governor-General in Council or to the Secretary of State, by various bodies of officers in civil employ, complaining of grievances or desiring boons which affect generally the classes of officers from which those memorials emanated. In some instances the memorials were signed by individuals who could not possibly have been personally affected in the matter which forms the subject of the memorial. Such circumstances give to the proceedings resulting in such memorials an appearance of organized combination, which it is impossible, consistently with the maintenance of official discipline and subordination, to allow.

“His Excellency in Council is accordingly pleased to forbid any combination for the purpose of memorialising any authority to which the memorialists may be subordinate,” and the orders go on to say that no officer may submit any memorial in respect to any matter connected with the official position which he occupies, in which he is not personally interested and that any officer submitting such a memorial will incur the serious displeasure of Government.

11. I have also been at the pains to look up some previous examples of the way in which insubordination among College students has been dealt with: and I notice some of those which, as instances of combination, bear more closely on the present case:—

- (a) In 1862, a student of the Medical College was caught stealing, made over to the police, and sentenced; thereupon the students in a body wrote a letter to Dr. Chevers, the Principal, in which they stated that they had for a long time been ill-treated in various ways, and as they had received no redress they intended to leave the College. The whole body, 136 in number, in fact absented themselves for some time. The Director of Public Instruction submitted the case to Government, and supported the recommendations of the College Council, that all should be expelled. The Lieutenant-Governor declined to sanction this course, and directed that a short period should be allowed to the students to come forward and express contrition when each case would be separately dealt with; expulsion being reserved for those who remained obstinate. The result was that 95 of the students apologised, and were then directed to state their grievances; which resulted in a list of false or frivolous complaints, showing, as Dr. Chevers maintained that the students in reality disliked the hospital work, and that the alleged grievances were, in the case of many of them, merely an excuse for leaving the College. The 95 students were re-admitted, and no attempt was made to find out the ringleaders. The orders of Government ran as follows:—
“It is better therefore that their past conduct should be forgiven, and that they should be freely re-admitted, with a solemn warning that they must henceforth submit themselves entirely to the discipline of the College, and conform to the requirements of their professional education; and that, though every student is at liberty to make any complaint, either to any of the Professors of the College or to the Principal, and may be certain that he will be patiently listened to, and that justice will be done, it must at the same time be clearly understood that any attempt either to defy authority or to combine for the purpose of obtaining redress for real or imaginary grievances will be severely punished.”
- (b) In 1873, the Principal of the Hooghly College rebuked a student of the fourth year for impertinence and ordered him to leave the room; telling him that if he did not go at once, he would send for a chuprassie to remove him. Upon this the boys of the second, third, and fourth years combined together to absent themselves from College, and memorialised the Director and the Lieutenant-Governor for an inquiry, on the ground that this was only one out of many instances of harsh and insulting treatment on the part of the Principal. The inquiry was refused by Government, and the case made over for disposal to the Director, by whom the following orders were passed. Two ringleaders in the combination were expelled from the Hooghly and all other Government Colleges, and their names reported to the Registrar of the University. Four others were rusticated for the remainder of the Session. Ten scholars were deprived of their scholarships. Two students were fined Rs. 10 each, and 22 Rs. 5 each. Four students who took part in the disturbance, but afterwards withdrew their names, were admonished and pardoned.
- (c) In 1879, the Principal of the Rajshahye College one day directed the students of the fourth-year class to leave a room into which he had forbidden them to enter before a certain hour, and told them to go to their waiting-room until he was ready to receive them. This order the students resented as an insult; they retired to their waiting-room, but refused to return when the lecture-hour struck. Mr. Dowding sent for them twice; and finally told them that if they did not appear within five minutes, he would strike off their names. This had no effect; the names of the students (four in number) were struck off, and the matter reported to me. The Inspector of Schools was sent to investigate the affair, with instructions that the re-admission of the students should not be considered until they had fully apologised. Before the Inspector arrived, the students had become convinced of their error. They submitted a written apology to the Principal, in which they asked his forgiveness and prayed to be re-admitted to the College. On the Inspector's arrival, finding that the students had returned to a sense of duty, he explained to them the gravity of their offence, and recommended that they should be re-admitted on payment of a fine of Rs. 8 each; with that the matter ended.

- (d) At the beginning of the present year, the Principal of the Hooghly College presented to me a petition signed by the students of the newly formed third-year class in which they complained of the Lecturer in Botany as inefficient (they stated that they had formed "a most unfavourable impression of his abilities,") and informed me that they as a body wished to take up Physics instead of Botany unless a better professor were appointed. Independently of the fact that these students at any rate had had no experience of the Lecturer's teaching, and had gained from hearsay all they knew on the subject, it so happened that at the moment of receiving this memorial the results of the B. A. examination just ended were before me, showing that the pupils of this particular professor had been brilliantly successful in the examination. I requested the Principal to inform the students that they must at once withdraw the memorial with an ample apology, failing which they would be removed from the College. They immediately apologised, stating that they were now "convinced of the fact that we have proved impertinent in making such an application. We are sincerely sorry that all of us were simply worked up by some groundless rumours which led us to take such a rash step, and are anxious to retract the offensive remarks regarding the reputation and abilities" of the lecturer. The students were then pardoned.

12. These (with one other, less important, but of a precisely similar character, which occurred at the Medical College in 1870, are all the cases of combination that I have been able to find. In all the combination was at once repressed; and the students were either punished at once for combining, or given the opportunity of submitting an apology as the condition of escaping the penalty of expulsion. In each case, the ground of the combination was either some action by which the students themselves were not directly affected or some grievance which was found to be either frivolous or false. In no case was it contemplated that a student who refused to submit could escape the penalty of expulsion.

13. Seventy students having, however, chosen the alternative of expulsion, it now became desirable (as it also became possible) to inquire into those general grounds of discontent which had apparently actuated the students in their determination. With this object I proceeded to Calcutta on the 16th May, and invited the Board of Visitors to meet me at the College on the 19th. In the meantime I let it be known to the dismissed students that if they even at that late hour expressed contrition, begged pardon for their misconduct and their disobedience to my orders, and prayed to be re-admitted, there might still be hope. At the same time, I used every means to try and find out what those grievances were of which the students complained. I at once gave them to understand, through persons with whom they were in communication, that since they were now no longer under my authority, they were at liberty to make any communication to me, whether in the form of a joint memorial or in any other way, so as to state their case in the fullest possible manner. The first result of this invitation was, as I learn, the preparation of a memorial to me, in which, while stating their grievances and reiterating their complaints against Mr. Fouracres, they prayed to be re-admitted to the College. A memorial in that form I declined to receive; causing them to be informed that, if they desired to be re-admitted, their submission must be absolute and could only take the form of an apology for disobedience, without any reference to what was in that case irrelevant matter. This produced no effect; and I accordingly requested one of the Board to invite such of the students as had any representation to make, to be present at the meeting. None of these, however, attended.

14. At the meeting of the Board a partial inquiry was made. Mr. Fouracres stated at length the facts of the Srish Chandra affair as given above, declared that he had treated the boys with uniform kindness, that he had never called any of them by opprobrious names, and had no suspicion that he was regarded with dislike by them. He added, "I have known that they looked upon me as a task-master, who insisted on having his orders obeyed; but I did not suppose there was anything approaching to dislike or ill-feeling in their minds against me." On the morning, when the boys left, some 30 or 40 of them came to his house and said, "Sir, we have come to wish you good-bye, and to thank you for the kindness you have shown to us." Mr. Fouracres replied, "I am very sorry you are going away, and for what has taken place, and you have even now time to withdraw your names." When he said he was sorry, he did not mean in any way to apologise, he was sorry for their sakes. One of the students said to him on that occasion, "Sir, can you recommend me to any firm in Calcutta, so that I can complete my practical training?" Mr. Fouracres replied that he should be sorry to do anything of the sort; for the boy would probably get up a petition against some person or other on the establishment within a month. Questioned as to his treatment of different classes of students, Mr. Fouracres said:—"I have never made any distinction between Europeans or Eurasians and natives. Had a European apprentice done the same damage, I would have taken my stick and thrashed him." Mr. Slater, the Principal, also described the occurrences, so far as they came within his own knowledge. He said that when the memorial was presented to him, he pointed out its insubordinate character to the monitors, and gave the students 24 hours to withdraw it, telling them that if it was withdrawn, he should take no further action. On their asking to be excused from work in the shops, he declined to pass such an order, and on their still refusing to attend, he told them through their monitors that if they stayed away from the shops, the classes also would be closed to them. This had the desired effect, and they returned to their work in the shops. After the Director's orders were received, a large number of the insubordinate students remained in the College, some went home. The students generally said that they were acting by the advice of their guardians. One of the senior monitors told him about the oath which the students had taken, and said "if the oath was the only thing, we could disregard that, but there were other things." He did not explain what, and Mr. Slater understood him to mean that they must go with the stream.

Baboo Debendranath Roy, the Assistant Surgeon attached to the College, said that he had only been there a few days, but from what he had seen, he should say that Mr. Fouracres was "awfully kind" to the boys; in fact he treated them like his own children. The Assistant Surgeon continued:—"I have never heard him use to a student any word which was in any way objectionable, and I have had many opportunities of judging since I have been here. Some of the native students of the apprentice class have told me they have no reason to think that Mr. Fouracres is unkind to them. I believe that some of the students did not understand Mr. Fouracres. A relative of mine, a fourth-year student, who signed the memorial, said to me when I explained the position, that he had not understood Mr. Fouracres at first, but saw no reason why he should not now withdraw his name, and he did so accordingly. Mr. Fouracres may have a little of the John Bull roughness in his manner."

Aswini Kumar Mookerjee, an old student under Mr. Fouracres at the Dehree School, said that he had never heard Mr. Fouracres speak unkindly to any boy in the school. He was not asked to sign the memorial, the other students knew that he would not sign. "All the students of the engineer-class who have resigned, murmured at Mr. Fouracres' treatment of Srish Chandra. Srish Chandra said to his friends in my hearing, 'I do not know what to do.'"

The only important statement as representing the side of the disaffected, was that of Bhushan Chandra Banerjee, a fourth-year engineering student. Mr. Fouracres withdrew while he gave his statement, and he was invited to speak his mind with perfect freedom. He said—"I signed the petition against Mr. Fouracres, and subsequently withdrew my signature. I signed the petition because I thought that our case would be heard if it came before the Director. Our case was that we wished to be treated by Mr. Fouracres in a kind manner. For a slight fault Mr. Fouracres used to rebuke us; for example, if our houses were not kept perfectly clean. The fact is the students cannot keep their houses clean like Europeans. One day he entered into the house in which I live, and said, 'Dirty creatures, you are not gentlemen.' Another day he heard a noise and said, 'You are howling like jackals.' I heard both these expressions. Formerly he used to come frequently, every day or every other day to our quarters, but latterly not so often. I was sick when Srish Chandra's case occurred. I heard about it afterwards. All the students felt aggrieved at what had happened. They thought it was an insult to them: that is, to the native students. If Srish Chandra Lahiri had been a European student, it is probable that the students would have felt equally aggrieved. The story told me was that Srish Chandra broke the die of the punching-machine, and that Mr. Fouracres, learning that he did not belong to the fitters' shop, got angry, seized him by the neck, gave him some jerks and pushed him several paces. The students are allowed to go from one shop to another. Mr. Fouracres had once told the bungalow monitors that in the hot weather the students need not work for three hours, but might go and observe the working of the machines. All the students understood that they were then allowed to go from one shop to another when machines were working. Many of the students were in the habit of using the machines without permission. There might have been rules forbidding students to go from one workshop to another, or to meddle with machines, but we never heard of them and no notice to such effect was given. The students would perhaps have used the machines whether Mr. Fouracres was present or not. I cannot say certainly.

"I withdrew my name from the petition because I was ordered to apologise by the Director, and I obeyed the order. I wrote the apology with my guardian's permission. I cannot say whether Mr. Fouracres was unkind to the European boys. All the students who signed the memorial took an oath that if they did get sufficient redress of their grievances they would leave the College. It was written in English on a piece of paper, and signed by all the students. Srish Chandra Lahiri was not one of the ringleaders. I cannot say exactly whether he signed the oath. By 'grievances,' we meant that we wished Mr. Fouracres to treat us in a kind manner. The unkindness complained of consisted in the harsh words I have quoted, and the present case of Srish Chandra Lahiri, I have experienced no further unkindness at his hands, nor have I heard of any. In asking for redress of our grievances, we did not wish Mr. Fouracres to be removed from the College; we never thought of that. Everybody says that Mr. Fouracres is kind; but the Engineering students have not experienced it."

Mr. Fouracres, after this statement had been read over to him, said that he had not used the expressions quoted. His constant endeavour had been to conciliate the native students, on the ground that they were boys unaccustomed to labour; and his great wish was to bring them into it gradually. (As will hereafter be seen, Mr. Fouracres subsequently recollected and described to me the circumstances which had given colour to the charge that he had called the students 'pigs,' 'jackals,' 'not gentlemen,' &c.)

15. The statement of Bhushan Chandra Banerjee was precisely of that kind which the Board and I myself wished to obtain. Though the complaint of unkind or unsympathetic treatment by Mr. Fouracres was somewhat vague and general, yet it contained definite charges into the truth of which it was possible to inquire. Again, the native member of the Board to whom I have already referred, though he could not prevail on any of the expelled students to accompany him to the meeting, yet brought with him a paper containing a list of the grievances which the students had been able to formulate, after three hours' discussion at a meeting held the night before, at which he had been present. The grievances were the following:—

- (1) "Though a separate latrine has been erected for the servants in compliance with the order of the Board of Visitors, the old one is still sadly wanting repairs.
- (2) "No ghât has yet been erected for the native students.
- (3) "The store rooms have been made only lately. The doors ought to have been made of wood.
- (4) "There is no urinal."

After the meeting was over, I asked another native member of the Board if he would bring any of the expelled students to my house, so that they might say what they wanted to say. He told me afterwards that he had conveyed my message, but none of the students had come to him.

16. At length, on the 23rd May, a student named Chandra Kanta Sen, whom I had known and taken some interest in before these occurrences, and to whom I had awarded a special scholarship, called at my house and was at once admitted. In an interview of an hour's duration he endeavoured to explain to me his own conduct and feelings in the matter. I urged him to speak his mind with perfect frankness, as my chief desire was to see things as it possible from his point of view. But even thus I succeeded in getting from him very few definite statements of ill-treatment or unkindness. The burden of his complaint was that the native students had felt from the first that Mr. Fouracres did not sympathise with or care for them, that he did not understand them, their needs or grievances, and that they had seen things going from bad to worse, until at length they were absolutely disheartened and without hope for the future. I pointed out that this was not a very robust or manly tone to adopt; that every specific request for improved accommodation or for increased comforts that the students had from time to time made, whether to the Lieutenant-Governor on his visit to the College, to the Board of Visitors, or to myself, had been promptly complied with, that as they knew, the establishment of a mechanical training-school for natives was an experiment, and that they could not expect every convenience to be supplied them at once; that Mr. Fouracres had done all that he could, and that he naturally supposed the students would make the best of their indifferent accommodation until the success of the experiment had been established, and Government had sanctioned further outlay; and that at any rate Mr. Fouracres was not responsible for the character of the accommodation provided. Until this outbreak, I added, no one, and least of all Mr. Fouracres, suspected that there was any serious discontent amongst the students; and it appeared to me that they had brooded over their grievances until they had assumed proportions far beyond their real character. (Mr. Fouracres, I may parenthetically remark, is inclined to attribute the discontent of the students largely to the fact that they never join the European members of the College in the sports of the play-ground, but hang about their houses during the time allotted to recreation.) Chandra Kanta listened quietly to what I had to say, but appeared to be in no way convinced.

At any rate the only definite statements affecting Mr. Fouracres that I obtained from Chandra Kanta Sen were the following:—

- (1) The occasional use of harsh language
- (2) On one occasion Mr. Fouracres had said:—"you complain of these bungalows; why they are far better than (or palaces compared with) your own huts."
- (3) The students' request for a store-room was refused or neglected, on the plea of want of room.
- (4) No roads were made in that part of the compound where the students lived.
- (5) Ceiling-cloths, though finally provided, were not immediately given when asked for.
- (6) No cook-room was provided for the use of those students who lived outside.

17. Thus I had received, from one source or another, certain definite charges reflecting on Mr. Fouracres' character for kindness and consideration towards the native students; though at the same time these charges, supposing them all to be well-founded, did not strike me as being of such importance as to justify the outbreak of the students, or indeed to make it in any way intelligible. I also searched the native papers for further statements of the same tenor; and I referred them all to Mr. Fouracres or whoever else might be affected for an explanation of them. I believe that in the following paragraphs I have dealt with every charge of this kind that has been publicly made, or that has in any other way been brought to my notice.

18. All these statements may be classed under two heads:—

- (1) Charges relating to the inferior accommodation of the native students.
- (2) Charges of harsh or insulting language used towards them, or of unkind treatment.

With regard to the first ground of complaint. This much may be said at the outset in order to mark off the limits within which Mr. Fouracres' responsibility can be declared to lie. The allotment of the main building to the European students, and of the detached bungalows to the natives, was not Mr. Fouracres' doing but was the act of Government. It may serve to remove misapprehension if the reasons for that appropriation are stated. Early in March 1880, when His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor visited the College, the question of accommodation was discussed. Of the three wings that were then empty, one was required for class-rooms. It was decided that the Professors of the College with their families must, like the Principal, live on the premises; and a second wing was reserved for them on payment of rent. With regard to the third wing some discussion took place. In the first place there was not room in it for all the students, European and native, who might possibly join the College. In the second place, the European students, 54 in number, who had just arrived from Dohree, had to be provided for. Thirdly, if regard were had to the ordinary habits and manner of living of Europeans and natives, the bungalows, should it be found necessary to occupy them, were less unsuited to the latter than to the former. Lastly, it was by no means certain that native students would join the College in large numbers under its new constitution which now included a hard course of workshop training. It was therefore decided to place the Dohree students, together with any other Europeans who might join the College, in the third wing of the building. As to the accommodation of the rest, it was known that a native nobleman of Calcutta had offered to provide funds for building a hostel within the College compound; but in the uncertainty that still existed as to the extent to which native students would join or would remain in the College, it was not thought necessary to urge him to carry out that project. Meanwhile, the classes of the Civil Engineering Department of the Presidency College were to be transferred to Seebpore on the 3rd April. It was at first proposed to bring them over and take them back daily in a steam-launch to be provided for the purpose; and in the notification published in the Calcutta Gazette on the 10th March 1880, it was stated that a provision "for the boarding of native students will be made hereafter. Meanwhile a boat will be provided to convey students residing in Calcutta to and from the institution daily." But before the native students joined the College, many of them had come over to look at the existing buildings, which had been put into thorough repair, and declared themselves willing to occupy them. This course was accordingly sanctioned. At the same time it was known that the measure was a purely provisional one, and that it would be necessary, if the experiment succeeded, to make good and permanent arrangements hereafter for the accommodation of native students. Meanwhile, until it was known how far those students would stand the hard work of the shops, it was thought unnecessary to incur heavy expenditure in providing buildings for which occupants might not in fact be found.

19. Before passing to the time when Mr. Fouracres' responsibility may be said to begin, it may be advisable to refer to a mischievous and untrue statement with regard to the intentions of Government which recently appeared in one of the weekly papers. In order to show the insincerity of Government from the beginning with regard to the Seebpore College, it was stated in the article referred to that, while the graduates of the college were at first promised appointments as apprentice engineers, by a recent resolution they were declared eligible only for temporary appointments not exceeding the rank of a first-grade overseer. The resolution referred to in this passage (No. 4E, dated 2nd April 1881,) was passed solely in the interests of the Seebpore students. The Government of India had expressed an opinion in September 1880 that it was undesirable to retain a quasi-permanent establishment, such as that of the temporary apprentice engineers entertained in Bengal. Those appointments were consequently abolished. But in order to make up for the loss thus incurred, the Government of Bengal, in confirmation and extension of previous orders to the same tenor, now declared that the passed students of the Seebpore College should have the first claim to all temporary subordinate appointments that might hereafter fall vacant. The first-grade assistant overseerships to which they were thus made eligible were of the value of Rs. 100 a month, the same as that of the temporary apprentice engineerships which had been abolished. With regard to higher appointments, the Government of India has also, at the instance of the Bengal Government, reserved for students of the Seebpore College a certain proportion of those engineer appointments which are to be filled up in this country; and a similar course has, I understand, recently been taken with regard to appointments in the Forest Department.

20. Returning to the question of Mr. Fouracres' responsibility for such defects as existed in the accommodation provided for native students, it must be borne in mind (though in much of the criticism that I have read on this subject it appears to have been forgotten) that the supervision of students was not in Mr. Fouracres' sole charge. He was in fact, throughout the occurrences referred to, gradually and steadily organizing the large workshop establishment, employing many hundreds of men, which had just been opened at Seebpore. It demanded the exercise of all his powers to bring the shops into working order, to procure stores and material, to direct and supervise work and construction, and to carry out the heavy orders, amounting to some lakhs of rupees in yearly value, which reached him from the Public Works and other Departments. Knowing this, I have often been surprised at the way in which Mr. Fouracres found time to attend to and provide for the needs of the students, and at the forethought which he sometimes showed in anticipating their wants. He frequently came to see me in Calcutta, and was always full of enthusiasm about the future of the College, perfectly contented with the work and demeanour of the students, and confident that he would be able to turn them, natives and Europeans alike, into good workmen as soon as they had settled down. 'The native students,' he would say, 'are a bit uncomfortable now, but they are making the best of it, and are satisfied that we are doing what we can for them;' and he would end by explaining some project for increasing their comfort.

It should also be remembered that Mr. Fouracres, like other Executive Engineers, was bound by the rules and practice of the Public Works Department, and that, for any work involving considerable outlay on bricks and mortar, he had to obtain regular sanction. Delay that really arose from departmental rules, might possibly be attributed by the students to indifference; and I know, on the authority of one of their number, that at the time of the outbreak the students, as will hereafter appear, were ignorant that Mr. Fouracres had completed the necessary designs for permanent buildings such as would satisfy all their requirements. In minor details he had all the authority that was necessary, and they were carried out under his orders by the sub-overseer in charge. The spirit in which Mr. Fouracres accepted this portion of his duty may be gathered from the standing orders which he issued to the sub-overseer, namely, to execute at once, and without waiting for orders, any petty alterations tending to promote their comfort that the students might wish to have made. The work was to be done first, and sanction obtained afterwards.

21. I can now take up the history of Mr. Fouracres' relations with the native students from the time that they joined the College in April 1880. The quarters allotted to them consisted, at that time of one two-storied brick building, with regard to which no complaint has ever been made; and of three lower roomed bungalows well raised from the ground, with the floors supported on masonry flues so that, with the ventilation below, the floors are dry in the rainy season. No serious objection was, I believe, at any time made to these houses; the floor of one of them was, however, in bad order, and on this being pointed out, a new Portland cement floor was laid down. It soon appeared that the existing buildings would probably be insufficient for the accommodation of the native students, who were then sending in applications for admission in large numbers; and orders were issued to build at once four new bungalows capable of holding fifty students each. These were constructed in a very inexpensive scale, partly on account of the provisional and experimental character of the whole undertaking, but chiefly in order to avoid delay, and to have some sort of accommodation ready for all who might apply and be qualified for admission. They were in fact run up in a few weeks, in June and July. Unfortunately they were provided with only beaten-earth floors; and when the bungalows were finished, the floors were found to be very damp. The students represented to the Principal that the new houses were not habitable; and Mr. Downing, finding on inspection that the complaint was well founded, at once took steps to replace the earthen floors by asphalt, laid on a concrete foundation. At this time there was no necessity for any of the students to occupy the new buildings, as there was sufficient accommodation for them in the old. An estimate was framed for altering the floors; and it was finally decided to lay down new floors in two of the bungalows.

About the same time the students residing in the old bungalows complained that dust fell down on to their beds from the bamboos of the roof. Ceiling cloths were accordingly put up, as Mr. Fouracres reports, "without delay and without waiting for sanction."

22. When the rains had set in strongly, the water began to lie on the ground adjoining the native students' quarters, and they complained, with reason, that they were unable to get away from their houses with dry feet. It was in August, if I remember rightly, that Colonel Stanton, Mr. Levinge, and myself paid a visit to the Seabpore College, in order to investigate these and other matters. The native students presented a paper containing a list of alterations or improvements that they wished to be made, and all were at once agreed to. Roads were made above the level of the wet ground, so as to enable the students to get about without inconvenience. Under Colonel Stanton's instructions, an estimate for filling up a tank and digging drains was prepared, and on its being sanctioned, the cutting of the drains was begun in October, when the students were away for the vacation. As there has been little rain since October, the value of these drains has not been felt; but it is certain that they have greatly improved that part of the compound which surrounds the quarters of the native students. In November and the following months much sickness prevailed, and weekly health reports were, at my request, sent me by the Principal during several months; but I noticed at the time, and now call attention to the fact, that the percentage of sick was throughout that period higher, and generally considerably higher, among the European than among the native students.

It should be borne in mind that on the 14th of August Mr. Fouracres went on sick leave to England, returning on the 7th January 1881. After his return, at the request of the native students, he built bridges over the drains in front of their houses.

23. The matter of the latrine, about which a good deal has been said, furnished another cause of discontent. I have already explained that when the native students elected to reside on the premises, it became necessary to make hasty provision for their accommodation. Cook-rooms were got ready, and servants' houses were already in existence (the latter of a very indifferent character, and a constant cause of complaint); but there was no latrine. A temporary one was ordered to be built; and to save money two extra partitions were put up for the native servants. All the domestic arrangements of the students' establishment had been left in their own hands; and this distribution was explained to them. Owing to lax discipline, it afterwards appeared that the servants were in the habit of using all parts of the latrine indiscriminately. When this was pointed out by the students to Mr. Fouracres, he reminded them of the arrangement that had been made, and told them that the remedy lay in their own hands. They, however, took no steps to insist on that arrangement being carried out, but let things go on as before. At first, again, the partitions of the latrine were not provided with separate purdahs, a single screen running along the whole length. When the inconvenience of this was pointed out to Mr. Fouracres, he supplied rough but efficient purdahs to each partition. I have examined the site, and though the structure is unsightly, and obviously temporary in its character, yet it is sufficient in all essential respects, and is kept remarkably clean.

24. The question of taking up a piece of land to the north of the College, so as to extend the compound up to the Howrah road, and to provide the space that was necessary if permanent buildings were to be erected, began to be mooted at an early date. When, in the cold weather, the Lieutenant-Governor again visited the College, the insufficient accommodation provided for the students, and the discomfort that they suffered in consequence, were pointed out; and His Honor at once gave instructions that the land should be taken up, and the necessary buildings provided. The cook-room, the servants' houses, and the latrine were all of a make-shift character, and the source of much inconvenience to the students; it was therefore desirable on all grounds that the land should be acquired as speedily as possible. No delay, in fact, took place, and the land was handed over to the College authorities early in April last.

25. Meanwhile, the Board of Visitors appointed by the Resolution of the 18th December 1880 to supervise the management of the College, had held several meetings, the first of which took place on the 26th February. At that meeting the native students presented a statement of their requirements, which was made over to one of the native members of the Board for examination and report. He presented his report at the third meeting, held on the 24th March, and the following Resolutions were passed in consequence:—

- (1) That a portion of the present mess-house should be screened off, so as to provide a store-room for them.
- (2) That one of the sweepers should be told off to keep the native students' quarters, and the ground round their houses, clean.
- (3) That Dr. Pileher and Mr. Fouracres be asked to choose a site for a separate latrine for the native students, and that Mr. Fouracres be asked to build the latrines as soon as practicable.
- (4) That as soon as the land to the north of the College premises is taken up, a new mess house and cook-room be erected in one building.
- (5) That the Assistant Surgeon be appointed to act as adviser to the Superintendent as regards messing, and other matters connected with the boarding arrangements of the native students.

25. With regard to (1), it has been made a grievance that the store-room partition was not made of wood. Mr. Fouracres states:—

"This (the store-room) was done with the least possible delay. I heard no objection as to the manner in which the partition was put up, and was not aware that the students were dissatisfied because it was not made of wood. I considered that the partition, which was made of bamboos and bamboo matting, was quite good enough for the purpose, as the building in which it was placed was only a temporary one, and a new dining-hall and cook-house had to be built as soon as the land was turned over to us."

No. (2) was carried out the same day. With regard to No. (3) a separate latrine for the servants was at once put up by Mr. Fouracres; but it has since been dismantled by order of the Municipality. A plan for a permanent latrine for the students, to be made of artificial stone, was also taken in hand; and the Principal's approval to the estimates was received only a few days before the students sent in their petition.

Early in April, within a fortnight of the date of that meeting, the land to the north of the compound was taken up; and Mr. Fouracres at once set about the preparation of designs, and estimates for the mess house and cook-room mentioned in No. (4), together with a dining-hall, store-room, and servants' houses. These designs were shown to the Principal, who thought the estimated cost higher than Government would be likely to sanction, and recommended certain alterations. This took some little time; but the estimates were finally sent up with the Principal's approval on the 7th May, shortly after the outbreak.

The meaning of the 5th Resolution was that the students wished to have some native officer of position to represent their wants to Mr. Fouracres. This was the first intimation that I had received of the existence of any sort of friction between the Superintendent and the native students. From all that I had up to that time seen and heard of their mutual relations, I had come to the conclusion that the students regarded Mr. Fouracres as their warm friend and protector, and that they needed no one to intervene between him and them. But I entirely approved of the proposal to give the Assistant Surgeon a certain position as to their representation, since it would, at any rate, tend to secure their wants being more fully made known to Mr. Fouracres, and more authoritatively expressed.

26. It has been said that native students have no bathing-ghât. Very soon after the arrival of the engineering students from the Presidency College, they complained to Mr. Fouracres that the European students, when bathing, encroached on their portion of the tank; and the Europeans retorted that the natives did the same. There are two flights of steps leading down to the tank; and Mr. Fouracres at once assigned one to the Europeans and another to the natives, forbidding them to pass beyond each other's boundaries. I have lately inspected the two ghâts, and have seen that the one assigned to the native students is by far the better of the two, being double the breadth of the other, and in complete repair. The European students' ghât is a ruinous mass of brickwork, on which it is difficult and dangerous to walk. They have supplemented it by spring boards and platforms of wood erected by themselves.

27. On the general question of accommodation, Mr. Fouracres writes as follows:—

"Notwithstanding the removal of the students, I have no doubt of the success of the College. The native students who remain (some 25 in number) are progressing as favourably as I could wish, and will be a credit to their College and themselves, and an advantage to their country. The great sickness which prevailed last year, not only in the College, but throughout the whole neighbourhood of Calcutta, has almost entirely disappeared. The grounds have been thoroughly drained, and a large extent of jungle in the vicinity cut down, and there is no reason to believe that a recurrence of last year's sickness will take place. To ensure its complete success, however, it will be necessary to provide pucca houses for the native students, with accommodation not inferior to that enjoyed by the European and Eurasian boys, otherwise a spirit of discontent will always prevail, and the suspicion that an invidious distinction is being made between the two races will continue. This was, I believe, the original intention of Government; and the native boys have been several times informed by me that there was no doubt of the erection of such buildings eventually, once the Government was fully satisfied that the natives would take to the work of their adopted profession." This has always been the intention of Government; and the time has now come when it should be carried out.

28. I turn to the second series of charges against Mr. Fouracres, that of using harsh or insulting language to the students, and of treating them unkindly; and, as before, I proceed to notice all the complaints that have reached me from every source. As to the present charge, Mr. Fouracres states:—

"So far from my conduct having been habitually harsh, I have always used my utmost endeavours to make the boys, natives and Europeans, as comfortable as possible. I have never used a harsh or disagreeable word, except when it was absolutely necessary in the maintenance of discipline. If my conduct towards the natives had been harsh, I cannot understand their motives in coming to me in a body on the morning of the day on which they left, to thank me for all the kindness which they had received from me."

29. It has been stated that Mr. Fouracres has on various occasions called the students pigs, dogs, jackals, sheep, dirty creatures, not gentlemen. When this was mentioned to Mr. Fouracres, he indignantly denied the accusation. But when I saw him again, a few days afterwards, he had recalled to mind certain passing observations which had altogether escaped his memory at the time, but which had apparently given ground for the charges in question. The circumstances in each case were the following:—

(a) Pigs. This occurrence took place just after the memorial had been presented.

The account which Mr. Fouracres gives of it is this:—"Subsequently to the petition being forwarded, I was going my rounds with the new doctor, inspecting the quarters, when I pointed out to him, or he pointed out to me, the untidy and dirty condition of the interior of their houses. I said to him, 'Doctor, these young men have charged me with not treating them as gentlemen' [referring to the complaint to that effect in the student's memorial]. "Gentlemen, I think, ought to keep their houses cleaner; this room is as untidy as a pig-stye." This, I believe, is their reason for accusing me of having called them not gentlemen but pigs." Mr. Fouracres' statement is entirely corroborated by the Assistant Surgeon, who sat before the Board of Visitors:—"About the 8th of May I went round the boys' quarters with Mr. Fouracres, and saw that the houses were awfully dirty, and flies swarming all over the place. I asked the students whom I saw why they did not keep their houses clean, and I pointed out the improvements they could make. To my surprise one of the students said (in Bengali) that I could not expect students to keep their houses as scrupulously clean as European houses. I replied in English that such a statement was a libel on any native, especially on Hindus. Mr. Fouracres merely said that the house was 'awfully dirty,' or 'abominably dirty,' and that it was 'like a pig-stye.' I told them that if they liked they could keep their houses cleaner."

This includes the charge of having called the students 'dirty creatures,' 'not gentlemen.'

(b) Dogs. Mr. Fouracres states:—"In March last 15 or 16 new students were admitted, and they came to me to have a place pointed out to them to cook in. I told them there was sufficient room in the existing cook-houses. They said that the old students objected to their using this place, on the plea that there was no room. Thinking that there was, I went to the cook-house and sent for some of the old students. They said that there was no room. I stepped inside the first cook-house, but did not go a yard beyond the threshold, seeing that the space was fully occupied. I said, 'let me see the next cook-house,' a much larger but a temporary one. On the doors being opened I stepped inside, as I had done in the first case, I looked round the room and said, 'why, there is room for 10 or 15 fires here; and I cannot understand your objecting to the new students cooking in this room.' I then gave the new students orders to occupy the space I pointed out to them. The old students then informed me that, on account of my entering their cook-room, they would be obliged to destroy the food that was being prepared, and also the utensils. I told them that I was very sorry, but that if they had mentioned this before I entered their cook-rooms, I would certainly not have done so. I felt that I had been entrapped into breaking one of their caste rules, and said, 'why did you not tell me this when I came out of the first house. If you had objected, I would not have entered either of the houses. You were all present, and certainly ought to have spoken out. I cannot understand why you object to one of your own caste and your own countrymen cooking in the same room with you. There is sufficient spare room here, which you do not use yourselves, nor will you allow others to use it. It reminds me of the story of the dog in the manger.' I cannot think of any other sentence in which I ever used the word 'dog' to them."

This episode is instructive; since it throws some light upon the statement made to me by Chandra Kanta Sen, that the students felt that Mr. Fouracres did not understand them and their customs.

- (c) 'Jackals.' Mr. Fouracres states:—"Some time ago the students in the octagonal bungalow were having some festivities in their quarters, in which howling and shouting were the most prominent features. They were so boisterous that no one in my house could sleep. This lasted till about half past two in the morning. I told them the next day that they had no business to make such a noise in their quarters after 9 P.M. (This is one of the rules of the College). I also said that I did not object to their talking after that hour, but I certainly did object to their howling like a pack of jackals, and preventing every one from sleeping."

- (d) 'Sheep.' Mr. Fouracres has no recollection of the use of this term.

30. Mr. Fouracres had also said, 'the bungalows are palaces compared with your own huts.' The use of the word 'huts' was unhappy; natives of the class in question do not live in huts; they live generally in good-sized houses of mud or brick. Nevertheless, in the important respects of space, light, and ventilation, the bungalows occupied by the native students were unquestionably far better, I will not say than their own houses, but at any rate than the lodgings in which such students are accustomed to live in Calcutta and other large towns. The lodgings in College Street, for example, are mostly little rooms in pucca buildings some 12 or 14 feet square, and about 10 feet high; and two or three or even four students live together in them. In the Seebore bungalows each student had not less than 1,200 or 1,400 cubic feet of space. In point of light and ventilation again, the bungalows leave little to desire, though these are perhaps advantages to which the ordinary native student attaches little importance. Still, it should be remembered that it was precisely with the object of securing to them these advantages that the movement for establishing a hostel in Calcutta was set on foot.

31. A complaint has been made that Mr. Fouracres destroyed the native students' cricket ground by needlessly sending carts across it in spite of their remonstrances; while he did not allow a native student so much as to walk across the Europeans' ground. The facts as stated by Mr. Fouracres, are these:—

"The Dehree Training School had a cricket club, and the captain of the club was having the ground prepared for the season. This ground lies between the native students' quarters and the two bathing ghats, and was intersected by a track. This track, as it crossed the cricket ground and was against an existing college rule, the European students dug up, in order that the grass might grow on it; and placed as usual a bamboo at each end of the track. One day a native student was seen passing this way; and a little boy (the smallest of the Dehree Training School) told him he must not walk across this piece of ground, as it was being prepared for a cricket field, and was against orders. The native student insisted on going this way, but was prevented from doing so by the European student, who did so without striking the offender, but by simply standing in his way (I may mention that the distance by the path is but a few yards shorter than the distance by the road.) A complaint was made to me by one of the native students; and the Captain of the Dehree Cricket Club asked me for a written order prohibiting students from crossing the ground. This I gave, although I considered it unnecessary, as I had given the order to the boys publicly on their arrival at the College. After receiving the complaint I scolded the boy for jostling the native student, and although the complainant was a bigger boy than the European, I assembled the Dehree students, and told them that they were on no account to interfere with the native students; and that if they did so, I would, on proof of the same, have the offender turned out of the College at once.

"Next, with regard to the complaint of my sending carts across the native students' cricket ground. This is a strip of land in front of the octagonal building, and is not a cricket-ground, nor is it fit for one. In August last, about the 9th or 10th, two carts arrived with a pug-mill and other articles belonging to the cement experiments; and had to be taken to one of the new temporary quarters erected for the native students, but then unoccupied. I told the carters to take them to the building. They did so the best way they could, which was close to the octagonal building, and as far as possible from the spot which had been rolled by the native students. I may have told them that they could roll the ground fifty times if they liked, but the carts must go the way I had directed, as it was not on the ground they had rolled or were intending to roll, but was close to their buildings and away from their ground."

32. I have now gone through all the specific charges which, so far as I have been able to learn, have been at any time made against Mr. Fouracres. Their character will by this time be obvious. But, with regard to one aspect of them, I would say that nothing but the most perverse ingenuity could discover in the history of all that has passed since the establishment of the College, any sign of race distinction in the treatment of Europeans and natives, always excepting the well-known, and under the circumstances inevitable, fact that the European students were much better lodged than the natives, and that the latter during the first experimental period had to endure much discomfort, to relieve which, so far as possible, was the constant object of Mr. Fouracres and of all connected with the College. With this exception, I am firmly convinced, from all I have seen from the beginning, and from the inquiries I have lately made, that the interests of the native students were at no time, whether by Mr. Fouracres or by any other officer, deliberately sacrificed to, or carelessly neglected in favour of, those of the Europeans. Mr. Fouracres has, I know, made many efforts to induce the two classes of students to mix. He says, "I have repeatedly invited them to cricket and football (with the Europeans), and to the reading room, telling them they were free to all; but, with one or two exceptions, I have never seen any of them attend those amusements. But I have seen them wait until the European boys had gone to dinner, and then make a rush for the gymnasium, but the moment dinner was over they all walked off to their quarters." This, however, may have been due to the feeling that they are not as good at manly sports as European boys are. I have heard nothing tending to show that the European boys treat roughly any native students who may join in their games, or play practical jokes on them.

33. With regard to the exaction of work from native students; if Mr. Fouracres gives a specific order to any one, he expects it to be obeyed. Some of them, indeed, need no driving. "Many of the students," he stated to the Board, "have a good deal of zeal, and do good work. They work at the bench and the forge exactly as the European apprentices do. But I believe that the majority have no taste or liking for manual work." With reference to this, Mr. Fouracres has told me that he has shut his eyes to as much as it was possible for him to wink at. He remembered, he says, that natives were not accustomed to continuous manual work, and he wanted to be habituate them to it by degrees; all he insisted on was that they should be present in the shops; but if he once got them there, he did not inquire too closely into the amount of work they were doing. With European students he was thoroughly strict. And it will be remembered how emphatically Mr. Fouracres stated before the Board what his treatment of a European apprentice would have been, if he had committed Srish Chandra's act of mischief.

34. A similar charge of preference shown towards European students to the disadvantage of natives has also been made in the press against Mr. Slater, the officiating Principal. It is said that Mr. Slater ordered the native students to quit the front seats in the lecture-room, in order to make way for the Europeans. Before stating the facts, I may explain that so far as my experience goes, Professors never interfere with the way in which students seat themselves. The constant practice is that those students who join the class early in the term occupy the front benches; those who come later, sitting behind. By common consent among the students, the earlier comers retain their advantage; and in a few days the students settle down to the seats which they will occupy for the rest of the term. In accordance with this practice, when the college re-opened, after the vacation in June 1880, the students of the first year class took their seats as they joined. The Christian students who came first occupied the front benches, and the natives as they came sat behind. This arrangement continued daily for about three weeks, and by that time each student had come to look upon the seat which he occupied as his own by right of usage. Mr. Slater, however, who was then a Professor of the college, did not approve of the arrangement; thinking that as English was not their native tongue, the native students should sit in front, so that they might have a better chance of understanding what was said. He accordingly decided to place the European students at the back, and proceeded one morning to the class-room to carry out the change. On arrival, he found all the Christian students waiting outside, complaining that the natives had appropriated the seats which they had hitherto occupied. Mr. Slater thereupon directed the European students to go back to their old seats, pointing out to the intruders that, in occupying seats which by conventional usage belonged to others, they had committed a breach of college etiquette. Next morning, the students complained to Mr. Downing, the Principal, and Mr. Slater explained to him what had occurred. On going to the class-room, Mr. Slater addressed the students, telling them that he had intended to alter the distribution of seats on the very day on which the natives had chosen to oust the European students; and added that, as they had taken the law into their own hands, he would not interfere with the existing arrangements. However, after the lapse of a few days, Mr. Slater, in order to carry out his original intention, which he still thought desirable, altered the arrangement of the tables in the room; and on the alteration being made, he gave the natives the greater share of the front row.

35. It has also been stated when two Hindu students applied for permission to live in the quarters occupied by the European boys, offering to pay the higher rent of Rs. 5 a month (the rate charged for boarders residing in the bungalows being Rs. 1 a month, which was, as a matter of fact, remitted during the past year), their application was refused. The request was not made either to Mr. Fouracres or to Mr. Slater, who have heard nothing of it; it was probably made to Mr. Downing, now on furlough. If it was made and refused, it would only have been refused on the ground that the applicants were not prepared to abide by the rules in force for the other occupants of the building. It would have been out of the question to allow them to live there, to have their meals in their own rooms, and to keep their own servants about them; since these are privileges denied to Christian students. At the present moment there are two Parsees, one Mahomedan, and one Bengali Brahmo, who live and board with the Christian students, and conform to all the rules in force for the latter...

36. The specific charges against Mr. Fouracres having been, as I cannot but consider, satisfactorily met in every case, it becomes of importance to inquire whether they were antecedently probable. Mr. Fouracres is fortunately not a stranger among us; his character is well known, and he has been prominently before the public for many years. Coming to this country in 1846, he has since been constantly employed in establishing workshops and in training workmen, both European and native. He has never before had any disturbance arising from insubordination. Never before has any breath of censure passed upon him. The record of his services is a record of high appreciation of his worth and character, by men eminently qualified to judge of them. He has received the personal commendation of men so highly placed as Sir William Denison, Sir Arthur Cotton, Sir Andrew Clerk, Sir George Campbell, Sir William Grey, Lord Mayo, and Lord Northbrook; all of whom had become acquainted, by personal observation, with his skill and success in the management of workshops and the training of mechanics. Sir Arthur Cotton wrote:—"I have repeatedly had to visit these works, and have had good opportunity of ascertaining his admirable conduct of his duties. I consider him one of the most faithful and effective of the servants of Government, a man of quite superior skill in his business, but specially a man of remarkable ability in managing and instructing native workmen. He has brought up a great number of lads, and made them superior workmen. I have never seen work equal in quality to that turned out of his workshop."

General Rendell, Joint-Secretary to the Government of Bengal, in the Irrigation Branch, wrote in 1871:—"Mr. Fouracres has already been so successful in training Native and Eurasian lads as artificers, that his opinion may be safely taken on this point; and I know of no one possessing better qualities for imparting a practical knowledge of mechanical handicraft, or to whose tuition lads might be more profitably entrusted."

Mr. Levinge wrote in much the same terms: "I know no one so competent to give an opinion on this subject as Mr. Fouracres, who has been accustomed to workshops all his life, and has himself trained up a great number of boys."

In the same year Colonel Haig, Chief Engineer, wrote: "The Lieutenant-Governor thinks it of special importance that the scheme (of a training school at Dehree), if approved, should be started at once, while Mr. Fouracres is in charge of the Dehree Workshops, as it is much more likely to succeed under his supervision than under that of any other officer." And, again, "The present Executive Engineer, Mr. Fouracres, has already shown, by the great success with which he trained a number of lads in the Godavery workshops many years ago, that he possesses peculiar qualifications for the task,—superior, I dare say, to those of any other men in India."

Colonel Gulliver, Joint-Secretary to the Government of Bengal, in the Irrigation Branch, wrote in 1874: "I cannot close this [report on the Dehree training school] without bringing to notice that the whole success of the school up to the present time has been due to the care and exertions of Mr. Fouracres, who has given every moment of his spare time to the superintending of the boys in the school, in their quarters, and at their amusements; besides being very careful that their work in the shops is properly attended to."

In the same year Mr. (now Sir Stuart) Bayley, the Commissioner of the Patna Division, after a visit to Dehree, wrote thus of Mr. Fouracres, "To whose constant supervision and successful management the reputation of the school is mainly due."

In 1875 the Secretary to the Government of India wrote: "I am also directed to place on record the high appreciation in which the Government of India holds the services of Mr. C. Fouracres in connection with the training school."

Lastly, when in 1879 the Government of Bengal proposed to establish the Seebpore Training College, a special application was made to the Government of India in the following terms for the services of Mr. Fouracres, who had then retired on pension: "Arrangements are now being made for the establishment of a technical training school at Seebpore in connection with the Calcutta workshops lately transferred to new premises at that place; and the Lieutenant-Governor considers that on public grounds it is of great importance that the new school should be started under an officer so specially fitted for the work as Mr. Fouracres." On these grounds the employment of Mr. Fouracres was sanctioned by the Government of India.

37. If I might be permitted to express my own opinion of Mr. Fouracres, based on an acquaintance of some years, I should describe him as one who, by his qualities of energy and uprightness, and by the manly and thorough discharge of his duties, had gained a position in which he commanded the respect of all who knew him well; as a man of genuine kindness of heart and incapable of injustice or oppression; as a man who would do honour to any race or country. If the native students of the Sechpore College have failed to appreciate and to value Mr. Fouracres, and if that fact reflects discredit on any body, it is not on Mr. Fouracres that the discredit should fall.

38. I now return to the immediate subject of this letter; the fact, namely, that 66 out of the 70 insubordinate students have apologised for their misconduct, and prayed to be re-admitted to the College. The petitioners, in asking leave to withdraw their names, express their regret that, in submitting the joint memorial, they "unconsciously acted in breach of a Government rule." "The error of judgment," they continue, "which marked our conduct in this respect was, we humbly beg to assure you, solely due to our ignorance of the rule, and not to any want of respect on our part for the authorities placed over us." And they conclude with the promise that, should their prayer be granted, they will render due obedience to the authorities, and act in conformity with the rules of the institution. If, then, the question be asked whether their apology is as ample and their submission as complete as we have a right to expect if the students are to be re-admitted as pupils of the Sechpore College, I must point out that the apology makes no reference, in the first place, to the disobedience which the students committed in refusing to obey my orders of the 3rd May. Their error of judgment, they say, was solely due to their ignorance of the Government rule, - a plea which was not open to them after the receipt of my letter, in which I told them that the signing of the memorial was a breach of discipline of the most serious kind. Nor, in the second place, does it make any reparation to Mr. Fouracres for the way in which he has been so cruelly maligned. Mr. Fouracres has been held up to public reprobation as a monster of tyranny and oppression; when the only fault which he has committed as that of having misunderstood the native students, and of having ascribed to them qualities of patience and good temper under trying circumstances which they did not possess. The apology is, in fact, just such an one as might have been submitted in obedience to my original orders, before they had committed their act of mutiny, followed by expulsion, and before the real character of their complaints against Mr. Fouracres had been made clear.

39. Still, I do not wish to press these points unduly. The students have submitted, and their submission may be taken to include not only their first act of indiscipline, but their second act of disobedience, when their fault was pointed out to them. And with regard to Mr. Fouracres, it must be remembered that the students do not yet know the result of my enquiries; and that the feelings, however unreasonable and mistaken, which prompted the first memorial, have not been likely to subside or to alter their character, when the only influences to which they have for more than a month been subjected are such as would confirm and exaggerate them. The students have promised to render due obedience to the authorities in future, and, therefore, if they re-enter the College, they will do so under conditions which will afford no excuse for a disaffected attitude hereafter. I would therefore counsel a lenient course, and the re-admission to the College on certain conditions of all the students, including Shish Chandra Lahiri, to whose level of disobedience the rest have now fallen. They have brooded over troubles which were real, and over grievances which as against Mr. Fouracres were mostly imaginary; they have compared their lot with that of their European fellow students, and have resented the difference in their conditions; and though their attitude until recently gave no ground for suspecting the steady growth of such feelings, it is nevertheless true that they existed, and were treated as if they did not exist. Where they have so grievously gone wrong is in having utterly misplaced their resentment in having identified Mr. Fouracres with the discomforts of which he was well aware, but which he was doing his best to remedy; and in having, when their resentment began to grow, detected in every hasty expression, or peremptory order a proof of unkindness or want of sympathy. Something too may have been added by the fact that Mr. Fouracres represented that side of their work which to most of the students was irksome and disagreeable—the labour of the shops. Again, when they had taken their rash step, and found themselves in utter bewilderment at the ruin of their prospects, it unfortunately happened that they fell under the influence of evil advisers, who, careless of the injury they were doing, magnified and exaggerated every grievance into unnatural dimensions, stung them with the suggestions of race-antipathy, treated them (poor lads!) as patriots and heroes, and exhorted them to maintain their dignified resistance to the insolent tyranny of authority. No wonder they failed to recover the mental balance they had lost. At the same time they had wise and firm friends, and among them some to whom they could look up as the recognized leaders of their community, who did not cease to point out to them their folly and presumption; and I am glad to say that bitter counsels finally prevailed.

40. I would not be thought in any way to make light of the offence of which the students have been guilty. With his many excellent qualities, the young native of Bengal is too often deficient in what may be called backbone; prone to magnify imaginary slights; apt to form too high an opinion of himself; inclined to be insubordinate when things do not go exactly as he wishes. Unlike his fellow-students at Oxford, the Bengali undergraduate would much rather be spoken of as a "gentleman" than as "man," and with regard to his position as a gentleman he is acutely sensitive; forgetful that the most manly and self-respecting persons are not in the habit of asserting their claims as gentlemen most loudly. To encourage him in such a temper and attitude is to do him a real and lasting injury; if we are to make a man of him, we must teach him by rebuke or by ridicule not to attach too much importance to trifles. Under circumstances, for example, like the present, no student should be allowed to return to the College without being made to understand clearly that the position which he has taken up is utterly untenable and absurd, and that he has run the risk of ruining his prospects for life on grounds which are ludicrously inadequate.

41. It remains to consider the conditions on which the students may be re-admitted to the College. They have, in the first place, by their own act made it impossible that they should rejoin the classes for the present term. During the time, now six weeks, that they have maintained their insubordinate attitude, their class-fellows have continued their studies, and it would be impossible either to keep the latter back until the readmitted students had made up lost ground, or to allow those students to lectures which they are now incapable of following. The course of instruction in each class would be entirely disorganized, and the diligent and orderly students would be made to suffer for the faults of their fellows. Such punishment therefore as the insubordinate students have brought upon themselves, they must inevitably endure; but I would ask for no more. Sufficient guarantees for orderly conduct and for the complete maintenance of discipline being secured, I would recommend no further penalties of any kind. If my suggestion is accepted by Government, its effect will be as follows:—The students will not return to the College during the present term, which closes for the long vacation about the 15th August. The vacation lasts until the beginning of November, when the winter session will begin. The classes will at once go into camp for field-work, and the re-admitted students may then be allowed to join them, resuming their studies at the College in the following February. The students of the Engineering classes will thus go up for their examination a year later; but in consideration of the fact that they will have gone through a practical course for one cold season beyond what is required by the rules, I would recommend that the final year of practical training, after passing the University Examination, be reduced to six months. The students will thus lose six months' time. In the same way, I would recommend in the case of overseer students and apprentices that the final year and a half of practical training be reduced to twelve months.

Any re-admitted students who have been scholarship-holders might be allowed to draw their scholarships from the 1st November, the stipend for the intervening period being forfeited.

Dated Sibpore, the 25th April 1881.

From—BANAWAN LAL BANERJEA, and 86 others,
To—The Director of Public Instruction, Bengal.

WE the undersigned native students of the Government Engineering College most respectfully beg to submit to you the following lines for your consideration, regarding the harsh and unkind treatment which we habitually receive from Mr. Fouracres, the Superintendent of the Calcutta Workshops.

2. We have had before this to complain to the Principal of Mr. Fouracres' conduct and of the harsh and unkind, and sometimes even abusive language which he is in the habit of using towards us. We complained that Mr. Fouracres did not treat us as gentlemen, and we begged of the Board of Visitors to relieve us from his authority and place us directly under the Principal, except during the workshop hours. That petition was not forwarded to the Board as its tone was thought to be objectionable, and the language employed was not deemed to be sufficiently respectful. We did not, however, present a fresh petition, and we had hoped that the simple fact of our having formally complained would ensure a better treatment at the hands of Mr. Fouracres. We have, however, been disappointed, and it is now our painful duty again to bring a complaint against him; and this time because he has subjected one of our number to the grossest insult in assaulting him in the presence of the whole workshop establishment. We are the sons of gentlemen and we hope to be treated as such; we hope that we shall receive the same considerate treatment which students receive in the other Government Colleges under your direction. Our self-respect has been deeply hurt, and we appeal to you for protection.

3. The facts of the case which we have referred to are as follows:—

On Friday last, the 22nd instant, Srish Chandra Laluri, a student of the second-year class A, while working at a punching machine accidentally injured the die. It appears that the student tried to punch a hole through a piece of iron which was too thick for the strength of the machine. The matter was in due course reported by the foreman to Mr. Fouracres. On receiving this information, Mr. Fouracres appears to have completely lost his temper. Srish Chandra was called upon to explain his conduct. He admitted that he had injured the die, and he expressed his willingness to pay for the cost of repair. Mr. Fouracres said "you are an idiot, since you tried to make a hole through such a thick piece of iron," and he threatened to report the matter to the Principal with a view to have the student expelled, or to make him pay for the cost of repairs. Subsequently, Mr. Fouracres came to learn that the student came from the carpenter's shop and did not belong to the fitter's shop. This threw Mr. Fouracres into what, we are constrained to say, amounted to an ungovernable fit of passion. Having ascertained where Srish Chandra was, Mr. Fouracres rushed into the carpenter's shop, caught hold of the student by the neck and turned him about for a time with violent jerks. Immediately after he again caught hold of him, raised a stick and struck the carpenter's bench several times with it.

It is to be observed that the student throughout showed the utmost forbearance, and though his temper was put to the severest trial, did not use a single disrespectful word to Mr. Fouracres.

Certainly, Srish Chandra was to blame for his ignorance, and perhaps his carelessness; but we submit that it is impossible for a student to learn without making a great many mistakes, and such mistakes deserve kind and considerate treatment from the teacher. Moreover, Srish Chandra unhesitatingly admitted that he had injured the die, and indeed he was quite willing to make all reparations that lay in his power. But this did not satisfy Mr. Fouracres, and forgetting what was due from a teacher to the taught, committed a most unprovoked assault upon one who was guilty of no offence whatever, and who received the unbearable insult to which he was subjected with alacrity. We appeal to you as the Head of the Education Department for protection. Any one of us may, at any time, be subjected to the treatment which Srish Chandra has received at the hands of Mr. Fouracres. We feel that the insult that has been offered to Srish Chandra, has been offered to the entire body of the native students of the College. We appeal to you that we may be spared the possibility of such indignities in the future. In seeking to learn engineering we have not ceased to be gentlemen; and manual labour, it is to be hoped, has not degraded us in the estimation of our teachers.

We therefore most humbly pray that you will be good enough to take our grievances into your earnest consideration, and to relieve us from the authority of Mr. Fouracres.

No. 536, dated Howrah, the 26th April 1881.

Memo. from—J. S. SLATER, Esq., Officiating Principal, Govt. Engineering College, Howrah,

To—The Director of Public Instruction.

UNDERSIGNED has the honor to forward in original a petition from the native students of the college for orders. A copy of the petition has been forwarded to the Superintendent, Calcutta Workshops, for information.

No. 3T, dated Darjeeling, the 3rd May 1881.

From—A. W. CROFT, Esq., M.A., Director of Public Instruction, Bengal,

To—The Principal, Engineering College.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your memorandum No. 536, dated 26th ultimo, forwarding a petition from 87 native students of the Engineering College, in which they complain of the conduct of Mr. Fouracres, the Executive Engineer in charge of the Workshops, in assaulting and using violent language to one of their number, and in which they pray to be relieved of his authority. I have also received a letter from Mr. Fouracres describing what really happened on the occasion.

2. It appears that on the 22nd ultimo, Srish Chandra Lahiri, a student of the second-year engineering class, who was working in the carpenter's shop, left his bench without orders, and going to the fitter's shop, where he had no right to be, proceeded to punch a hole in a piece of iron at one of the machine-tools. The iron was too thick for the machine, the 'bolster' or bottom-die of which was consequently broken, and some urgent work stopped for several days. When the matter was reported to Mr. Fouracres, he sent for the student and asked him what he meant by being "such an idiot" or "such a fool" as to meddle with a machine that he knew nothing about. At this time Mr. Fouracres was under the impression that the student was working in the fitter's shop. On learning that he belonged to the carpenter's shop, Mr. Fouracres followed him thither, took him by the arm or the shoulder, and brought him back to the fitter's shop, a few paces distant, where, pointing to the broken machine, he warned him emphatically, in the presence of the other students, never to touch it again without orders, and not to leave his proper work. At the same time Mr. Fouracres struck the bench with his stick.

3. This was the assault, and this the abuse and violence complained of. Mr. Fouracres states that he adopted the course he did, in order, firstly, to let the students understand publicly that they must not meddle with machines of the use of which they are ignorant, to the risk of life, limb, and property, and, secondly, to save Srish Chandra Lahiri from the dismissal or other serious punishment which would have resulted from a formal complaint.

4. In submitting their petition, the students of the College have entirely failed to understand the serious character of the offence of which Srish Chandra Lahiri was guilty. For a similar act of disobedience and mischief, the offender, whether workman or apprentice, would have been summarily turned out of any workshop in England. Irritated as Mr. Fouracres, like any good workman, must have been at the occurrence, it is not surprising that he should speak in the sharpest language to one who had been guilty of an act of mischievous folly; and I am not inclined to take serious notice of the term which Mr. Fouracres in his indignation used. In not reporting the offender, he acted with his habitual forbearance. The alleged assault was of the most trivial kind; and the statement that Mr. Fouracres "struck the carpenter's bench several times with his stick" only brings out more clearly the true character of the complaint.

5. In claiming to be treated like gentlemen, the students forget that they must first behave like men; while their present memorial is in fact a sorry exhibition of childish petulance and presumption. When they write about "a most unprovoked assault committed upon one who was guilty of no offence whatever, and who received the unbearable insult to which he was subjected with calm dignity" and when they state that "the student throughout showed the utmost forbearance, though his temper was put to the severest trial," these pretentious declamations would be merely ludicrous, did they not furnish so lamentable a proof that the writers are entire strangers to what is manly and becoming conduct.

6. There is a further side to this question. The only persons immediately concerned in the dispute are Mr. Fouracres and Srish Chandra Lahiri; and if the latter, considering himself aggrieved by Mr. Fouracres' treatment of him, had submitted a temperate representation on the subject, it would have been duly considered in connection with the original offence. But it is not to be forgotten that his fellow students should take up his quarrel, should combine to frame a joint memorial in his interest, and, constituting themselves the judges in his cause, should demand their removal as a body from the control of one who has been placed in authority over them. Such a proceeding strikes at the root of all discipline. The students, indeed, allege that "the insult offered to Srish Chandra has been offered to the entire body of the native students of the College." This assertion has been sufficiently disposed of by what has preceded. The students, again, complain of the "harsh and unkind and sometimes even abusive language, which he (Mr. Fouracres) is in the habit of using towards us." Mr. Fouracres' character and mode of dealing with students, both European and native, have been too long and too favourably known to me, and I may add to successive Viceroys and Lieutenant-Governors through a series of years to justify me in paying any attention to a statement made in such general terms, and (as I believe it to be) so groundless. Mr. Fouracres is above all things a workman, trained in habits of obedience and discipline, accustomed to insist on good work, and firm in enforcing it. The discipline of a workshop like that of a regiment is different from the discipline of a class room, and there is no loss of dignity in yielding implicit obedience to either the one or the other. Students working under Mr. Fouracres must expect orders promptly given to be promptly obeyed, and a sharp rebuke if they are carried out in a negligent, inattentive or dilatory way. These are the conditions which prevail in every good workshop in any country, and in the absence of which no sound mechanical training is possible. And I believe it to be just this of which the students complain as a grievance. Their former petition on the same subject was not submitted to the Board of Visitors because, as they truly state in their present memorial, "its tone was thought to be objectionable, and the language employed was not deemed to be sufficiently respectful." But in the present connection it is not the tone or the language which is the most serious matter, but rather the entire inability of the students to understand the conditions which will enable them to become good workmen and to succeed in the profession which they have chosen. To have the opportunity of learning their business under an Engineer of Mr. Fouracres' skill and experience is a privilege of which the students will, it is to be hoped, learn in time the value. To show themselves so sensitive on immaterial points, and so careless of the main object of their education; to clamour for the treatment of gentlemen when they are behaving like unruly school boys, is only to show their folly and ingratitude.

7. To have signed the memorial is an offence against discipline of a very serious kind. Some students have, I am glad to see, since withdrawn their names, and no further action will be taken in their case. They state that in attaching their signatures to the memorial, they were "misinformed as to the facts of the case," and they add that they were "never harshly or unjustly treated by Mr. Fouracres." This is quite sufficient to show that the memorial is the result of an unscrupulous agitation, and that it does not express the genuine feelings of those who have signed it. Should there be any, however, who, after sufficient opportunity for reflection, persist in the attitude which they have taken up, I can only regard them as foolish and insubordinate youths, whom it is not desirable to retain as members of the College. You are therefore requested to make these orders known to the students, and to inform them that those who shall not within three days have asked permission to withdraw their names from the memorial, with such expressions of contrition as you may judge to be sufficient, will be removed from the College. Upon all those who withdraw their names with a sufficient apology, a nominal fine of Rs. 2 will be inflicted in order to mark my opinion of their conduct. Many of them have doubtless been led away by the example of others, and no severer punishment is called for as regards the general body of students. If any further orders are necessary with regard to scholarship-holders or apprentices, they will be communicated hereafter.

8. Srish Chandra Lahiri has made no attempt to atone for his original offence, and he has aggravated it by joining the other students in signing the memorial. Mr. Fouracres states that this is not the first instance of valuable property having been damaged, whether maliciously or (as in the present case) by wanton and culpable recklessness. Offences of this kind must be firmly repressed. Srish Chandra's name will therefore be removed from the books of the College.

No. 558, dated Sibpore, the 12th May 1881.

From—J. S. SLATER, Esq., Offg. Principal, Govt. Engineering College, Howrah,
To—The Director of Public Instruction.

I HAVE the honour to report that I conveyed to the students of the College the orders contained in your No. 31, dated 3rd May, regarding the serious breach of discipline that has recently occurred.

2. The native students have shown that they do not in any way appreciate the gravity of the offence of which they are guilty. During the past three days they have continued to preserve their original insubordinate attitude, and, as the time which was given them for reflection has now expired, I have carried out your instructions and withdrawn from the books of the College the names of all those who have not tendered a suitable apology. Out of the 87 students who signed the petition I forwarded with this office No. 536, dated 26th April 1881, seven withdrew their names before the petition reached you, one Srish Chandra Lahiri was expelled on the receipt of your orders, one denies that the signature purporting to be his was written by him, and four have tendered their apologies; the remainder to the number of 74 have this day ceased to be members of the College. The case of the student who denies the signature is under investigation, the result of which will be duly communicated to you.

3. The native papers have injudiciously done their best to encourage the native students to disregard all true discipline, and I fear that unless some stringent measures are taken to close all Government Colleges and appointments to the students that have been expelled, the recent agitation will be the means of undermining the discipline of other Government Colleges in Bengal, and perhaps throughout the whole Presidency. I am preparing a statement showing the names, age, school where educated, and date of passing the university tests of all the students just expelled, which I hope to be able to submit at an early date, and beg to suggest that a copy of it be sent to all colleges throughout Bengal, and to the heads of every Government office, and the information contained in it made public in any other way you may think fit.

4. I enclose two statements, one showing the names and position in the College of each student that has been expelled, and the other the present condition of each class.

Dated Calcutta, the 6th June 1881.

From—KALIGOPAL RUDRA and 65 others,

To—The Director of Public Instruction, Bengal.

WE the undersigned students, late of the Government Engineering College, Sibpore, most respectfully beg leave to withdraw our names, which we hereby do, from our joint memorial, dated the 25th April 1881.

We beg to express our sincere regret that, in submitting the joint memorial, we unconsciously acted in breach of a Government rule. The error of judgment which marked our conduct in this respect was, we humbly beg to assure you, solely due to our ignorance of the rule, and not to any want of respect on our part for the authorities placed over us. We therefore most respectfully pray that you will be so good as to permit us to rejoin the College and to restore us to the position we occupied.

For our part, we most respectfully and sincerely beg to assure you that should you be pleased to comply with our prayer, we shall render due obedience to the authorities, and act in conformity with the rules of the institution.

ESTABLISHMENT OF A EUROPEAN GENERAL HOSPITAL AT DARJEELING.

MEDICAL AND MUNICIPAL DEPARTMENT.—MEDICAL.

Calcutta, the 20th June 1881.

RESOLUTION.

IN the note which is appended to this Resolution, the Lieutenant-Governor stated his reasons for thinking that Government should take measures to provide a European hospital at Darjeeling for the reception of patients and convalescents from the plains, and appointed a Committee* to examine the subject, and to submit proposals for carrying the scheme into effect. The Lieutenant-Governor expressed his willingness to make a grant from Provincial Services of Rs. 50,000 to Rs. 60,000 for the establishment of such a hospital as would afford accommodation to invalids from all parts of the Lower Provinces.

* Hon'ble A. Mackenzie, President.
Colonel Trevor, B.E.
The Deputy Commissioner of Darjeeling.
Mr. Martin, Superintending Engineer.
Dr. Birch, Civil Surgeon.
Mr. Christie, Executive Engineer.

2. The Committee, after careful consideration of the different sites available, recommend that the site of the Booteah School should be adopted. They have considered a rough plan of a two-storied hospital to accommodate 16 first class, 20 second class, and 20 third class patients at an estimated cost of about Rs. 52,000, and they propose that the plans and estimates should be completed by the Public Works Department for submission to the Lieutenant-Governor. They are of opinion that little difficulty would be found in raising public subscriptions to provide for the equipment of the hospital and the maintenance of the poorer classes of patients, and they recommend that measures should be taken to ascertain what assistance may be expected from the public.

3. The Lieutenant-Governor approves the suggestions put forward in the Committee's report. The Public Works Department will be requested to take measures at once to level the Booteah School site, demolishing the old buildings and cutting down the hill so as to secure sufficient space for a substantial structure of the dimensions proposed. Plans and estimates of the work should be prepared with as little delay as possible, and as soon as they have been approved by the Lieutenant-Governor, a special grant will be made of the amount required for the construction of the building. Meanwhile a grant of Rs. 2,000 is sanctioned to admit of the Police Hospital being at once adapted for the reception of European patients, so that accommodation may be available during the current season.

4. The Commissioner of the Division will be desired to submit suggestions regarding the constitution of the governing body of the new institution. It is necessary that a Committee should at once be formed with authority to receive subscriptions. The Committee will also have to consider various questions connected with the administration of the hospital, and to submit, for the approval of Government, a scheme for its general management. As recommended in paragraph 8 of the Committee's report, the Chamber of Commerce, Calcutta, the Trades' Association, and the Agents of the East Indian and Eastern Bengal Railways, will be invited to say to what extent the Committee may expect donations for furniture now, and subscriptions for other purposes hereafter. The Surgeon-General will be requested to ascertain to what extent advantage would probably be taken of the hospital by the different classes of patients, and to offer suggestions regarding the system under which the officers in charge of the metropolitan hospitals should be authorized to transfer patients to the Darjeeling Hospital.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

COLMAN MACAULAY,

Offg. Secy. to the Government of Bengal.

NOTE.

Now that the Tramway has been brought into Darjeeling, and that the sanitarium is placed in direct and easy communication with Calcutta, and with most of the civil stations of Bengal, and now that tea-planters from the unhealthy Dooars and the Terai can reach this station easily and without exposure in a few hours, the question of providing a good, well organized European hospital for the comfortable reception of patients and convalescents from the plains, forces itself upon the consideration of Government.

I have already received representations regarding hospital accommodation for sick persons and convalescents connected with the Eastern Bengal Railway, the Northern Bengal Railway, and the Darjeeling Tramway; and it appears that if nothing can be done some arrangement must at once be made in communication with the Managers of those lines for supplying a great and growing need of this sort. But as Darjeeling increases—and it is now increasing daily—we shall have to provide hospital accommodation for the permanent residents of the station and district. There are the tea-planters and their assistants scattered about all over the district, some of them placed in very unhealthy situations. Cases in which young men are brought in suffering from fever of a severe type for medical attendance are very common, and a difficulty is frequently found in providing them with accommodation during their illness. The hotels and boarding-houses are generally full, and a sick person is not always a welcome inmate in a public establishment of that sort; and it is feared that many useful men have lost their lives in the Dooars and the Terai, who would at once have come up for treatment if a comfortable hospital existed for their reception. Then, again, there are many cases of persons residing in outlying plantations, who desire attendance during their confinement, who can only obtain it at an enormous expense, altogether beyond their means, and who are not within reach of the Civil Surgeon, and cases are not unknown in which it has been found impossible to procure accommodation for such cases here on any terms.

But besides these there are frequent cases in the mofussil stations of persons pulled down after severe sickness or suffering from obstinate disease, who are unable to take the change to sea which richer persons could afford, but for whom a change and careful medical attendance are absolutely necessary. There are also persons who could undergo operations in the cool climate of the hills, which they could not bear in the heat of the plains. Lastly, there are patients convalescing in the Calcutta hospitals, to whom a change to a convalescent ward in Darjeeling would be of the utmost importance.

It therefore seems to me that as a European hospital has to be built, we should not keep in mind only the requirements of Darjeeling, but of the province generally. It will in the long run be a saving to Government if a number of its servants can be sent up here for a few weeks' treatment in a European climate, instead of having to take leave to Europe or to linger on in a condition of inefficiency from ill health at stations in the plains.

The experiment of paying wards for first-class patients has been tried on a small scale in Darjeeling, as also in Calcutta, and with the greatest promise of success.

I think that the best plan of dealing with the matter will be by appointing a Committee to consider the whole subject—the site, the classes and quantity of accommodation, the rate of charges, the mode of admission, &c., &c.

I accordingly appoint the following gentlemen to be members of a Committee for this purpose:—

The Hon'ble A. Mackenzie, President.
Colonel Trevor.
The Deputy Commissioner of Darjeeling.
Mr. Martin.
Dr. Birch.
Mr. Christie.

They should consult the present Hospital Committee, who have already given the subject their attention.

There are several sites which suggest themselves—

1. Vale Pleasant, which could at once be made available for the purpose. It has every advantage except that the houses are entirely out of repair. It has a bright look out, and is near the Mall. There are three houses; one has seven rooms with ample bath-room accommodation, which could be made into a hospital for paying-patients of the first class.

Then there is one large ward in a separate building which would do for patients of the third class, who would be inmates of a general ward. It is airy, light, and has a teak-boarded floor; it would hold probably 14 or 16 beds at least. There is a row of little separate rooms attached to this, which would be very comfortable for second-class patients. And there is the Retreat, a very comfortable four-roomed cottage, which would be available for special cases requiring quiet, such as midwifery or operations.

This site, with the buildings, is, I believe, valued at Rs. 10,000, and I should be glad to transfer it to the Hospital Committee, and to make a grant towards its repair. Some of the buildings would require a new roofing, and a good deal is required in the way of repairs. Proper servants' quarters are required, and a room for the hospital assis ant would also be necessary. But after inspecting the buildings, I am afraid that they are so much out of repair that practically they would have to be re-built; and if this is to be done, the money will be better spent in constructing an entirely new hospital on the most improved principle than in repairing and adapting old buildings—never a satisfactory process.

2. Then there is the Booteah School site. A magnificent site might be secured by pulling down the old Post Office, now used as a Booteah School, and cutting down the hill 12 or 14 feet. Upon this site a really good two-storied hospital might be constructed, capable of providing between 50 and 60 beds. Of these, about 15 or 16 probably should be separate rooms for Government officers and other first-class patients, 20 might be for second-class, and 20 for third-class patients.

3. Then there is the site at the back, or at the south of the Bengal Office; but this is perhaps bringing the hospital too much into the station.

4. There is a Government site at Lowland's Place; but this is perhaps too far down the hill, and is not very accessible; otherwise it is a very fine site.

I have indicated above the various classes which would probably have to be accommodated. I should say that—

First-class patients should pay Rs. 2 a day, making their own arrangement for diet.

Second-class patients should be men and the families of men drawing, say, less than Rs. 300 a month in salary, or an equivalent income from other sources. The charge for them might be Rs. 3 a day including diet. They should have a ward to themselves, or rather two wards—one for males, the other for females.

Third-class patients should be men of official or other incomes of less than Rs. 100 a month. They should pay probably Rs. 1-4 a day, including diet, on the scale of the General Hospital. They must be inmates of the general ward set apart for their sex.

When patients of the third class are servants of a State or Guaranteed Railway, or public company or of a public department, they should be received only on a guarantee that their cost at the fixed rate per diem will be paid or recovered by their employers or the head of the department, who will make arrangements for recovering it when necessary from the patient. Where convalescents of the third class are sent up from Calcutta by the public hospitals, the hospitals must be responsible for their fees here.

I leave, however, the rate of fee to be settled by the Committee, but have merely suggested these rates for their guidance.

It seems to me to be of great importance to give the scheme an immediate trial, and I am therefore willing to make a grant of Rs. 2,000, which should enable the Hospital Committee to adapt the whole of the Police Hospital at once for the reception of European patients. The Executive Engineer could arrange for accommodating the few police patients there are elsewhere.

A proper establishment would have to be provided and eventually paid for by the Hospital Committee. I think a good English nurse or matron essential. A trustworthy woman could probably be induced to take the place in this climate on very favourable terms. If no one is available locally, the Ladies' Committee at Calcutta might find some one suited to the place. I do not wish the hospital to be a charity hospital. It should pay its expenses, the building having been once provided and equipped. I am disposed to give a grant from Provincial Services of Rs. 50,000 to Rs. 60,000 for the purpose of establishing the hospital, provided, such a hospital is erected as shall afford accommodation to invalids from all parts of the Lower Provinces. For a merely local hospital, or for accommodation for the railway servants, I could not sanction more than half the amount. I gather from the Civil Surgeon that he thinks a considerable sum might be raised from subscription for such a useful purpose as this. The fees should be so fixed that they afford a reasonable prospect of the hospital covering its expenses. Five or six first-class, five second-class, and twelve or fourteen third-class patients ought to cover every expense.

ASHLEY EDEN.

The 11th June 1881.

REPORT.

The Committee appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor's note of the 11th June, to consider the question of establishing a European General Hospital at Darjeeling, met at the Bengal Office at 10 A.M. on the 15th June.

PRESENT :

All the Members.

1. The Committee, accepting as beyond controversy the considerations put forward by the Lieutenant-Governor in favour of the establishment of a European Hospital at Darjeeling, on the largest scale suggested in His Honor's note, proceeded to consider first the question of sites.

2. They were unanimously of opinion that Vale Pleasant was not a desirable site for a hospital. Not only were the buildings unsuitable and dilapidated, but the ground space was far too limited. Moreover, experience had shown that there was serious risk of damage to any buildings there from landslips on the hill above.

3. The site in the Bengal Office grounds was also considered too small; and it was moreover suggested that Government would in time require the ground for offices. Besides which, to place a hospital so close to the Mall and the most frequented roads of the station, was not advisable.

4. Lowland Place was admitted to be a fine site, but the Executive Engineer pointed out that it was at present the only brickfield available to Government. It was very desirable to work out the bed of clay now exposed there before putting any buildings on the land. It would afterwards form a fine building site. Dr. Birch objected to the site as too far away from the centre of the station, and as less open than the Bhoota school site.

5. On the whole, the Committee had no doubt that by far the best site was that put forward as No. 2 in the Lieutenant-Governor's note, i.e., on the top of the Bhoota School hill. To cut the hill down 14 feet would, Mr. Christie thought, cost only from Rs. 1,000 to Rs. 1,500, and would give a ground area of upwards of 200 x 100 feet. To cut it down 20 feet, at a cost of about Rs. 2,000, would give a still larger area.

6. The Committee resolved to recommend that the buildings now on the top of the hill should be at once demolished, the teachers who occupy them being moved into Christina Villa, an empty house belonging to Government, just below the school, and that the Executive Engineer should be authorized by the Public Works Department to commence the levelling of the site proposed. Even were the hospital not to be built eventually, Government would secure by this operation a vastly improved property.

7. Mr. Martin laid before the Committee a rough plan of a two-storied hospital, settled by him in communication with Dr. Birch, providing accommodation for—

16 1st-class patients,	} half being males and half females, and estimated to cost about Rs. 52,000.
20 2nd-class "
20 3rd-class "

The Committee considered the plan, and approved it with certain minor modifications.

They resolved to recommend that Mr. Martin should be authorized to complete the plans for a building of the size and description shown, but modified, if necessary, to suit the shape of the plateau as produced by cutting down the hill top, and to work out regular estimates for the orders of the Lieutenant-Governor in the Public Works Department.

8. The Committee remarked that the grant offered by Government would not do much more than meet the cost of levelling the site and erecting the proposed buildings. They thought, however, that little difficulty would be found in raising by public subscription money enough to furnish the hospital completely. They also thought it advisable to secure annual subscriptions sufficient to enable the managing body of the hospital to make provision hereafter for even a poorer class of patients than those mentioned in the Lieutenant-Governor's note; or such subscriptions might be applied in paying the railway fares and providing warm clothing and other comforts for patients who could not afford such for themselves. The Committee resolved to recommend that Government, in the Medical Department, should at once make public the Lieutenant-Governor's note and the Committee's proposals, and invite the Chamber of Commerce, Calcutta, the Trades' Association, the Managing Boards or Agents of the East Indian Railway, the Eastern Bengal Railway, and other like bodies, to say to what extent the Committee might expect donations for furniture now and subscriptions for other purposes hereafter. It might also be found that some of the funds at the disposal of the hospital authorities in Calcutta could be devoted to paying the expenses of poor convalescents sent up from medical institutions at the Presidency. Enquiry might at the same time be made as to the extent to which advantage would probably be taken of the hospital by the different classes of patients. On this point the leading medical officers in Calcutta and the larger mofussil stations might be able to give useful information.

9. The Committee did not consider that enquiries such as those suggested above need delay the putting in hand of the work of building. They had no doubt that a hospital of the size suggested would always have a sufficient number of patients to make it self-supporting. They looked forward rather to its being possible with the aid of public subscriptions to extend the benefits proposed to a poorer class, and especially to the children of the Free and other Charitable Schools in Calcutta. In time the whole School Hill might be covered with buildings devoted to such uses, the Bhoota school being moved elsewhere.

10. The Committee thought that it was premature at present to attempt to settle the scale of charges. Generally speaking, the Lieutenant-Governor's suggestions seemed reasonable, but this was a point that could be settled hereafter before the hospital was opened, and when it had been decided how its governing body should be composed.

11. The Committee also did not consider it necessary at present to place themselves in communication with the present Hospital Committee, Dr. Birch having informed them that that body was already taking steps for giving effect to the Lieutenant-Governor's wishes regarding the extension of the present European Hospital, and Dr. Birch himself being in possession of all the information that could be contributed by the Hospital Committee.

12. The Committee observed that the Lieutenant-Governor's note did not appoint them to be the governing body of the proposed hospital. They thought that the mode of admission into the hospital would best be determined by rules to be drawn up by such governing body, and approved by Government hereafter. It would probably only be necessary to provide that, except in emergent cases, applications for admission should be submitted to the governing body for orders, and that that body, or the medical officer, subject to their control, should have power to terminate the residence of any patient.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four ft above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The direction of the movement of the wind are taken from the traces of Beckley's and Osler's anemographs.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

No. 148.—Notification.—In exercise of the powers conferred on him by Section 99 of Act III (B.C.) of 1876, the Hon'ble the Lieutenant-Governor is pleased to make the following alterations in the rules for the Sone Canals, passed by His Honor under date the 31st August 1880, as per Notification No. 114, published at page 798, Part I of the Calcutta Gazette of the 1st September 1880 :—

(1) For Rule 26 substitute the following :—

"A contractor (or in case there be more than one, each contractor severally and jointly) shall use due diligence in the collection of the water-rates specified in the agreement from the cultivators who have applied for the water supplied. In the case of his failure after due diligence to collect, he shall, without loss of time, submit to the Collector a list showing the names of the defaulters, with the sums due from each, and the Collector shall thereupon proceed to realize the amount due from the said defaulters according to law."

(2) Add as 26a :—

(3) For Schedule IV in Rule 33 substitute the following :—

(4) For the second clause of the form of agreement in Appendix D substitute the following :—

"I (contractor's name) agree to use due diligence in the collection of all sums payable on this application, and to pay the amount collected to Government. I will submit to the Collector without delay lists specifying the names of any defaulters from whom I may, after due diligence, fail to collect, and I will be responsible for the sum due under this agreement, except such amount as I may be able to satisfy the Collector that, after using due diligence, I have failed to collect. I will give every assistance in my power to the Collector in any legal proceedings that may be instituted, and I further agree to be bound by the rules passed under the Canal Act."

The rules as now amended are published below.

RULES UNDER ACT III (B.C.), 1876.

1. The Collector, before awarding compensation under section 16, or for making a reference under section 17 of the Act, shall obtain the written opinion of the Superintending Canal Officer, which shall form part of the record of the proceedings.

2. Persons desirous of acquiring land for the construction of a village channel, or for having a village channel constructed by Canal Agency, shall prefer a written application to the Divisional Canal Officer, or to any other officer duly authorized by him to receive such application.

3. Ordinarily, no village channel shall exceed two miles in length from its head to the point of contact with the village boundary.

4. It shall be the duty of the Canal Officer to register all village channels after due notice has been given to the owner of his intention to do so; if the latter objects, no water will be given.

5. No alteration among the shareholders will be recognized, unless the sanction of the Canal Officer has been first obtained.

6. Persons desirous of taking water from a registered village channel shall, previous to doing so, prefer a written application (Appendix A) to the Divisional Canal Officer, Sub-Divisional Canal Officer, or any subordinate duly authorized by the Divisional Canal Officer to receive such application; and no water shall be taken until after the receipt of a permit (Appendix B) from competent authority.

7. Water shall not be granted where, in the opinion of the Canal Officer, waste is likely to occur.

8. An application under Rule 6 shall, if granted, and unless otherwise specially agreed upon, be subject to the following conditions:—

(a)—That the water supplied shall not be used for other purposes than irrigation without the written consent of the Divisional or Sub-Divisional Canal Officer.

(b)—That the Sub-Divisional Canal Officer shall, in consultation with the applicants, appoint a headman (to be called a Lambardar), known, or ascertained to be, a substantial person possessed of property, to attend to their interests, to receive and carry out the orders of the Canal Officers, and to distribute the water among the shareholders in the village channel according to their shares.

(c)—That in any case where the Sub-Divisional Canal Officer cannot agree with the applicants in the appointment of a Lambardar, the Sub-Divisional Canal Officer shall make the appointment himself, subject to the approval of the Divisional Canal Officer.

9. The Divisional Canal Officer is empowered to pay to the Lambardar appointed under the 81, the fees detailed in the rule next following, subject to the condition of satisfactory performance of duty.

10. The allowance to the Lambardar for duties connected with the village channel, such as arranging that it shall be kept in proper repair, reporting unauthorized irrigation, distributing the water to the shareholders, seeing that the outlet is closed according to the orders of the Sub-Divisional Canal Officer, and generally assisting the officers of the Irrigation Department, shall be half anna in the rupee on the amount of canal water-rates assessed on the lands irrigated from the village channel under his charge. The Divisional Canal Officer may retrench the whole or any part of the fees under this rule in the event of non-compliance with these conditions.

11. The Sub-Divisional Canal Officer may, by written order under section 76 (a), stop the supply to any village channel when he is satisfied, after inspection by himself or by one of his subordinates, that it is not maintained in proper repair; such order shall be recorded in the Sub-Divisional Office.

12. The Divisional Canal Officer may close the outlets in rotation as he may consider necessary. Such closures shall not extend beyond ten consecutive days, and shall be notified to the Lambardars of village channels. For longer closures the authority of the Superintending Canal Officer is required.

13. Nothing in the above rules shall be taken to affect the power of the Superintending or Divisional Canal Officer to stop the supply of water in case of pressing emergency.

14. The water-gauges on distributaries or other channels shall be held to give authoritative data for all calculations of discharge required to verify claims for remission of water-rate on account of loss of water.

15. Claims to remission of water-rates under section 76(b) shall only be admitted on proof of actual loss caused by the stoppage of supply. On proof of such loss, the Divisional Canal Officer may remit the whole or any portion of the rates. All applications for remission of water-rates shall be made in writing by the parties concerned, either in person, or through their headman, to the nearest Sub-Divisional Canal Officer, at least seven days prior to the cutting of the crop. On receipt of such application, the Sub-Divisional Canal Officer shall, after the local enquiry, forward the application with his remarks to the Divisional Canal Officer for decision.

16. Before awarding compensation under section 86(c), the Collector shall obtain the written opinion of the Divisional Canal Officer, and such opinion shall form part of the record of the proceedings.

17. Contracts between the Divisional Canal Officer on the part of Government, and private individuals, for the use of water as a motive power, or for any other purpose whatsoever, not included in the published schedule of rates, shall, if for any period not exceeding one year, require the previous sanction of the Superintending Canal Officer. If proposed for longer periods, such contracts shall be submitted for the sanction of the Lieutenant-Governor in the Irrigation Department.

18. Tanks may be filled with canal water without charge and without reference to the area irrigated in any village, wherever water can be made available without injury to the cultivation dependent on any canal, under the following conditions:

(a.)—No tank shall be so filled unless the water is to be exclusively used for domestic purposes or for watering cattle, or both.

(b.)—No tank shall be so filled from which irrigation is practised.

(d.)—No tank shall be so filled except on the written order of the Sub-Divisional Canal Officer issued on the written application of the parties concerned.

(e.)—No tank shall be so filled unless the village channel used to fill it shall be shown to the satisfaction of the Sub-Divisional Canal Officer to be in a sound condition when the application is made.

(f.)—The privilege herein accorded may, by written order of the Divisional Canal Officer, subject to revision by the Superintending Canal Officer, whose decision shall be final, be suspended for 12 months for breach of any of the above conditions.

19. Leases for terms of five years for the supply of water between the 25th June of one year and the 1st April of the following year will be given at the rates fixed in the Schedule, Rule 33, provided that land leased in any village forms one or more compact blocks, each of not less than 50 acres, defined by well-marked boundaries of such a nature as clearly to distinguish leased from the adjoining unleased lands, and to prevent the latter from being surreptitiously watered under cover of the lease.

20. Well-marked boundaries of the nature required by the foregoing rule generally exist. Village roads, bunds of ahrahs, village boundaries, and similar natural marks will be sufficient. If such do not exist, and it appears advisable to grant the lease, the villagers may, at the discretion of the Divisional Canal Officer, be required to make small bunds round the leased area, or mark its limits by the erection of cheap boundary marks, or cause to be carried out such arrangements as may suffice for the future identification of the leased area.

21. No restriction is placed on the description of crop to be grown under five-year leases, but no water will be given on these leases between the 1st of April and the 25th of June. The Superintending Canal Officer may relax this rule in the case of water being required for rice seed beds.

22. If in the opinion of the Divisional Canal Officer it appears advisable to grant a lease for a block of less than 50 acres in area, he must refer the matter for the decision of the Superintending Canal Officer, at whose discretion the restriction as to area may be relaxed.

23. Present holders of three-year leases may at their option avail themselves of the terms offered to the holders of five-year leases, but without retrospective effect.

24. Leases for five years at the rates entered in Rule 33 may be given—(1) on the application of all the cultivators of the area proposed to be leased, on condition of their agreeing in such application to become jointly and severally responsible for the payment of all amounts due on account of water-rates; or (2) on the joint application of the cultivators and of some person hereinafter called the Contractor, who may agree to collect and pay to Government, under section 82 of Act III (B.C.) of 1876, all sums due under the agreement on account of water-rates. The agreement of villagers binding themselves jointly and severally will be in the form prescribed in Appendix C. The joint agreement of villagers and a water-rate Contractor shall be in the form prescribed in Appendix D. Every agreement under this rule must be signed by each applicant in the presence of at least one respectable witness.

25. Contractors shall be entitled to collect water-dues, at the rates given in schedule 4 attached to Rule 33, from the cultivators who have applied for the water supplied. Every due from a cultivator to the Contractor on account of water-rates shall be deemed to be a sum due to Government under sections 82 and 85 of Act III (B.C.) of 1876.

26. A Contractor (or in case there be more than one, each Contractor severally and jointly) shall use due diligence in the collection of the water-rates specified in the agreement from the cultivators, who have applied for the water supplied. In the case of his failure after due diligence to collect, he shall, without loss of time, submit to the Collector a list showing the names of the defaulters, with the sums due from each, and the Collector shall thereon proceed to realize the amount due from the said defaulters according to law.

26a. A Contractor (or in case there be more than one, each Contractor severally and jointly) shall be responsible for all sums payable on the agreement, except such sums as he may satisfy the Collector that he has been unable to collect after using due diligence.

27. No water shall be taken previous to the receipt of a permit (Appendix B) signed by the Divisional Canal Officer. When an agreement has been made for the collection of the rates by a Contractor, the Divisional Canal Officer shall under section 82 furnish such Contractor with a written authority to collect the amounts due by the cultivators according to a list furnished in the application, one copy of which is to be sent to the Collector.

28. Every Contractor shall nominate a headman, to be approved of by the Divisional Canal Officer, to perform the duties specified in Rule 10. Such headman or the contractor, according to the arrangement made at the time of contract, shall receive 5 per cent. on the assessment, but the Divisional Canal Officer may retrench the whole or any part of these fees if the duties are not properly performed.

29. All water-rates payable under the above rules for five-year leases shall become due on the 31st December and 15th March in equal portions, and shall be paid within one month of such dates.

30. Under section 8 of the Act, the rates chargeable per acre for water supplied to the different description of crops up to 1st of April 1881, except in cases of three-year leases now in existence, will be as follow :—

34. The statements of the amounts demandable for water-rates levied under the rules in force shall be prepared under the supervision and signature of the Divisional Canal Officer in such form as shall from time to time be sanctioned by the Lieutenant-Governor.

35. All water-rates shall become due on the dates below stated, and shall be paid within one month of such dates:—

Water-rate on spring crops, wheat, barley, peas, poppy, &c. ...	1st March.
Water-rate on summer crops, cheena, &c. ...	1st July.
Water-rate on bhadoi crops, early rice, indian-corn, murwa, &c. ...	31st October.
Water-rate on annual and winter crops, sugarcane, aghani rice, jowar, &c. ...	31st December.

36. In the case of lands held in bhaoli, the water-rate shall be recoverable from both the cultivator and the person or persons in receipt of the bhaoli rents in the same proportion as the produce is divisible amongst them.

37. In the case of lands held in bhaoli, the zemindar shall sign jointly with the cultivators. (This rule only applies to the case of five-year leases.)

38. The area irrigated in any village shall be measured by an Ameen appointed for the purpose. The Putwari shall be present at the measurement, and shall at the time take a copy of the khusrah of the Ameen; if for any reason the Putwari is not present, the cost of preparing the copy will be charged against him. This copy shall be delivered to the Putwari, or, in his absence, to the Lambardar. Both the Lambardar and Putwari shall sign the khusrah.

39. When the measurement is completed, the khusrah shall be forwarded to the Sub-Divisional Canal Officer, who shall prepare the khatiani with all possible despatch. A copy of the khatiani, signed and sealed by the Zilladar, shall, as soon as it is prepared, be forwarded to the Putwari, who shall grant a receipt for the same. If the Putwari is not present, or declines to receive the khatiani, the Sub-Divisional Officer shall forward it direct to the Collector.

40. It shall be the duty of the Putwari, immediately on the completion of the measurement, to inform each ryot, on application, of the fields measured against him, and on receipt of the khatiani to supply each person charged with a percha showing the water-rates due. For these duties, and for attending the measurement and rendering such other reasonable assistance to the Canal Officer and Collector as may be required, an allowance of one quarter anna per rupee on the amount collected shall be made.

41. This allowance shall be paid to the Putwari by the Collector if he is satisfied that the work has been properly done.

42. The Canal Officer shall note on the khatiani whether the Putwari has given proper assistance during the measurement.

43. If a cultivator is dissatisfied with the entries made against him in the khatiani, whether as to the fact of the land having been charged "flow" instead of "lift" or as to the measurements and entries of classes of crops, he must lodge a complaint, either personally or through the Lambardar of his village channel, with the Divisional or Sub-Divisional Canal Officer within a month after the date of the demand being made on him.

44. The Zilladar shall submit his check measurements in a form (Appendix F) which shall be sent in for the inspection of the Divisional Canal Officer. The Sub-Divisional Canal Officer shall check the Ameens' measurements as often as he possibly can. If it be found that any ameen wilfully or frequently makes wrong measurements, he shall be punished by dismissal.

45. Collection of all water-rates shall be made by the Collector in accordance with the statement of demands furnished to him by the Divisional Canal Officer.

46. Objections to the demand addressed to the Collector, if preferred within one month after the demand has been made, shall, if remission be claimed on the score of short supply, or of any matter affecting the Irrigation Department, be referred for orders to the Divisional Canal Officer. The Collector shall have discretion to suspend collections by a written order in cases where (objections having been filed) it may seem advisable to do so.

47. Claims for remission, referred by the Collector and admitted by the Divisional Canal Officer, shall be reported by him for the sanction of the Superintending Canal Officer, except in cases where remissions are made on account of excess areas having been charged, or a wrong name entered in the khaliani.

48. If the Divisional Canal Officer reject the claim, an appeal may be made to the Superintending Canal Officer, provided that it is preferred within forty days from the issue of the order of the Divisional Canal Officer.

49. A remission statement, signed by the Superintending or Divisional Canal Officer, shall be sufficient authority for a refund by the Collector.

50. In special cases not otherwise provided in these rules, and in cases where water-rates are not recoverable owing to the absconding or bankruptcy of the defaulter, the Collector will obtain the sanction of the Commissioner of the Division to the remission of such sums as he may deem irrecoverable. The details of such remission shall be communicated at the close of each fiscal year to the Divisional Canal Officer.

51. The Collector shall appoint a headman (to be called a Tehsildar), whose duty will be to collect and pay in, to the Collector or other duly authorized person, all water-rates leviable on the land irrigated.

52. The Tehsildar shall furnish security for the payment of all sums realized by him, the stamp and registration fees on security bonds being deducted from the percentage allowed, under the following rule.

53. The allowance to the Tehsildars of a village or villages for collecting the water-rates shall be fixed by the Collector, but the total amount to be paid in any one year to all the Tehsildars in a district shall not exceed half an anna in the rupee on the amounts actually paid in. If the Tehsildar shall satisfy the Collector that arrears have not accrued through any negligence on his part, it shall be at the option of the Collector to pay him the allowance on the whole or any part of such arrears.

54. If only a portion of a field be irrigated, the water-rate shall be chargeable on the whole field, unless such portion shall have been clearly demarcated, previous to the admission of the water, by a ridge not less than half a foot high.

55. When a portion of a field has been irrigated with canal water, and a portion with well or reservoir water, the whole field shall be liable for canal water-rate, unless a clearly distinguishable boundary exists between the two portions.

56. If well or reservoir water is conveyed in the same channel as canal water, the whole of the irrigation from that channel shall be liable to canal water-rate. The Lambardar will be held personally responsible that any breach of this rule or of Rules 54 and 55 is duly reported.

57. Irrigation from escape channels, when the supply is permanent, shall be governed by the same rules as irrigation from other parts of the canal.

58. Irrigation from such channels, when the supply is intermittent, may be allowed at such reduced rates as shall from time to time be fixed by the Lieutenant-Governor.

59. Persons using water without a written permit, or taking water at times prohibited by proper authority, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding double water-rates on the area irrigated, and such charge shall be leviable at the time of report to the Collector.

60. The charge leviable for water suffered to run to waste on uncultivated lands shall be calculated at the highest rate specified in the schedule, on the area flooded; provided that in every such case the Divisional Canal Officer may impose a lower rate if he thinks fit. The Lambardar is to be held responsible for reporting such waste of water.

61. When the original crop sown in a field irrigated by canal water fails, and is ploughed up, and a fresh crop is sown in the same season, the water-rates shall be levied on the second crop.

62. No person shall, without the permission in writing of the Divisional or Sub-Divisional Canal Officer, pass, or cause any animal or vehicle to pass, on or across any of the works, banks, or channels of a canal or drainage work after he has been desired to desist therefrom, excepting by means of such bridges, fords, and ferries, and their approaches, as are provided by the Divisional Canal Officer.

63. No Canal Officer, unless specially exempted by the Lieutenant-Governor from the operation of this rule, shall have any interest in the distribution of water from any of the canals, or purchase or bid for any Government property sold thereon, either in his own name, or in the name of another, or jointly, or in shares with others.

HOWRAH MUNICIPALITY.

Annual Report on the Administration of the Jute Warehouse Act V (B.C.) of 1879 during the year 1880-81.

IN accordance with the provisions of section XXVII of Act V (B.C.) of 1879, I have the honour to report on the working of the Jute Warehouse and Fire-brigade Act in this Municipality for the official year ending the 31st March 1881.

2. There were only 23 jute and cotton warehouses licensed during the year, instead of 38, which shows a decrease of 15. This was owing to the Act compelling the owners to take out licenses for the whole year, besides the fact that many of the dealers carried on their speculation in screwed bales, and only opened out for sale the quantity allowed by the Act to be kept without license. There were no new warehouses established during the year.

3. The total income amounted to Rs. 4,660 under the following heads:—

					Rs.	A.	P.

4. There has been a falling off in the income as compared with the previous year by Rs. 480-6-9, owing to many of the dealers having stopped work altogether through the necessity of taking out licenses for a whole year, whereas in previous years they were taken out for either quarterly or half-yearly periods, by which the dealers were at liberty to take out licenses for only the working season. No other fibres were warehoused except in such quantities as the Act admits of being kept without license.

5. A detailed list of jute warehouses for which licenses were granted is given in Statement No. I. In Statement II are given the particulars of the prosecutions instituted during the year for breaches of the Act, all of which were for using warehouses without license.

6. The expenditure on the inspection of jute warehouses amounted to Rs. 692-11-0 comprising—

	Rs.	A.	P.
Contingencies	1	0	0
Refund of license fee to Messrs Anderson, Wright & Co. paid in excess in previous year...	91	11	0
Total	692	11	0

7. The establishment entertained for the working of the Fire-brigade continued the same as in previous years. Statement III shows that during the year only four fires occurred which were in bustees, and on every occasion the Fire-brigade was promptly in attendance.

8. Fires were punctually announced by the watch kept on the kutcherry terrace; the engines were tested and men regularly practised at their work; the services of the firemen when off duty were utilized in looking after the yard, feeding the cattle, &c.

9. The following are the details of the expenditure in this branch:—

Establishment.

	Rs	A	P.
1 Superintendent at Rs. 100 per month	1,200	0	0
1 Tindal " 10 "	120	0	0
1 Ditto " 9 "	108	0	0
2 Ditto " 8 "	192	0	0
21 Firemen " 6 "	1,473	13	3
8 Extra firemen " 1 each "	96	0	0
2 Syces " 6 "	144	0	0
Repairs to engines	544	14	0
Feed and keep of horses	323	10	6
Contingencies	122	6	0
Total	4,324	43	9

10. The Municipality has for a long time enjoyed a special immunity from serious conflagrations, and, so far, the present brigade has done well in checking the small fires that have occurred; but considering the large quantity of valuable property there is in the town, it will not be sufficiently protected until a steam-engine is added to the brigade, but this does not appear to be practicable in the present state of the funds under this Act, and on account of the many demands upon them, it does not appear to be proper to appropriate any of the general funds to this purpose.

OFFICE OF THE HOWRAH MUNICIPALITY,
The 2nd June 1881.

Chairman.

LIBERALITY OF BABOO MOHINI MOHUN ROY.

No. 351, dated Calcutta, the 25th June 1881.

From—C. S. BAYLEY, Esq., Offg. Under-Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal, General Dept.,
To—The Director of Public Instruction.

I AM directed to acknowledge the receipt of your endorsement No. 4195, dated the 4th instant, with enclosure, reporting the offer made by Baboo Mohini Mohun Roy to invest a sum of Rs. 1,000 in 4 per cent. Government securities with a view to founding an annual prize of Rs. 40 to be awarded to an adhyapaka (teacher) of Smriti or Hindoo Law, whose pupil shall stand first in that subject among the successful competitors at the examination for Sanskrit titles. Baboo Mohini Mohun Roy wishes, subject to the discretion of the examiners, that the prize should ordinarily be awarded to a teacher who obtains no other prize at the examination.

2. In accepting this offer, the Lieutenant-Governor desires that an expression of his thanks may be conveyed to Baboo Mohini Mohun Roy for his liberality. The prize will be designated the "Khetra Moni Debya Prize" in memory of the mother of the founder.

No. 4195, dated Calcutta, the 4th June 1881.

Memo. by—The Director of Public Instruction.

COPY forwarded to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal, General Department, with the recommendation that the prize offered by Baboo Mohini Mohun Roy may be accepted, and an acknowledgment of Government be conveyed to him for this act of liberality and public spirit.

Dated Bhowanipore, the 31st May 1881.

From—BABOO MOHINI MOHUN ROY,
To—The Director of Public Instruction.

I BEG to send herewith a four-per cent. Government promissory note of Rs. 1,000 for the purpose of founding an in-memoriam prize of the annual value of Rs. 40, in connection with the annual examination for Sanskrit titles held in accordance with the resolution of Government, dated the 30th June 1878.

The prize shall be called in memory of my deceased mother the Khetra Moni Debya prize, and shall be awarded to an Adhyapaka of Smriti (Teacher of Hindoo Law), whose pupil may successfully pass the examination in that branch of Sanskrit learning. It shall ordinarily be awarded to an Adhyapaka who may not obtain any other prize of larger value awarded by Government or private individuals. But the Board of Examiners will exercise discretion in this matter, and may, if they think fit, award this prize in addition to another of large value obtained by an Adhyapaka of exceptional merit.

I request the favour of your recommending the Government to accept my offer and to receive the Government promissory note in trust, for the purpose of awarding the annual interest thereof as a prize in the manner and under the conditions aforesaid.

FINANCIAL DEPARTMENT.

FINANCE.

RESOLUTION.

CALCUTTA, THE 24TH JUNE 1881.

THE Lieutenant-Governor is now in a position to review the actual financial results of the year 1879-80, the regular estimates for the year 1880-81, and the budget estimates for the year 1881-82. The final accounts of the first year, with the report of the Accountant-General, have been received; and the Government of India have considered the estimates which the Lieutenant-Governor has formed of the financial position of this Government at the close of the past year, and of the money at its disposal during the current year. In the Resolution of 25th May 1880, the Lieutenant-Governor examined fully the character of the receipts and charges grouped under each of the major heads of the estimates. It will not now be necessary to enter into the same details again. But, as the contract under which certain heads of revenue and expenditure were made over for a term to the management of the local Government in March 1877 will expire with the current year, it will be convenient, after reviewing the budget estimates for 1881-82, to examine the general results of this experiment, and the effect which five years of extended decentralization have had upon the finances of Bengal. Before the next budget can be prepared, it will be necessary for the Government of India to decide on the experience before it what policy it will adopt for the future; whether the system of decentralization is to be contracted, to be maintained on its present footing, or to receive a further development; and how the shares of the Imperial and Local Governments respectively in the advantages of gain and the responsibilities of loss are to be determined and adjusted. The policy of decentralization in public works was adopted in 1877 without any limit of time; but the Lieutenant-Governor will take the opportunity of showing under this head also what progress has been made under the system of Provincial responsibility.

I.—ACCOUNTS OF 1879-80.

Provincial Services.—In the Resolution of 25th May 1880, it was estimated that the year 1879-80 had opened with a credit balance of Rs. 42,79,000; that the total amount available for expenditure had been Rs. 4,24,71,000; that the expenditure on all accounts had been Rs. 3,81,72,000; and that the year had closed with a credit balance of Rs. 42,99,000. The final accounts show much more favourable results. The amount available was really Rs. 4,31,17,081, while the expenditure was only Rs. 3,80,12,831. The closing balance was therefore Rs. 51,04,250. The following table shows the estimates and the actuals under the different heads:—

Regular Estimate, 1879-80.			Actuals, 1879-80.
		Rs.			Rs.
Opening balance	...	42,79,000	Opening balance	...	42,79,027
Revenue	...	3,35,29,000	Revenue	...	3,41,66,269
Imperial allotment	...	46,63,000	Imperial allotment	...	46,65,654
			Contribution from Local Funds	...	6,131
Total	...	4,24,71,000	Total	...	4,31,17,081
Expenditure	...	3,66,22,000	Expenditure	...	3,65,17,163
Contribution to the Imperial Treasury	...	13,15,000	Contribution to the Imperial Treasury	...	13,15,000
Contribution to Local Funds	...	2,35,000	Contribution to Local Funds	...	1,80,668
Closing balance	...	42,99,000	Closing balance	...	51,04,250
Total	...	4,24,71,000	Total	...	4,31,17,081

There was an increase in the revenue of Rs. 6,37,269 over the estimates. An increase is shown under Excise of Rs. 1,76,768, under Railways of Rs. 1,13,766, under Law and Justice of Rs. 95,205, under Other Public Works of Rs. 1,07,326, and under Provincial Rates of Rs. 63,811. The Government of India also sanctioned the additional assignment for the administration of the License Tax to which reference was made in paragraph 6 of the Resolution. The receipts under the head of Assessed Taxes were thus increased by Rs. 1,24,344. There were also minor increases under other heads. On the other hand, a decrease is shown under Stamps of Rs. 70,784, under Registration of Rs. 14,970, under Irrigation and Navigation of Rs. 94,697, chiefly in the collections from tolls on the Nuddea Rivers and Calcutta Canals, and under Education of Rs. 1,728. There was also a small falling off under the head of Unclaimed and lapsed deposits to the extent of Rs. 4,205. The receipts under this head are necessarily liable to considerable fluctuation. A small increase of Rs. 2,654 is observable under the head of Imperial allotment. This represents the value of books and periodicals supplied by this Government to the Government of Bombay, adjusted through this head of account. The sum of Rs. 6,131, shown as "Contribution from Local Funds," was the unexpended balance of a grant of Rs. 10,000 made to the Singbhoom District Road Account in 1878-79, which was refunded to Provincial in 1879-80.

The actual expenditure of 1879-80, compared with the regular estimate, showed a decrease of Rs. 1,59,169. This result could not have been arrived at had the Public Works and Irrigation Departments been allowed to spend to the full extent the amounts provided for in the regular estimate. There was a saving of Rs. 2,24,792 under Irrigation and Navigation, and of Rs. 2,72,599 under Other Public Works. The advances to local funds were also restricted, and there was a saving of Rs. 54,332 on this account. Land Revenue shows an improvement of Rs. 40,028, and Registration an increase of Rs. 46,203. This was the result of the transfer of the land registration charges from the former to the latter head. Similarly, a saving under Stationery and Printing is counterbalanced by an increase in expenditure under Stamps, the cost of stamps supplied to Provincial Governments being now charged under the latter head.

As was explained in the Resolution of 25th May 1880, the contribution to Imperial Funds is made up of a special contribution of 10 lakhs made to assist the Supreme Government in view of the pressure of extraordinary charges, and the sum of Rs. 3,15,000 expended from Provincial Funds on the Patna-Gya Railway. The latter sum is shown as a contribution to Imperial Funds. It is again shown as a part of the capital advanced by the Supreme Government for the construction of the work, but without interest.

The net result, as regards the Provincial Revenues, is an improvement of Rs. 8,05,250 on the regular estimate.

Incorporated Local Funds.—The receipts of the Incorporated Local Funds, including the grants-in-aid from Provincial Funds, aggregated Rs. 41,43,370, and the expenditure Rs. 43,91,205. There was thus a deficit of Rs. 2,47,835 instead of a surplus of Rs. 2,08,000 as originally estimated. There was a falling off in the receipts from fees and fines of the Inland Labour Transport Fund; the miscellaneous receipts of the District Road Fund and District Road Accounts aggregated only Rs. 94,287, whereas it was estimated that they would come up to Rs. 2,28,000; and the disbursements on account of Public Works amounted to Rs. 36,95,285, against the regular estimate of Rs. 34,74,000. The Lieutenant-Governor has already remarked that care should be taken to prevent any undue accumulation of funds which are raised for specific purposes of local improvement. The actual closing balance of these funds on the 31st March 1880 was Rs. 22,50,984, thus—

	Rs.
District Road Fund	2,23,982
" " Account	3,221
" Post Fund	84,788
Estates Improvement Fund	41,230
Inland Labour Transport Fund	1,08,237
Total	22,50,984

The position of the Inland Labour Transport Fund will be referred to further on.

II.—REGULAR ESTIMATE FOR 1880-81.

The Regular estimates of the Provincial Services for 1880-81 as first framed by the local Government, as modified by the Government of India and as finally adopted by the Government of Bengal, are shown in the following table. The Accountant-General, in framing the figures of the regular estimate, submitted to this Government, proceeded on the actuals of the first six months of the year only.

RECEIPTS.

Excise.—The Accountant-General estimated that the total receipts in 1880-81 would amount to Rs. 80,00,000; but the Lieutenant-Governor, with reference to the figures before him, and to the claim which has been made on the Government of the North-Western Provinces for Rs. 1,50,000 on account of duty on Shahjehanpore rum exported to Bengal, fixed the regular estimate at Rs. 84,50,000. The adjustment, if agreed to, will be made through the Imperial allotment. Meanwhile, the Government of India have accepted the estimate of receipts in Bengal at Rs. 83,00,000. The receipts in March, however, have been unexpectedly large, and there can be little doubt that the gross estimate of this Government will be more than realized, and that the revenue of the year will amount to Rs. 85,50,000, even if the excess duty on Shahjehanpore rum is excluded from the estimate. This amount will accordingly be entered in the regular estimate for the year.

Assessed Taxes.—Under this head the amount, Rs. 3,50,000, taken in the budget estimate is unchanged, the Government of India having agreed to make a fixed allotment of this sum to meet all charges on account of license-tax for collection and refunds.

Provincial rates.—The budget estimate was Rs. 33,77,000. This was raised on the Accountant-General's regular estimate to Rs. 36,00,000, with reference to the actual receipts of the previous year. From the latest information, however, it would appear that the receipts will probably not exceed Rs. 35,25,000, and this figure will accordingly be adopted.

Customs.—The provincial receipts under this head comprise wharf rents, confiscations and penalties, and miscellaneous items. The budget estimate was Rs. 63,000. The actuals for the first six months justified the Accountant-General in increasing this to Rs. 1,14,000 in his regular estimate, and this figure was adopted. His revised estimate of Rs. 1,18,000 has been adopted by the Government of India. The figures which have reached this Government show that the receipts will come up to Rs. 1,30,000. This amount will be entered as the regular estimate.

Salt.—The local Government is responsible for a payment under this head of Rs. 2,20,000, the sources of income being rents of warehouses, fines and forfeitures and miscellaneous. The budget estimate for 1880-81 was Rs. 1,18,000. The Accountant-General in his regular estimate reduced the figure to Rs. 1,04,000, and he has now again adopted the original estimate. There has been an increase in the demand for warehouse accommodation, and the information before Government justifies the Lieutenant-Governor in assuming that the receipts will prove to have amounted to Rs. 1,35,000.

Stamps.—The Accountant-General's regular estimate of stamp revenue for 1880-81 was Rs. 1,16,92,000. It was reduced by this Government to Rs. 1,16,50,000. The Government of India has made a further reduction of Rs. 2,50,000. There was a decrease of stamp revenue in most of the districts in the closing months of the year. The Lieutenant-Governor will adopt the latest estimate.

Registration.—The regular estimate was Rs. 10,81,000. There has, however, been some falling off in the later months of the year. The actuals of 1879-80 were Rs. 10,29,000, and this amount will be entered as the regular estimate for the last year.

Minor Departments.—This head includes Colonial Emigration fees, Botanical Garden receipts, Cinchona Plantation receipts, and some miscellaneous items. The regular estimate was Rs. 1,58,000. The receipts from Cinchona Plantations were large towards the close of the year, and the estimate may be raised to Rs. 1,65,000.

Law and Justice.—The budget estimate was Rs. 19,81,000, of which Rs. 10,30,000 appeared under the head of Law and Justice proper, and Rs. 9,51,000 under that of Jails. In the regular estimate the figures for Law and Justice were increased by Rs. 15,000 under the sub-heads Sale proceeds of unclaimed property and Pleaders' examination fees, with reference to the receipts actually obtained up to that time. There has, however, been a considerable falling off in the receipts from General fees, fines and forfeitures in the later months of the year, and the estimate will be reduced to Rs. 9,75,000. The payment to the Imperial Treasury is Rs. 8,00,000. Under the head of Jails the Accountant-General in his regular estimate reproduced the budget estimate figures, remarking, however, that it was doubtful if the estimate would be realized. The latest information shows that the receipts from jail manufactures, though larger than in the previous year, will be below the estimate. The regular estimate of receipts cannot be taken at a higher figure than Rs. 7,25,000. The Lieutenant-Governor will therefore accept the regular estimate of the Government of India under this general head, and enter Rs. 17,00,000.

Police.—The estimate of receipts under Police was raised from Rs. 4,57,000 to Rs. 4,69,000 with reference to the actual receipts of the first six months. There has been a considerable increase under the minor head of Fees, fines and forfeitures, which include Pound collections, and the estimate will stand at Rs. 4,85,000.

Marine.—The regular estimate has been raised by the Government of India from Rs. 11,85,000 to Rs. 12,00,000 with reference to the later figures before them. There was a large increase in pilotage receipts towards the close of the year, and the estimate will be raised to Rs. 12,40,000.

Education.—The latest figures show that the regular estimate under this head may be raised from Rs. 4,86,000 to Rs. 5,10,000. There has been a considerable increase under "Fees and Contributions."

Stationery and Printing.—The regular estimate will be increased from Rs. 1,10,000 to Rs. 1,20,000, the figure adopted by the Government of India.

Miscellaneous.—The regular estimate was fixed at Rs. 7,17,000 by this Government. The Government of India have raised it to Rs. 7,35,000. The principal item in the receipts under this head is Unclaimed deposits. The actuals were Rs. 6,47,700 in 1878-79 and Rs. 5,77,582 in 1879-80. It is probable that a further decrease will be observed in 1880-81. This is attributed to the closer scrutiny to which the deposit registers are now subjected, under which all items liable to objection are at once removed, and smaller amounts are left to lapse to Government. The Accountant-General remarks that some portion of the reduction will be met by larger receipts under Service heads, and ultimately by a decrease under Refunds. The details under this head are liable to considerable adjustment after the close of the year, and it is not possible to estimate the ultimate result with any certainty. The regular estimate of the Government of India will be adopted. The amount payable to the Government of India under this head is Rs. 7,92,000.

Railways.—The actual receipts under this head in 1879-80 were Rs. 25,13,766 against Rs. 17,53,100 in 1878-79. The first estimate for 1880-81 was Rs. 27,25,000, but the increase during the first part of the year was so marked that the regular estimate was framed for Rs. 30,28,000. The Government of India have reduced the estimate to Rs. 29,35,000, and it is now not probable that this sum will be exceeded. The estimate will be modified accordingly.

Irrigation and Navigation.—It was observed, in the review of the regular estimate for 1879-80, that there had been a serious falling off in the receipts from tolls on rivers and canals. The receipts were Rs. 6,75,564 in 1878-79. The budget estimate for 1879-80 was Rs. 7,82,000, the regular estimate was reduced to Rs. 6,97,500, and the receipts were only Rs. 5,75,192. For 1880-81 the budget estimate was Rs. 6,79,000, and this has now to be reduced to Rs. 6,35,000. There has been a falling off in the traffic by these routes during the year. The regular estimate is based on the actuals up to the close of December. Under the head of Productive works the regular estimate is only Rs. 10,00,000, against a budget estimate of Rs. 11,66,000. It is explained that the low prices ruling have induced the people to hold up their stocks, and that they have thus been without money to pay their irrigation dues in time. Orders on this point have been issued from the Irrigation Branch.

Other Public Works.—The receipts under this head are made up of receipts from ferries, &c., by civil officers, and miscellaneous receipts by the Public Works Department, chiefly on account of rents and sales of old materials. The actuals under the former head were Rs. 5,28,327 in 1879-80, the regular estimate for 1880-81 is Rs. 5,12,000. There has been a decrease in ferry receipts in the Kungpore district, owing to the extension of the Northern Bengal State Railway. The estimate under the second head has been reduced from Rs. 1,49,000 to Rs. 1,10,000, chiefly on account of a write-back from the profits of the Calcutta workshops on account of excess credits to revenues in previous years.

Imperial allotment.—This represents the gradually decreasing sum made over from the Imperial Treasury to enable the local Government to carry on the services entrusted to its management in addition to the revenues derivable from them. The allotment for 1880-81 was Rs. 39,88,000. A fixed addition of Rs. 12,000 is to be made on account of the loss sustained by the Provincial Revenues in consequence of the crediting of the fees and fines under the Salt Department in Behar to the Imperial Revenues. The allotment proper for 1880-81 is therefore Rs. 40,00,000. To this must be added Rs. 44,000, advanced from Provincial Funds in 1878-79; on account of the Salt Preventive Establishment in Orissa, as well as Rs. 5,000 and Rs. 50,000 claimable from other Governments and the Imperial Government on account of jail manufactured articles supplied and printing work done respectively. The total sum shown under this head will therefore be Rs. 40,99,000.

EXPENDITURE.

Interest.—The actual charge in 1879-80 was Rs. 31,92,057 against a regular estimate of Rs. 35,67,780. The last estimate for 1880-81, given by the Accountant-General, Public Works Department, India, is Rs. 36,22,000, and this must be adopted.

Refunds.—The charges under this head may be divided into three classes, according as they refer to refunds under revenue heads transferred to Provincial management—(1) before 1877-78 (Registration, Jails, Police, Education, &c.); (2) in 1877-78 (Excise, Stamps, Law and Justice, Marine, Miscellaneous, &c.); or (3) after 1877-78 (Provincial Rates and Assessed Taxes). There is no grant from the Imperial Treasury under the first head; under the second the grant is Rs. 4,91,000. The actual charges under the first two heads have been Rs. 6,05,424 in 1877-78, Rs. 6,30,023 in 1878-79, and Rs. 6,48,149 in 1879-80. Under the third, a special grant was made to protect the Provincial Revenues from loss on account of refunds of license-tax collections. In 1880-81, and the current year, the local Government takes a lump sum of Rs. 3,50,000 to provide for all charges on account of license-tax. The regular estimate under this general head was framed with reference to the actuals of the first six months of the year. It has been raised by the Government of India from Rs. 6,50,000 to Rs. 7,60,000, with reference to later figures. The Lieutenant-Governor considers, however, that Rs. 7,00,000 will be a sufficiently large provision.

Land Revenue.—The regular estimate under this head was Rs. 25,12,000. The actual expenditure in 1879-80 was Rs. 25,08,972. The Government of India have raised the estimate to Rs. 26,41,000. The charges under regular Revenue establishments, and those for the management of estates, show a considerable increase, and the estimate will be raised to Rs. 27,00,000.

Under Excise, Assessed Taxes, Customs, Salt, and Stamps, the regular estimate already adopted requires no modification. Under Salt, the budget estimate was Rs. 34,000. This has been reduced to Rs. 22,000, the amalgamation of the post of Superintendent of the Sulkea Salt Golahs having effected a large saving. Under the head of Stamps is now included the cost of stamps supplied to the local Government,—a charge which formerly appeared under Stationery and Printing.

Under Registration, the Government of India raised the estimate from Rs. 6,25,000 to Rs. 6,50,000. The latest information available shows that it will be sufficient to provide Rs. 6,40,000.

Administration.—The Accountant-General's regular estimate was Rs. 14,43,000, and this has been raised by the Government of India to Rs. 14,87,000. There has been an increase in the charges under Commissioners' establishments. The Lieutenant-Governor considers that it will be sufficient to raise the estimate to Rs. 14,70,000. The fixed grant from the Imperial Treasury under this head is only Rs. 12,61,000.

Minor Departments.—The principal charges under this head are Colonial Emigration, Cinchona Plantations, Botanical Gardens, Registration of traffic, and Provincial Museums. The Accountant-General's regular estimate was Rs. 2,71,000. The actual charges in 1879-80 were Rs. 2,79,766. So far as can be ascertained, there will be little difference in the amount expended in 1880-81. The regular estimate will accordingly be raised to Rs. 2,80,000.

Law and Justice.—The budget estimate under Law and Justice (proper) was Rs. 64,73,000. This was raised to Rs. 66,45,000 in the regular estimate, chiefly with reference to the increased charges for copyists, and to the general revision of establishments in courts sanctioned in Government order No. 4365, dated 18th September 1880. Under the High Court's Circular No. 35, dated 1st October 1880, fees for copying and examining documents will be paid in stamps, and the copyists will be brought upon the regular establishment. Under Jails the regular estimate was framed at Rs. 18,96,000 against Rs. 18,40,000, the actuals of 1879-80. The gross regular estimate was therefore Rs. 85,41,000. There have been savings during the later months of the year, and the Government of India have reduced the regular estimate to Rs. 84,40,000. From the latest figures last supplied by the Accountant-General, the Lieutenant-Governor does not think it necessary to make a larger provision than Rs. 84,00,000.

Police.—The sanctioned estimate for 1880-81 was Rs. 40,70,000. The regular estimate was reduced to Rs. 39,97,000 with reference to the actual outgoings in the first six months of the year. The Government of India reduce this to Rs. 39,95,000. The Lieutenant-Governor prefers to adhere to the figure already adopted.

Marine.—The actual expenditure in 1879-80 was Rs. 10,68,279, and the budget estimate in 1880-81 was framed for Rs. 11,99,000. The regular estimate was reduced to Rs. 11,45,000, and this has been adopted by the Government of India. The details under this head are liable to considerable adjustment after the close of the year; but looking to the latest figures reported, the Lieutenant-Governor considers that the estimate may be further reduced to Rs. 11,00,000.

Education.—The estimates for 1880-81 showed an increase on Rs. 24,75,226, the actual cost in 1879-80, chiefly to provide for enhanced expenditure in Middle and High Schools, and on grants-in-aid and assignments. The Government of India have raised the regular estimate from Rs. 25,20,000 to Rs. 25,64,000, and this figure will be adopted.

Medical.—The expenditure under this head is showing a steady and satisfactory decrease. The actual charges were Rs. 14,86,050 in 1875-76, Rs. 13,62,918 in 1876-77, Rs. 13,84,869 in 1877-78, Rs. 12,31,000 in 1878-79, and Rs. 11,69,944 in 1879-80. The regular estimate for 1880-81 is Rs. 11,39,000. A reduction is shown under nearly every head except "Grants for medical purposes." The Government of India have raised the estimate to Rs. 11,48,000. The Lieutenant-Governor, however, considers that a provision of Rs. 11,25,000 will suffice.

Stationery and Printing.—The provincial items under this head are Stationery supplied from central stores, Stationery purchased in the country (provincial), Government Presses, Printing at private presses, and Rents, rates, and taxes. The budget estimate for 1880-81 included a provision of Rs. 6,41,000 for stamps and stationery supplied from the central stores. As has already been stated, the charge for stamps has now been transferred to the head of Stamps. In the regular estimate the provision was accordingly reduced to Rs. 5,21,000 on account of stationery only, and the gross estimate stands at Rs. 8,55,000. The Government of India have raised the estimate to Rs. 8,73,000 with reference to reported disbursements, and this figure will be adopted.

Miscellaneous.—The chief item under this head, besides rents, rates, and taxes on Government buildings, is "Miscellaneous and unforeseen charges." The gross charge is therefore liable to considerable variation. The actual expenditure in 1879-80 was Rs. 4,32,026, and the regular estimate for 1880-81 is Rs. 3,66,000. The estimate includes a provision of Rs. 1,00,000 for Miscellaneous and unforeseen charges.

Railways.—The original estimate for the working expenses of Railways was Rs. 17,90,000. The regular estimate was submitted for Rs. 16,50,000. This has been raised by the Government of India to Rs. 16,85,000. On this estimate the net earnings of the Railways would be Rs. 12,50,000 in 1880-81. The budget estimate only anticipated net earnings amounting to Rs. 9,35,000. The net earnings have thus been Rs. 5,00,000 in 1878-79, Rs. 5,91,000 in 1879-80, and probably not less than Rs. 12,50,000 in 1880-81. The position of the different lines in relation to capital expenditure and net earnings will be examined further on. The Government of India have added to the regular estimate under this head a sum of Rs. 3,26,000 which includes an expenditure of Rs. 2,20,000 on account of the Sonapore-Mugrah line.

Irrigation and Navigation.—Under this head provision was originally made for an expenditure of Rs. 21,60,000 on the Provincial account. The estimate was subsequently increased by the inclusion of a grant of Rs. 2,50,000 on account of the Jujooty Project. The revised budget estimate therefore stood at Rs. 24,10,000. The regular estimate amounts to Rs. 25,69,500, or in round numbers Rs. 25,70,000. It comprises an expenditure of Rs. 4,74,500 on the different provincial projects, including Rs. 76,000 for initial expenditure on the Orissa Coast Canal, Rs. 11,12,000 on account of working and maintenance charges of the Orissa Tidal Creeks, Circular Canals, and Nuddea Rivers, and Rs. 9,83,000 on account of working expenses of the Orissa, Midnapore, and Sone Canals. The receipts under the second head are estimated at Rs. 6,35,000 and under the third at Rs. 10,00,000.

Other Public Works.—The revised regular estimate provided for an expenditure under this head of Rs. 42,92,000. A further grant of Rs. 1,50,000 was made during the year, and the regular estimate stands at Rs. 44,42,000, including an expenditure of Rs. 39,000 by civil officers, chiefly on account of ferries.

Contributions.—Under this head appears the second instalment of the contribution of Rs. 20,00,000 made by the Provincial Government to the Imperial Treasury in 1879 in order to avoid the necessity of wholesale reductions in all departments of the Public Service, consequent on the difficulties of the Government of India. The “Contributions to local” include grants for roads to the Southal Pergunnahs, Chittagong Hill Tracts and Singbhoom, where the Cess Act is not in force, and to other districts to enable them to execute necessary works. It also includes the cost of collecting the Public Works Cess by the district establishments.

BUDGET ESTIMATE FOR 1881-82.

The table appended to this Resolution shows the estimated revenue and expenditure in Bengal during 1881-82 under the heads of Imperial, Provincial, and Local. The gross revenue is Rs. 17,03,58,000; and the expenditure under the different heads in the province is only Rs. 8,00,83,000. The only heads of Imperial taxation under which the sum payable by every hundred of the population can be estimated are Land Revenue and Assessed Taxes (license-tax). The receipts under Customs and Salt include duty paid on goods consumed outside the province. The rate per hundred of population under Land Revenue and Assessed Taxes is Rs. 56·7 and Rs. 2·5 respectively. The rates per hundred paid under the Provincial heads of revenue are—Stamps Rs. 13·6, Excise (spirits, &c.) Rs. 11·4, Excise Opium Rs. 2·1, Provincial Rates Rs. 5·3 Registration Rs. 1·5. Under the Local head of Provincial Rates (road cess) the proportion is Rs. 5·5.

PROVINCIAL SERVICE RECEIPTS.

Excise.—Under this head the Government of India have reduced the estimate from Rs. 87,000 to Rs. 83,00,000. The receipts for 1880-81 will probably not be less than Rs. 85,50,000, and the settlements for the current year are very favorable. The Lieutenant-Governor considers that the budget estimate for 1881 may safely be placed at 90 lakhs.

Customs.—Both the Local Government and the Government of India estimate the receipts under this head at Rs. 74,000, against Rs. 1,18,000, the regular estimate for 1880. The regular estimate includes large confiscations of cotton-goods, and peres for misdescription, most of which will have to be refunded by order of Government. The estimate of Rs. 74,000 will stand.

Salt.—The fees and fines of the inland Customs Department, hitherto included under this head, have now been omitted, the Government of India agreeing to increase the Imperial allotment by Rs. 12,000, the amount which it was originally estimated this Government would derive from them. The budget estimate will be raised to Rs. 1,31,000, the figure adopted as the regular estimate for 1880-81.

Stamps.—The Government of India has reduced the estimate of receipts under Stamps from Rs. 1,20,00,000 to Rs. 1,16,00,000. As the stamp revenue has fallen off generally during some of the past few months, the original estimate of Rs. 1,20,00,000 may not be realized. There is, however, no reason to apprehend that the ordinary receipts will be less than in 1880-81. Indeed, there are signs of recovery since the year opened. In the estimate for 1881-82 a new head of receipts, "Sale of stamps for copies," has been included under the operation of the High Court's Circular No. 35, dated the 1st October 1880, prescribing rules for granting copies of records. The receipts from this source are expected to amount to Rs. 4,20,000. It will be safe, therefore, to estimate the total receipts for the current year at Rs. 1,18,00,000, and this amount will accordingly be adopted for 1881-82.

Registration.—If, as is anticipated, the Registration receipts in 1880-81 will not exceed the actuals of 1879-80, which were Rs. 10,29,000, the estimate for 1881-82 cannot be put at much a higher figure than Rs. 10,50,000, even after allowing for some increase of registration all over the province. The original estimate will accordingly be reduced to Rs. 10,50,000.

Law and Justice.—The falling off in the regular estimate for 1880-81 is due to Jail receipts not coming up to the anticipated amount. For 1881-82 there is a falling off under Law and Justice (proper), owing to fees for copying being levied by stamps. The extension of jail manufactures, however, is expected to lead to higher receipts. The estimate of Rs. 18,20,000, as originally passed, will stand.

Police.—Under a Resolution of this Department, dated the 29th April last, the receipts from Pounds situated within municipalities have in all instances been made over to the municipalities concerned. The receipts on this account, hitherto credited to the Provincial Series, averaged about Rs. 12,000 a year. The estimate of Police receipts will accordingly be reduced to Rs. 4,65,000.

Marine.—The original estimate is Rs. 11,75,00. This will be raised to Rs. 12,00,000 with reference to the recent increase in pilotage receipts.

Medical.—The receipts in 1879-80 were belated by the payments of arrear contributions by the Calcutta Municipality for the Sealdah Hospital. The estimate of Rs. 1,65,000 for the year will stand.

Miscellaneous.—The falling off in the regular estimate for 1880-81, and in the estimate for 1881-82, is due to greater strictness with which deposits are scrutinized. Items that were formerly entered as deposits, and afterwards credited to Government as lapses, are now in many cases taken at once to service heads.

Railways.—The local estimate of receipts under State Railways has been reduced from Rs. 33,10,000 to Rs. 31,10,000 by the Government of India, Public Works Department. Looking to the steady increase in the traffic on the three principal lines, the Lieutenant-Governor consents that the estimate may safely stand at Rs. 32,10,000.

Irrigation.—The estimate under this head shows increase of Rs. 2,38,000 on the regular estimate for 1880-81. There is an estimated increase of Rs. 47,200 from the Orissa Canals, of Rs. 62,600 from the Madanapore Canals, of Rs. 90,200 from the Sone Canals, of Rs. 22,000 from the Sarun Canal and of Rs. 16,000 from the Calcutta Canal and Nuddea kers.

Imperial Allotment.—The allotment for 1880-81 has, as has already been stated, Rs. 40,00,000. From this must be deducted the sum of Rs. 3,75,000 on account of the growth of the revenue from Excise, Stamps, and Law and Justice proper, as provided in the contract of May 1877. The Imperial allotment for 1881-82 therefore stands at Rs. 36,25,000. Under this head credit should be taken for Rs. 2,00,000 on account of duty on Shajehanpore rum collected in the North-Western Provinces for five years 1877-82. It is not probable that the claim of this Government will be settled in time.

for inclusion in the accounts of 1880-81. A provision of Rs. 10,000 should also be made on account of Jail and Printing charges against other Governments. On the other hand, it will be necessary to provide for a payment of perhaps Rs. 25,000 to the Assam Administration on account of duty on Shahjehanpore rum consumed in that province.

Contribution.—A sum of Rs. 2,000 is entered under this head on account of contribution to Government for the services of executive officers of the Public Works Department for supervising district works.

PROVINCIAL SERVICE EXPENDITURE.

Interest.—The estimate of interest charges, adopted by the Government of India, is the one last advised by the Accountant-General, Public Works Department, and will stand.

Land Revenue.—The increase in Land Revenue charges has already been explained. The total charges in 1880-81 will probably amount to not less than Rs. 27,00,000, and the same amount will be required for the current year. There may be some reductions in the cost of sub-divisional establishments, but they will be counterbalanced by anticipated increases under other heads.

Refunds.—The budget estimate under this head is Rs. 6,46,000, and the Government of India have raised this to Rs. 7,81,000. The original estimate, however, was carefully framed. It includes an ample provision under the head of "Unclaimed or Lapsed Deposits," though, as has already been explained, a reduction under this head may be anticipated with the reduction under the receipt head "Miscellaneous." Local officers have also been instructed to exercise care in levying license-tax in doubtful cases, so that a decrease in the amount to be refunded under this head will probably be shown. The Lieutenant-Governor will adhere to the original estimate.

Excise.—The estimate is Rs. 2,70,000 against a sanctioned grant of Rs. 2,60,000 in 1880-81. The increase is chiefly due to the appointment of two additional Inspectors for preventive work.

Stamps.—As has already been stated, this head now includes the cost of stamps supplied to Provincial Governments which was formerly shown under Stationery and Printing. There is an increase in the budget estimate from Rs. 4,24,000 to Rs. 4,34,000. As the revenue expands there must be an increase in the gross cost of the stamps and in the discount for selling them.

Registration.—As the estimate of receipts has been reduced, there will be a decrease in the estimated charges for commission. The original estimate of the Accountant-General was Rs. 6,32,000, and this will stand.

Administration.—The increase in the estimated expenditure, compared with the actuals of the last year, is due to provision made for the salary of the Examiner of Local Accounts and his establishment. There have also been increases in the Bengal Secretariat establishment.

Law and Justice.—The heavy increase under Law and Justice, compared with the estimates of past years, is due to increases under Jail manufactures, to the appointment of 25 additional Deputy Magistrates, and largely to the introduction of the new system under which copying fees are collected by stamps, and the copyists paid by Government. The Lieutenant-Governor would retain the original estimate of Rs. 91,21,000.

Police.—The increase in the estimate for 1881-82 is chiefly under District Executive Force, Village Police, and Special Police, as against a considerable decrease in Pounds. The refunds to constables of the balance of their clothing account are now taken under this head instead of Refunds. The cost of police employed in Government estates was formerly in some instances included in the grant for the management of estates. It is now shown under Police.

Marine.—The estimate for 1881-82 contains a provision of Rs. 1,00,000 for a pilot brig.

Education.—The estimate of expenditure is Rs. 26,90,000 against the regular estimate of Rs. 25,64,000 in 1880-81. The Lieutenant-Governor has added Rs. 1,00,000 to the grant for primary education. The grant under this head was reduced in 1876 under financial pressure.

Medical.—The budget estimate is Rs. 11,63,000, but this may be reduced to Rs. 11,25,000, the figure adopted for the regular estimate of 1880-81.

Railways.—The original estimate of working expenses of State Railways was Rs. 17,68,000. This has been raised by the Government of India to Rs. 18,90,000, provision being made for the purchase of four locomotives for the Calcutta and South-Eastern line. The gross estimate of Rs. 26,40,000 under this head also includes Rs. 7,50,000 for expenditure on the Sonapore-Mugra line. The net earnings from Railways were Rs. 5,91,000 in 1879-80, and probably Rs. 12,50,000 in 1880-81. It is expected that they will amount to Rs. 13,20,000 in 1881-82.

Irrigation and Navigation.—The budget estimate of expenditure is Rs. 40,00,000. This includes Rs. 10,00,000 for the Orissa Coast Canal, Rs. 2,50,000 for the Jujooty scheme, Rs. 50,000 for works and repairs on the Orissa Tidal Creeks, and Rs. 10,20,000 for works and repairs, comprising a new lock, on the Circular and Eastern Canals. The cost of establishment, tools and plant on these last works is estimated at Rs. 7,44,714. There will also be an expenditure of Rs. 30,750 on the Sarun Canal. The expenditure on the Orissa, Midnapore, Higellee, and Sone Canals will be Rs. 9,04,536. The estimate of receipts on these four canals is Rs. 12,00,000. The net earnings are therefore estimated at Rs. 2,95,464, against Rs. 1,73,614, the actuals of 1879-80.

Other Public Works.—The provision made under this head by the Lieutenant-Governor was Rs. 75,43,000. The Government of India have reduced the estimate to Rs. 57,93,000. The transfers to the head "Railways" amount to Rs. 7,50,000. The Lieutenant-Governor will allow the balance of the estimate, Rs. 67,93,000, to stand. He is satisfied that the Provincial Funds can bear this outlay without any undue reduction of the working balance, and numerous important schemes which have been postponed from time to time under the pressure of Imperial wants must now, in the interests of the administration of the province, be pushed forward to completion.

Contribution.—The amount provided for grants-in-aid to District Road Committees is Rs. 1,50,000, and to the three non-cess districts Rs. 45,000; the total is Rs. 1,95,000. This includes the grants made to the District Road Committees for the collection of the Public Works cess. The provision of Rs. 1,95,000 will accordingly stand.

INCORPORATED LOCAL FUNDS.

The estimates of receipts and expenditure of Incorporated Local Funds, as passed by this Government, have been adopted by the Government of India. They are as follows:—

			Receipts.	Expenditure.
			Rs.	Rs.
District Road Fund	35,10,000	49,10,000
" " Account	5,000	59,000
" Port Fund	2,95,000	3,02,000
Estates Improvement Fund	1,12,000	1,17,000
Inland Labour Transport Fund	1,27,000	78,000
Total			40,49,000	54,66,000
Add for rounding	1,000
				54,67,000

The Inland Labour Transport Fund has been placed in deficit owing to the expenditure of its balances on the Emigration road from the Teesta. A sum of one lakh has been expended on the same work from Provincial Funds. Provincial Funds have also provided a steamer service and a tramway from Kownia to Kurigram. The Lieutenant-Governor now proposes to debit to Provincial revenues so much of the charges of the Labour Transport Fund as will enable it to start under the new Act with a credit balance of Rs. 20,000.

THE WORKING OF THE PROVINCIAL CONTRACTS.

The scheme of decentralization which was initiated in 1871 received a remarkable development in 1877. Under the first essay of the system, the local Government was entrusted with the management chiefly of spending departments, such receipts as were connected with them being supplemented by large consolidated allotments for their maintenance. The only department in which the revenue exceeded expenditure was Registration; Police, Jails, Education, and Medical were services under which the receipts could never be expected to bear more than a very small ratio to the charges. It was therefore chiefly with a view to economy in administration that the Government of Lord Mayo determined to make the local Government responsible for the financial management of these branches of the Administration. In 1877 the system of decentralization took another step in advance. The Government of India, while handing over other great departments of expenditure to the local Government, also entrusted to its use and responsibility, on fixed terms of progressive payment, all the principal revenues which could be deemed capable of steady expansion under careful local management. The success of the earlier measure had been sufficient to ensure some extension of the principle; but the form which the extension took was in great measure determined by the decision to which the Secretary of State had come on the great question of famine relief. In his financial statement of March 1877, Sir John Strachey announced that it was the intention of the Government of India to meet charges for famine and unremunerative works out of revenue for the future. He proposed to place the Government in a position to do this, not by introducing any new Imperial taxation, but by extending the system of decentralization, and by making each local Government responsible for the management and charges of the great public works which had been constructed, and for the construction and management of those to be subsequently undertaken. He declared that the fundamental principle to be pursued in regard to public works was the enforcement of provincial responsibility only. The Government of India had not then sketched out any system of what was afterwards called "famine finance." It only wished to free its hands for the task of dealing with famine "by distributing between the various provinces the burden which now improperly rests on the Imperial revenues." Bengal was the only province, however, which was then considered able to carry the whole of its own burden. The charge for interest on productive public works was transferred to the Provincial account, and the Lieutenant-Governor was invited to raise by taxation the funds necessary to meet existing charges, as well as to provide for new works. The Public Works Cess Act of 1877 was accordingly introduced. Provincial responsibility for all productive works existing and future was definitely assumed, and the policy which the Secretary of State had affirmed was in regard to this province, carried into effect. It may here be remarked that in other provinces the policy enunciated in 1877 was still incomplete when the "famine policy" was proclaimed in 1878. It thus came to pass that, while in other provinces it was expressly declared both in the "License" and the "Local Rates" Acts of 1878 that the taxes raised under them were to be at the unrestricted disposal of the Government of India for the relief of famine, in Bengal only the License Act contained such a declaration. The Bengal Public Works Cess Act of 1877 had been passed, and decentralization in regard to Bengal Public Works had been consummated before the scheme which underlay the legislation of 1878 was matured. The Bengal Cess was simply a link in the chain of decentralization. It was only connected with "famine finance" in so far as the payments for interest on Public Works capital by the local Government improved the general financial position of the Government of India, which had hitherto borne this charge, and placed it in funds to meet extraordinary expenditure for famine or any other exceptional demand, and in so far as any productive works must operate to protect the province from the effects of failure of its crops.

The decentralization measures of 1877 were of a threefold character—(1) certain departments of revenue were made over to Provincial management, some for fixed payments, some for progressive contributions to the Imperial Treasury; (2) certain departments of expenditure were made over to it with fixed allotments; (3) the public works which had been or were to be constructed with borrowed money were made over to it without any assignment. These arrangements were mutually inter-dependent. The first and second were connected, because, though fixed allotments only were made for expenditure, it was well recognized that expenditure could not be fixed, but must be progressive, and it was intended that the necessary increase in charges consequent on improved administration should be met out of the profits which the Provincial Government might derive from the assigned revenues over and above the amount of its contribution. The first and third were connected, because it was similarly recognized that the large responsibilities assumed by the local Government in regard to public works should be merged in the aggregate of its ways and means. It was only reasonable therefore that the progressive contributions under the heads of assigned revenue should be so fixed as to leave the local Government a margin for the discharge of its actual responsibilities, as well as for the improvement of the province. This was definitely recognized by the Government of India when it declared that the contracts were to be absolute for a term of five years. It said: "Inasmuch as a considerable burden is being now imposed upon the province of Bengal in order to guarantee to the Imperial revenues the interest on the capital spent in Bengal on the construction of canals and railways, the Government of India has consented for the present to abstain from claiming any part of the further increase which may be expected to these revenues in consequence of the greater attention that they will now doubtless receive from the Local Government."

Before the details of the contract of 1877 are examined, it will be convenient to state briefly how the arrangements made in 1871 then stood. Under the Resolution of 14th December 1870, Lord Mayo's Government entrusted the Government of Bengal with the financial management of the Departments of Police, Jails, Registration, Education, Medical, Printing, Roads, and Civil Buildings. The original assignment which, with the receipts obtainable under some of these heads, was to enable the local Government to administer the departments, was Rs. 1,16,85,920. Some additions and deductions were subsequently made, the principal modification being the deduction of Rs. 13,30,000 on the separation of Assam from Bengal. In March 1877 the provincial allotment on account of these services stood at Rs. 1,10,59,000.

Under the contract of March 1877 the local Government was further entrusted with the management of the following heads of revenue: (1) Excise, (2) Customs (Miscellaneous Receipts), (3) Salt (Minor Items); (4) Stamps; (5) Law and Justice (proper); (6) Marine, and (7) Miscellaneous; and of the following heads of expenditure: (1) Refunds of the assigned revenues; (2) Land Revenue; (3) Excise; (4) Customs, (5) Salt, (6) Stamps, (7) Administration, (8) Minor departments, (9) Law and Justice, (10) Marine, (11) Miscellaneous, and one or two smaller items. The allotment made under the heads of Expenditure was Rs. 1,34,70,000, and the total, including the existing allotment under the heads previously transferred, was Rs. 2,45,29,000. From this was deducted, on not very intelligible grounds, a lumpsum of Rs. 5,90,000, and the net consolidated grant was thus reduced to Rs. 2,39,39,000. The payments to be made on account of the assigned revenues in the first year amounted to Rs. 1,91,07,000, and this was to be increased every year by Rs. 3,75,000 under the heads of Excise, Stamps, and Law and Justice. The balance represented the Imperial allotment to the Provincial revenues. It was thus to be Rs. 48,32,000 in 1877-78, Rs. 44,57,000 in 1878-79, Rs. 40,82,000 in 1879-80, Rs. 37,07,000 in 1880-81, and Rs. 33,32,000 in 1881-82. Adjustments under various heads, however, always operate to modify these figures.

The following table shows at a glance the progress of the Provincial revenue and expenditure during the five years. The revenue side of the account includes the proceeds of the Public Works Cess and the receipts from Railways and Canals. On the expenditure side appear the charges for interest on the capital expended and the cost of maintenance. The sum entered as a receipt under "Assessed taxes" is simply the grant made to the Provincial revenues to meet the cost of collections and refunds on account of the License-tax.

This statement would show that the Provincial revenues have increased from Rs. 2,69,11,000 to Rs. 3,68,28,000 during the five years, while the expenditure on all accounts has increased from Rs. 3,08,60,000 to Rs. 4,40,95,000. The year 1877-78, however, cannot properly be compared with the succeeding years. In the first place, the whole amount of the Public Works Cess could not be levied during that year. This circumstance affects both sides of the account; for, though the charge for interest for which the local Government was liable in that year on account of capital expenditure on public works up to the close of 1876-77 was Rs. 27,47,000, the Government of India in consideration of the short levy of the cess only insisted on a payment of Rs. 20,00,000. Moreover, the accounts of the Provincial Services for this year do not include several important items which were afterwards shown under the heads of "Police," "Irrigation and Navigation," and "Other Public Works" on the abolition of the "Provincial Reserve." From 1878-79 the income from Pounds and some smaller receipts appear under "Police," receipts from tolls on the Nuddea Rivers and Calcutta and Eastern Canals appear under "Irrigation and Navigation," and receipts from ferries, rents from Strand Bank, and other items appear under "Other Public Works." Finally, there is no entry under assessed taxes in 1877-78, as the license-tax had not then been introduced. It may be observed, though this has no bearing on the aggregate figures, that the receipts shown under "Land Revenue" in the accounts of this year, consisting of record-room receipts and land registration fees, were subsequently transferred—first to "Miscellaneous" and then to "Registration." The receipts which, from 1878-79, were shown under a new heading "Minor Departments" were previously shown under other heads, chiefly "Miscellaneous."

From 1878-79, however, accurate comparison of the condition of the finances in the different years is possible. The gross revenue was Rs. 3,20,78,000 in 1878-79; it is estimated that it will be Rs. 3,68,28,000 in 1881-82. In other words, the revenue has increased at the rate of about 16 lakhs of rupees a year for the three years, though there has been no new taxation in the interval. Of the sum of Rs. 47,50,000, by which the gross estimates for 1881-82 exceed the actuals for 1878-79, Excise contributes 20 lakhs, Stamps 10 lakhs, Jails 3 lakhs, Railways $14\frac{1}{2}$ lakhs, Irrigation and Navigation, $3\frac{1}{2}$ lakhs. On the other hand there is a decrease of over $\frac{3}{4}$ of a lakh in Provincial rates, of about $1\frac{1}{4}$ lakh under Law and Justice proper, and about $1\frac{1}{2}$ lakh under Miscellaneous. The chief increases in expenditure are—Interest $5\frac{1}{2}$ lakhs, Land Revenue $1\frac{1}{2}$ lakh, Stamps 2 lakhs, Law and Justice 4 lakhs, Jails 4 lakhs, Education 2 lakhs, Railways $17\frac{1}{2}$ lakhs, Irrigation and Navigation 25 lakhs, and other Public Works 29 lakhs. A decrease of nearly a lakh is shown under Stationery and Printing, corresponding with a part of the increase under Stamps.

The progress of the revenue under EXCISE is one of the most satisfactory features in the Statement. While the revenue has increased from $70\frac{1}{4}$ lakhs in 1878-79 to $85\frac{1}{2}$ in 1880-81, and 90 in 1881-82, the cost of collecting it has declined from Rs. 2,83,000 to Rs. 2,70,000. This is the result partly of the extension of the outstill system, and partly of the great prosperity of the province during this period. There can be no question that the outstill system is the only system under which an excise on spirits can be properly administered in rural tracts in this country. Under the sudder distillery system, all spirits that paid duty were manufactured at a Government distillery. Each licensed vendor kept a still within the limits of this establishment; he had to maintain servants to work it; he had to journey in most cases long distances backwards and forwards between his shop and still, to spend money in conveying the manufactured spirits to the place of sale, to secure the good-will of the distillery staff, and to undergo various other expenses and inconveniences. It cannot be doubted that in many cases he only distilled publicly and paid duty on a sufficient quantity of spirits to enable him to keep up the necessary appearance, and that he supplemented this by a supply of illicit liquor, or adulterated it to increase his profit. The preventive establishment, if only from its weakness, was altogether unable to cope with the illicit distillation that went on all over the country. Under the outstill system each vendor purchases the right to manufacture and sell spirits within the area commanded by his shop. He makes the spirits with his own rude appliances, and suits it to the taste of his consumers, while, as it is his interest to suppress competition, he and his agents act as preventive officers throughout the tract. The revenue is protected, while the people are provided with wholesome liquor which is reported to be weening them from the use of ganja and other deleterious drugs. The liquor is cheaper than the distillery spirit previously sold, but a series of experiments has shown that it is also weaker by from 23 to 24 degrees; so that the price according to alcoholic strength is much the same. The fact that during the current year the number of shops has been reduced, while the price paid for the licenses has largely increased, shows that the system is being carefully administered, and that there is no danger of undue cheapening of liquor. That there has been an increased consumption of liquor is very probable, but this is the result, not of undue facilities for obtaining liquor, but of increased facilities for obtaining duty paid liquor, and, no doubt, of increased power to purchase it. A succession of good harvests with high prices has provided the people with money to spend on luxuries, and among these exciseable articles, in this as in all countries, hold a high place. There has been a large increase in the consumption of duty-paying liquor where the sudder distillery system has been maintained, and there has been an increase in the consumption of excise opium, of piece-goods, and of everything on which prosperous peasants are disposed to spend their surplus funds. The revenue from excise opium was Rs. 12,49,000 in 1877-78, Rs. 13,35,000 in 1878-79, and Rs. 13,62,000 in 1879-80, and it is estimated to amount to Rs. 13,95,000 in 1880-81. The price has been increased, but the increase in consumption still proceeds, and the receipts will probably not be less than Rs. 14,50,000 in 1881-82. The increased consumption of piece-goods also bears unmistakable testimony to the increased prosperity of the country, and confirms the view that the excise revenue has been to a great extent improved by the greater spending power of the people. The value of these goods carried to Bengal or Behar districts by the Eastern Bengal and East Indian Railways was Rs. 6,44,31,000 in 1879-80, and Rs. 6,91,16,000 in 1880-81.

The incidence of the excise revenue on the people is very small. The rate per hundred of the population of the province was only Rs. 11 in 1879-80. In Calcutta it was Rs. 174, in Bhagulpore Division Rs. 13, in Orissa Rs. 12 (chiefly from opium), in Dacca Rs. 6, and in Chittagong Rs. 5. The revenue from country spirits, according to the latest figures available, was only Rs. 7 on every hundred persons in the Patna Division, and Rs. 6 on every hundred in the Bhagulpore Division. In Durbhunga and Mozufferpore, both in the Patna Division, it was only Re. 1 and Rs. 2 respectively. That the revenue produced bore any close relation to the quantity of spirits consumed is quite incredible. The increase in the revenue that has followed, especially in these divisions, on the extension of the outstill system, largely represents revenue which was lost through illicit distillation under the old system.

The excise revenue was made over to the management of the Provincial Government for a payment rising from 64 lakhs in 1877-78 to 68 lakhs in 1881-82. The gross profit made by the Bengal Government has thus been, roughly, 4½ lakhs in the first year, 5½ lakhs in the second, 6 lakhs in the third, 18½ lakhs in the fourth, and 22 lakhs in the fifth. The fixed grant for managing the revenue is Rs. 2,92,000. The actual cost was Rs. 3,06,000 in 1877-78. This has been reduced by careful management to Rs. 2,70,000 in 1881-82. Thus in 1881-82 the excise receipts will exceed the estimated receipts of 1877-78 by no less than 26 lakhs of rupees, while the expenditure for collecting the revenue and managing the department will show a reduction of Rs. 22,000.

Under STAMPS the increase has been less rapid than under excise. It has nevertheless been very satisfactory and sustained. The actual receipts in 1876-77 were Rs. 95,48,000, and the revenue was made over to the Provincial Government for a payment rising by 2½ lakhs a year from Rs. 98,50,000 in 1877-78 to Rs. 1,08,50,000 in 1881-82. In 1877-78, however, there was a large increase in receipts owing to the operations under the Land Registration Act, and the actual revenue collected was Rs. 1,08,15,000. In 1878-79 the receipts were Rs. 1,07,85,000. In 1879-80 the receipts rose to Rs. 1,14,99,000, and in 1880-81 this advance may be said to have been sustained. In 1881-82 there will be a still further increase, probably to Rs. 1,18,00,000. The increase in the estimated receipts, however, will be the result of a change introduced by the High Court in the procedure for obtaining copies of documents, and there will be a corresponding decrease in fees formerly credited to Law and Justice, and an increase in the cost of establishments debitable to the same head. The steady and substantial increase in the Stamp Revenue from Rs. 95,48,000 in 1876-77 to Rs. 1,14,00,000 in 1880-81 is undoubtedly to a great extent the result of increased circulation of wealth in the country, and increased facilities for obtaining justice. But much of the increase is also due to improved administration of the department and special measures taken to discover and check fraud in the use of stamps. The gross profit of the Provincial Government has been roughly $9\frac{1}{2}$ lakhs in 1877-78, $6\frac{1}{2}$ lakhs in 1878-79, $11\frac{1}{2}$ lakhs in 1879-80, 8 lakhs in 1880-81, and $9\frac{1}{2}$ lakhs in 1881-82. The fixed grant for managing this department of the revenue is Rs. 2,38,000. The actual cost was Rs. 2,48,000 in 1877-78, and Rs. 2,51,000 in 1878-79. It is estimated to be Rs. 4,34,000 in 1881-82. The increase in the first years corresponds with the increase in the receipts. Larger sales of stamps must be attended by increased charges for discount. The increase in the later years is due to the transfer of the actual cost of the stamps from the head of "Stationery." The fixed grant under "Stationery" for both stamps and stationery is Rs. 4,98,000. The actual expenditure on both was Rs. 6,89,000 in 1878-79. The expenditure on stationery alone is estimated to be Rs. 6,23,000 in 1881-82, while the charge for stamps supplied from the stores is estimated to be Rs. 1,60,000. These are charges which must be expected to grow as the different branches of the revenue and of the administration are developed.

Under REGISTRATION the receipts have steadily increased though the progress has not been so rapid in the later as it was in the earlier years. The figures from 1878-79 include Record-room receipts and Land Registration fees transferred from Land Revenue. The Registration receipts proper were Rs. 6,61,000 in 1877-78, Rs. 8,70,000 in 1878-79, Rs. 9,09,000 in 1879-80. No advance is expected in 1880-81, and only a slight advance in 1881-82. They were only Rs. 3,66,978 in 1871-72, the first year that the revenue was under Provincial management. With increased receipts there is naturally an advance in the charges for commission on fees, by which most of the Sub-Registrars are remunerated.

LAW AND JUSTICE is the third of the branches of revenue surrendered in 1877 for a progressive payment. The actual receipts in 1876-77 were Rs. 7,30,000. The revenue was surrendered to the Provincial Government for a payment rising by $\frac{1}{4}$ lakh a year from Rs. 7,25,000 in 1877-78 to Rs. 8,25,000 in 1881-82. The actual receipts have been Rs. 8,05,000 in 1877-78, Rs. 10,52,000 in 1878-79, and Rs. 10,80,000 in 1879-80, and they are estimated to be Rs. 9,75,000 in 1880-81 and Rs. 9,20,000 in 1881-82. The increase in the revenue was chiefly under the head of fees, and corresponded in some measure with the increase under Stamps. The falling off in the later years is explained by the new procedure already alluded to in connection with stamps. The expenditure under Law and Justice shows a large increase from Rs. 63,77,000 in 1877-78 to Rs. 68,69,000 in 1881-82. The fixed grant for this service under the five years' settlement between the Imperial and Local Government is Rs. 62,97,000. There has thus been a heavy charge on Provincial Funds. It was, however, precisely in order that the local Government might have the means of providing for improved administration, involving increased expense, that improvable revenue was made over to it. The Lieutenant-Governor has been able to strengthen the Subordinate Executive Service, and he has been able to increase the number of moonsiffs to meet the growing wants of the country in the administration of Civil Justice.

Under JAILS the receipts were Rs. 6,89,000 in 1877-78. They are estimated to amount to Rs. 7,25,000 in 1880-81 and Rs. 9,00,000 in 1881-82. The charges on the other hand rose from Rs. 16,51,000 in 1877-78 to Rs. 18,41,000 in 1879-80. For 1880-81 they are estimated at Rs. 17,00,000, and for 1881-82 at Rs. 22,52,000. A great part of the increase in the current year will be incurred in the purchase of raw materials for jail manufactures. It is necessary to explain that the actual receipts shown to the credit of Jails in the accounts do not represent the outturn of the work of the prisoners. Only cash payments are shown: work done for the Jail Department itself and for other departments of the public service is only acknowledged by departmental credits. The importance of the work done by the jails in supplying clothing, oil, and other requirements of the public service is increasing every day.

The fixed grant for the charges on account of LAND REVENUE made in 1877 was Rs. 22,62,000. With the charges which this was intended to cover have been amalgamated others, chiefly for sub-divisional establishments, which were originally Provincial. The gross cost of all in 1876-77 was Rs. 23,53,000. The growing wants of the administration, however, have since carried the expenditure far beyond this limit. A grant of Rs. 1,80,000 has since been made for the management of Government estates. The estimate for each of the years 1880-81 and 1881-82 is Rs. 27,00,000. Establishments have been strengthened and made more efficient, and additions have been made to the staff of Deputy Collectors.

For the charges recorded under the head of ADMINISTRATION the Imperial Treasury allows a fixed grant of Rs. 12,61,000. The cost now exceeds this by 2 lakhs a year. The difference is met from Provincial funds.

The expenditure on EDUCATION was Rs. 19,58,000 in 1871-72. This included the charges in Assam. In 1875-76 the expenditure in Bengal amounted to Rs. 26,32,000. In the next year Sir Richard Temple under financial pressure reduced the expenditure to Rs. 24,48,000. Sir Ashley Eden has now been able to make full provision for the needs of this important department. He has been able to replace one lakh of rupees reduced from the grant for Primary Education in 1876-77, and the gross expenditure allowed for 1881-82 is Rs. 26,90,000.

In the MEDICAL administration important savings have been made. The management of the Metropolitan Hospitals has been reformed, and much waste of public money has been prevented. Government aid to dispensaries in the interior no longer takes the form of a free supply of expensive instruments and drugs, and careful management has ensued from the responsibility thus thrown on the directing Committees. The charges which amounted to Rs. 14,86,000 in 1875-76, Rs. 13,63,000 in 1876-77, and Rs. 13,85,000 in 1877-78 were reduced to Rs. 12,31,000 in 1878-79 and Rs. 11,70,000 in 1879-80. In 1880-81 and 1881-82 the estimate is Rs. 11,25,000. With this reduction in cost there has been an increase in the number of persons actually receiving medical aid.

It will be convenient to consider together the figures under PUBLIC WORKS and the figures of the INTEREST payable on the capital invested in them. In 1877 the following works were made over to the management of the Government of Bengal with the responsibility for the payment of the interest charges on the capital expended on their construction:—Northern Bengal Railway, Tirhoot Railway, Nalhati Railway, Orissa Canals, Midnapore High Level Canal, Hidgellie Canal and Sone Canals. The Calcutta and South-Eastern Railway was also made over; but as this line had been making barely sufficient to cover the working expenses, no interest was charged on the capital. The amount of capital expenditure on which the Provincial Government was liable for interest up to the end of 1877-78 was—

					Rs.
Canals	4,56,13,000
					<hr/> 6,66,60,000 <hr/>

The sum due for interest on this capital was Rs. 30,00,000; but, as has already been explained, the Government of India only took Rs. 20,00,000 in this year. In 1878-79 the capital expenditure on Railways was Rs. 66,41,000, chiefly on the extension of the Northern Bengal line and the construction of the Patna and Gya line. The expenditure on Canals was Rs. 25,14,393. In 1879-80 the expenditure was Rs. 22,12,000 on Railways, and Rs. 16,12,000 on Canals. Of the first sum, however, Rs. 3,15,000 was provided from Provincial Funds in order to expedite the completion of the Patna-Gya line. It does not bear interest; but, under the rules of the Government of India, it must be shown as advanced from Imperial Funds, the charge being adjusted in the Provincial accounts as a contribution to the Imperial treasury. The regular estimate for 1880-81 provides for a capital expenditure of Rs. 9,08,000 only on Railways, and Rs. 15,00,000 on Canals. The budget estimate for 1881-82 provides from the funds at the disposal of the Supreme Government Rs. 29,98,500 for expenditure on Railways, chiefly for the extension of the Tirhoot line to Bettiah on the west and Peepra Ghât on the east, and Rs. 11,50,000 for expenditure on Canals. The Lieutenant-Governor has more than once represented the insufficiency of the allotment for capital expenditure on Railways in Bengal. Several schemes, which would enormously benefit the country and at the same time bring in a large revenue to the State, have been examined and matured, but the Government of India has felt itself bound by the orders of the Secretary of State not to exceed a total expenditure of 2½ millions sterling in India; and the claims of other provinces have been held to be more pressing than those of Bengal.

In 1877-78 the receipts under RAILWAYS amounted to Rs. 7,32,000 and the charges to Rs. 6,26,000: while the charges for interest amounted to Rs. 8,26,000. The Northern Bengal line was only opened from Poradah to Julpigoree in January 1878; and the extensions from Parbutipore to Rung-
Tee and from Siligoree to Julpigoree were only ready for traffic, the former in July and the latter in November 1878. The Patna-Gya line and the extension of the Northern Bengal line to Kownia on the Teesta were opened for traffic in June 1879. In 1880 the Lieutenant-Governor was permitted by the Government of India to begin, as a provincial work, the construction of a line from Sonapore, on the Calcutta and South-Eastern line, to Mugra Hât, an important mart in the 24-Pergunnahs district, and a sum of Rs. 2,20,000 was expended upon it from Provincial Funds. This line is being constructed on the broad gauge, and it is hoped that it may be extended to Diamond Harbour. The estimates for 1881-82 include a charge of Rs. 7,50,000 for expenditure on this line. Provision has also been made under Other Public Works for the expenditure of Rs. 4,50,000 for preliminary work on a line to connect Parbutipore on the Northern Bengal Railway, with the important town of Dinagepore, and of two lakhs for raising and bridging the road from Mugra to Diamond Harbour to make it available for railway extension.

	1877-78.	1878-79.	1879-80.	1880-81, regular.	1881-82, budget.	REMARKS.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.		Rs.
Gross receipts	7,32,000	17,53,000	25,14,000	29,35,000	32,10,000	*Includes cost of four new locomotives for Calcutta and South-Eastern line.
Working expenses	5,69,000	12,53,000	19,23,000	16,85,000	18,90,000
Net profits	1,63,000	5,00,000	5,91,000	12,50,000	13,20,000

If the receipts of the Calcutta and South-Eastern line, on account of which no interest is payable, are excluded, the net receipts for 1880-81 would be Rs. 11,95,000, and for 1881-82 Rs. 13,70,000. The amount of interest payable on the capital in 1880-81 is estimated to be Rs. 13,50,000. The following table shows at a glance the capital expenditure on each of the three principal lines up to the close of 1880-81, with the percentage which the net earnings for that year bear to it. The sum entered opposite the Patna and Gya line includes Rs 3,15,000 spent from Provincial Funds:—

	Capital expenditure. Rs.	Net earnings. Rs.	Percentage.
Northern Bengal	2,10,79,000	7,75,000	3·6
Patna and Gya	35,78,000	2,10,000	5·8
Tirhoot	56,57,000	2,25,000	3·9

It is estimated that in 1881-82 the Northern Bengal line will pay 4 per cent., the Patna and Gya line 6 per cent., and the completed portion of the Tirhoot line over 5 per cent.

It has been a matter of great regret to Sir Ashley Eden that so little has been done during the past four years to extend railway communication in this province. The financial success of any well designed railway in Bengal is a matter of certainty. The country teems with produce, which only seeks the means of communication with the great highways of the country. It was feared that the Gya line would not pay the interest, and it was with some difficulty that it succeeded in obtaining sanction to the work. Yet in the first year, during which it was opened the line made a clear profit, and it had an important effect on the prosperity of the tract south of it. The great increase in indirect revenue from the Behar districts has been the result of the opening of this line and of the Tirhoot line, where people have been enabled to reap the advantages of favourable seasons. The gross traffic carried by the Tirhoot Railway has risen steadily from 10,000 maunds in 1877-78, 9,79,000 maunds in 1878-79, and 15,52,000 maunds in 1879-80, to 19,81,000 maunds in 1880-81, and there is reason to think that the figures for the latter year are incomplete. A great improvement in the condition of the people and in the general revenues is largely noticeable in the districts through which the Northern Bengal Railway passes. The development of the traffic on this line is very remarkable. Though the system of feeders has only just been commenced, the weight carried rose from 17,26,000 maunds in 1878-79 to 26,57,000 maunds in 1879-80 and 32,26,000 maunds in 1880-81. The following figures show the progress of the downward and upward traffic in some of the principal staples in the district.

There is still a vast field for railway expansion in Bengal, and it is a matter of great satisfaction to the Lieutenant-Governor that private enterprise is entering it. The success of the State lines shows that large profits await the investment of capital in these works. Sir Ashley Eden has for some time past been urging that as the State could not find the capital for a sufficiently rapid extension of railways, it was false economy to refuse to allow private companies to take up some of the lines under proper security for their future management. He will always welcome any project for the development of the country by the agency of private capitalists where the State is unable to do what is wanted within a reasonable time. In the meantime, however, he trusts that the agency of the State will not be idle, and that it will be possible to provide funds for the construction of some of the lines which have already been approved. A line from Bhugwangola through the districts of Moorshedabad and Nuddea to join the Eastern Bengal Railway; a line through Dacca to Naraingunge and Mymensingh; a line to connect the Tirhoot and Northern Bengal System, and thus encourage emigration from the North-Western Provinces and Behar to Assam; a line from Tirhoot to the Ganges opposite Patna; and a line to Diamond Harbour are projects which hold out promise of excellent results in every respect. Some of these may no doubt be made from Provincial Funds; others from capital the interest of which is guaranteed by provincial funds; others by private companies.

The CANALS which were taken over by this Government in 1877 were financially of a very different character from railways, and there was, and still is, no hope of their being in a position to pay the interest on the capital any years to come. The construction of the Orissa, Hugallee Canals was originally undertaken in 1863 by the Irrigation and Canal Company, with the most extravagant of profit. Five years after the work had been begun, the Government of India purchased the canals from the Company for Rs. 1,560, and proceeded to develop a modified scheme. Up to the present these works have been a heavy drag on Provincial resources, which bear the charges. The receipts from irrigation on the Orissa and Hugallee Canals, however, are steadily increasing; leases are taking the place of agreements; and, as the system of distributaries is extended, the system will gradually develop. There is no doubt that one great reason why the canals pay so little is that they were prematurely stopped under a notion of economy. The head works and canals were finished, while the distributaries have never been constructed; the water is there and the people ready to use it, but expenditure having been suspended, the water cannot be put to use. The new Coast Canal will increase the navigation receipts on the Orissa and Hugallee works. The opening of the Sone Canals has given a great impetus to the extension of sugarcane cultivation, and has caused a considerable increase in the agricultural wealth of the tracts irrigated. The Commissioner, in 1879-80, estimated the increase of profit derived from this source by the people of Shahabad at Rs. 4,73,000 per annum. The people are also beginning to use canal water as motive power in sugar and cotton mills. The cause of the decrease in revenue in 1880-81 has already been explained. It is believed that the circumstances are exceptional, and that the new system will ultimately prove both economically and financially successful, though this will be a matter of time.

The following table shows the net receipts from each work since 1877-78, with the interest charges payable in each year:—

Apart from these schemes, the Lieutenant-Governor has undertaken other irrigation and canal works from Provincial Funds. A sum of Rs. 6,28,000 has been spent on a canal to connect the river Gunduck with the principal water-courses of the Saran district. A still more important work has been the Joojooty Scheme, whereby a constant supply of pure water from the river Damoodah will be poured into old channels in the Burdwan and Hooghly districts. The silting up of these channels was undoubtedly for many years the cause of much disease and suffering throughout a large tract of country, and the introduction of a copious supply of pure water for drinking and irrigation purposes has already had a marked effect on the health and prosperity of the people. With the admission of the river water there has been an almost entire disappearance of the epidemic which so long raged among the villages situated on the banks of the silted-up channels in the Hooghly district. It was calculated that nearly nine-tenths of the inhabitants of these villages were swept away in the epidemic which prevailed before 1877. The beds of these water-courses were studded with pools of stagnant water, which, as the dry season advanced, became more and more fetid and noxious, and spread disease and death among the people who consumed the fluid. At the same time the drainage of the country was obstructed by the endeavours of the people to collect and retain water for agricultural purposes. The new work has already effected a complete change in the condition of this tract of country, and with its completion a great permanent improvement in the public health of the Burdwan and Hooghly districts is confidently anticipated. The cost of this scheme will be Rs. 6,91,000.

The condition of the Calcutta canal has hitherto been very unsatisfactory. The storm-water loaded with the sewage of the town discharges into the canal, grounded at low water, causing numerous accidents and hindering the navigation. The channels silted up, entailing very heavy annual expenses in dredging. These defects will now be remedied. Large locks of 40 feet with capacious basins, are being constructed, and it will thus be enabled to maintain a sufficient depth of water in the canal. The canal has at the same time been widened, and ample accommodation has been made for the traffic. A large intercepting sewer in the line of the Circular Road to receive the drainage and storm-water of the town, and discharge it into the Salt-water Lakes will at once be constructed. In order to supply fresh water to the canal, and to afford the means of flushing the lower end of the new drainage channel, a large inlet is in course of construction at the Hooghly entrance of the canal. The Lieutenant-Governor has urged on the Municipality of Calcutta the necessity of providing for the exclusion of the storm-water of the town, and they have now consented to bear half the cost of this work. The other half will be met from Provincial Funds. It is expected that the total expenditure on the canal from Provincial Funds will have amounted to 14 lakhs by the end of 1881-82.

Finally, the Lieutenant-Governor has obtained sanction to the construction, from Provincial Funds, of a navigation canal to connect the existing canal in Hidgellee with the Orissa system. This is a work of the first importance. Orissa is at present dependent on the sea for its communications with Bengal; the coasting trade can only be carried on by large vessels, the ports are bad; and if any serious failure of the crops were to occur, it would not be possible to throw a sufficient supply of food into the province. The projected canal will bring Orissa into direct inland communication with Bengal, steamers and country boats will be able to ply at all seasons of the year, and while the province will be protected from famine, a large expansion of trade may be confidently expected. The work is estimated to cost 33 lakhs of rupees, and has been commenced. Provision has been made in the budget for an expenditure of ten lakhs in 1881-82.

It is not possible to make any useful comparison of the expenditure under OTHER PUBLIC WORKS before and after the contracts of 1877. The expenditure on works during the scarcity of 1874 was abnormal, the provincial balances were exhausted, and the Government of India found it necessary to accept the outlay, and to make the local Government a net grant of five lakhs with which to begin the year 1876-77. The expenditure on Ordinary Public Works during that year was Rs. 25,59,000. In 1877-78 Sir Ashley Eden found it necessary to proceed with extreme caution in the matter of expenditure. The charges thrown upon the Provincial revenues on account of Productive Public Works were very serious; the full outturn of the Public Works Cess could not be obtained during the year; and he recognized the necessity of securing a substantial working balance to provide for emergencies. The expenditure in this year was therefore restricted to Rs. 25,12,000. In framing the revised estimates for 1878-79, the Lieutenant-Governor found it possible to make provision for various important and useful schemes that had been left in abeyance for want of funds; but in this year and the next the expenditure was, under instruction, kept down in consequence of the financial difficulties which famine, war, and adverse exchange had brought upon the Government of India. In 1879 the Government of India found itself compelled to call upon local Governments to make all possible reductions in expenditure. The orders went so far as to direct that no new work estimated to cost more than Rs. 2,500 should be commenced even though it might have already received the sanction of Government. In order to avoid the necessity of peremptorily putting a stop to works, the Lieutenant-Governor offered a special contribution of 20 lakhs to Imperial Funds. Under the influence of the same policy of retrenchment unduly low estimates were made for 1880-81, but the Lieutenant-Governor was afterwards permitted by the Government of India to increase the grant by 20 lakhs, and the expenditure during the year was Rs. 44,42,000. For the current year the Lieutenant-Governor has decided to make ample provision from the funds at his disposal. It seems to him wrong that large balances should be allowed to lie idle

...easing and numerous works of improvement remain provision for the year is Rs. 67,93,000. It includes, various improvements on buildings, and on the construction, metalling of provincial roads, provision for new court-houses at Jessore, Mymensingh, Dacca, Ranchee, Gya, Darbhunga, and for various sub-divisional buildings and Moonsiffs' Courts, for new Jails at Jessore, Bogra, Pubna, Gya, Darbhunga, and Motiharee, for a college at Beaulah and a Railway school at Kurseong, and for the completion of Secretariat buildings and the new Obstetric Hospital at the Medical

at the system of decentralization has been thoroughly successful in is sufficiently clear from the foregoing sketch. The revenues have increased, independently of any new taxation; useless expenditure been curtailed; and funds have been made available for improvement under all branches of the Administration. All grades of the service shown the deepest interest in increasing the resources of Government, the belief that the surplus revenue would be available for the of the province. The three heads of improvable revenue made over the management of the Provincial Government, with an income of 165½ lakhs in 1876-77, will stand with an income of not less than 217½ lakhs in 1881-82. In the meanwhile, the Lieutenant-Governor has been able to put out numerous works of improvement on his own responsibility, many of which, under the previous system, would have been indefinitely postponed. Besides making a special contribution of 20 lakhs to the Imperial Government in time of need, he has been able during these five years to increase the staff of executive and judicial officers; to provide increased facilities for the administration of justice; to increase the grant for education; to make grants in aid of district communications and of works of drainage, sanitation, and municipal improvement; to build schools, colleges, and hospitals; to replace the huts in which the public business was transacted, or prisoners were confined, by substantial masonry court-houses and jails; to spend 20 lakhs on railways which will bring in a large return, 5½ lakhs on tramways, ¾ of a lakh on a steamer service to improve communications with Assam, and 2 lakhs on a road to develop the trade with Thibet; to spend 11 lakhs on the first portion of a work which will develop the trade of Orissa and protect it from famine; and to spend 38½ lakhs on improving navigation and providing a supply of pure water for the people. While 77½ lakhs have thus been expended on great measures of material improvement, and the expenditure on Ordinary Public Works has been increased from Rs. 25,12,000 in 1877-78 to Rs. 33,55,000 exclusive of expenditure on preliminary works of railway construction in 1881-82, and while no legitimate outlay has been spared to strengthen every department of the Administration, the five years' period, which opened with a credit balance of Rs. 2,88,000 only, will close with a credit balance of at least Rs. 14,46,000. When it is recollected that under the system which prevailed before 1871 every new charge required the sanction of the Imperial Government, that the decision on the demands of each province took no cognizance of the extent to which it had contributed to the general Exchequer, that nothing was to be gained by economy, because money not spent by any one Government was practically lost to it and only went to increase the amount to be scrambled for by all, some idea may be gained of the advantages which Bengal has reaped from the control of its own finances. There is no department of the service which has not felt the benefit of the financial independence conferred on the Government immediately responsible for its administration.

REPORT ON CHARITABLE DISPENSARIES IN BENGAL FOR 1880.

MEDICAL AND MUNICIPAL DEPARTMENT—MEDICAL.

Calcutta, the 27th June 1881.

RESOLUTION.

During the year 1880 the work of revising the system on which these dispensaries are maintained was steadily pursued. The reports of inspecting and the researches of the Medical Committee, had left no room for doubt on the one hand the public usefulness of most of the outlying dispensaries, as evidenced by the figured statements of work submitted by them, had been exaggerated, and on the other the assistance afforded by Government had been given on such a principle as to invite careless management, and a diversion of the public money from the charitable objects for which it was intended. Systematic enquiries were therefore made to ascertain what was the actual amount of charitable relief afforded by each dispensary, what was its financial position apart from the Government aid, how far its resources were properly and economically employed, and what hope there was that local charity would maintain the dispensary efficiently with the aid which Government has undertaken to grant. The general result is thus stated by the Surgeon-General:—"It has been found that in some places there has been accumulation of invested money, while the poor have been unrelieved; that in others promised subscriptions have remained unpaid, and while Government has continued to support the medical officer, he has been rendering no public service worthy of mention; that subscribed funds have been devoted to the payment of servants who have been useless for any legitimate purpose, serving mainly to enable the native doctor to absent himself from his dispensary without causing complaints; that apart from irregular fictitious entries, the attendance of patients has been multiplied designedly and on regular system, in order to present a plausible tale of work; that medicines have been issued confessedly to persons who had no right to them." In order to ensure some sort of supervision and some tangible responsibility for contributions, the dispensaries have, wherever this was possible, been transferred to the management of municipalities. The supply of medicines from the Government stores on a free and independent basis has been absolutely stopped. Medicines have been given, as in other provinces, at cost price, and in some cases a money grant has been made in support of the dispensary funds. It has been distinctly laid down that Government aid can only be continued if it is shown that proper economy is exercised in the administration of the charitable funds of the dispensary. Enquiry has shown that great extravagance has been exercised in some dispensaries in the maintenance of establishment. Where the legitimate work of the dispensary was only sufficient to give employment to the Hospital Assistant and one menial, compounders and other servants were employed. The object of this was clear enough. The compounder looked after the dispensary, while the Hospital Assistant attended the richer patients at their homes, or sought private practice elsewhere. It appeared to the Lieutenant-Governor that there could be no justification for applying the public revenues to the support of a charity so long as the funds which they aided were diverted to other than charitable objects. It has accordingly been laid down that Government will only continue to pay a portion of the salary of the medical officer, and to contribute to the support of the dispensary, where the Managing Committee agrees to apply its funds to the bonâ fide charitable objects which alone Government has consented to assist.

2. The circumstances which these enquiries have brought to light show very clearly that the number of aided dispensaries in Bengal has far exceeded anything that Government had in view when it first consented to contribute to them, and that the convenience of the well-to-do, rather than the medical relief of the poor, has been promoted under a system which, in its origin, was intended to be purely charitable. In 1849 the Government of Bengal proposed to assist Baboos Joykissen and Rajkisson Moskorjencz Ooterpara, in establishing a hospital and dispensary at that place. The proposal was that Government should pay half the cost of erecting the buildings, and allow Rs. 100 a month for the maintenance of the dispensary together with English medicines and instruments. In reviewing this proposal the Government of India declared that, "as far as any general principle concerned, it is certainly opposed to grants of the kind, inasmuch as beyond the recognized province of a Government to provide medical aid for the great body of its subjects." The letter went on to say that, "the British Government in India has for special reasons granted assistance of this nature to the people, that assistance had till then, with one exception, been exclusively confined to towns at or in the neighbourhood of which a Government medical officer is stationed." "There are obvious objections to extending the privilege much further. As long as it is so restricted, the Government are able to discern the extent to which it is possible that the State may be taxed for the purpose. This would of course cease to be the case if the privilege were once extended indiscriminately to every large town or village, the inhabitants of which might be desirous to avail themselves of it. Another very important objection also to generally extending the privilege (though not applicable to the present case) would be the absence of any supervision by European officers over dispensaries, were they to become commonly established throughout the country. On these considerations, then, the President in Council would ordinarily feel disposed to comply with an application for aid towards the establishment of a hospital at any place where there are no Government establishments and no Government officers." Nevertheless, as the President in Council was most reluctant to oppose any obstacles in the way of generous and humane efforts on the part of the wealthy members of the native community to improve the social condition of their countrymen, as he apprehended that "unhappily such applications are likely to be infrequent," the Government of India sanctioned the proposal to the effect that the grant was not made "upon any distinct understanding that the grant was not made upon any of the general propriety of affording assistance from the State to such undertakings." Experience has shown that the Government of India entertained a just view of the dangers of multiplying dispensaries in the interior. The number of dispensaries has enormously increased in Bengal of late years, not because generous and humane efforts have been made by wealthy members of the native community to provide their poorer brethren with medical aid, but because Government has afforded undue facilities for obtaining European instruments and drugs, and the services of medical officers, at the public cost. In 1860 the total number of dispensaries was 57. In 1864 Government issued a set of rules under which it bound itself to defray a portion of the medical officer's pay and to accept other charges in the event of subscriptions to a certain amount being guaranteed, without any reference to the situation of the proposed dispensary. The apprehensions expressed by the Government of India in 1849 have been fully justified. The State has been taxed under the pretence of medical charity to an extent which was never contemplated. The number of charitable dispensaries increased from 57 in 1860 to 135 in 1867; in 1873 it was 198; in 1875 it was 255. It was sufficient for a few well-to-do persons to give a guarantee of subscriptions to a certain amount. A "charitable dispensary" was at once established. They were supplied with an Assistant Surgeon or Native Doctor, half, and in many cases the whole, of whose pay was defrayed by Government, with an extensive equipment of European instruments which were intended for the poor, but were never used, and an equally expensive equipment of European drugs which were also intended for the poor, but were chiefly used by themselves and their families. The results of the absence of supervision by European officers have markedly justified the objection of the Government of India. Dispensaries which receive State aid on the assumption that they relieve the sick poor, and which supply returns showing large numbers of patients, are found to do little more than afford medical attendance and drugs to the subscribers. Enquiry has shown that the returns are quite fictitious, and that they represent numbers those actually relieved. The complaints that have been made with respect to which the subscribers originally contributed; and if European medicines is not forthcoming, subscriptions are withdrawn. In one place, it is complained, the supply of medicines, sufficient for the dispensary patients, is "not sufficient for the amlah, the supporter of the dispensary." It is clear that the system has developed into something quite different from what the Government of India contemplated in 1849, and that, whether the provision of medical relief is or is not an object in aid of which the funds of the State may properly be expended, a great part of the charge thrown on the Government for the support of these dispensaries does not represent any real relief at all. In one respect, however, though perhaps at too great a cost, the system has done good. It is reported that the people have learnt to appreciate European medicine and European treatment, and that the richer classes, finding that they can no longer obtain medicines gratuitously, are willing to purchase them from the dispensary at the proper price. This, however, cannot be permitted. Medicines can only be supplied at the proper price from Government stores for strictly charitable purposes. The fact that practitioners are now sufficiently numerous to supply medicines properly to those who are able to purchase them. The policy which the Lieutenant-Governor proposes to follow in regard to these dispensaries was stated in the report on the last report. He is unwilling to take any active measure to alter the system generally. Wherever a dispensary, classed under the old system, is found to be serving really charitable purposes and to require assistance, other existing arrangements will be maintained so long as the conditions of the service are fulfilled. Only where this is not the case will the dispensary be closed. As regards the future, the Lieutenant-Governor considers that the principles of payment of Government of India's orders in 1849 should be observed. It is not mainly to be necessary for Government to assist in the establishment of dispensaries, but to cause some view of introducing European medicine to the people. In the event of an epidemic, Government will of course, as it has always done, take special arrangements for medical relief, and where a Government medical officer is stationed, arrangements will always, as hitherto, be made for the relief of the sick poor if any necessity exists. But for ordinary purposes the existing system of dispensaries is more than sufficient, and it will be recognized in the new rules that Government will not bind itself, of course, to any fixed scale of aid for the establishment of new dispensaries.

3. The number of dispensaries open on 31st December 1879 was 255. Of these, 9 were removed from the list during the year. Some were closed because subscriptions were not forthcoming. The supporters of one were unwilling to recognize any control from Government after the privilege of a free supply of instruments and medicines had been withdrawn. It is very satisfactory to observe that the number of first class dispensaries,—that is of dispensaries which are entirely self-supporting,—has increased from 21 to 33. One dispensary was established in December. Returns are given from 251 dispensaries, as some were not closed till late in the year. Of the total number, 158 received in-door patients against 155 in 1879. The in-door patients of these, however, was very varying. Altogether 30 received less than 25 patients during the year; 80 received less than 100; and 128 less than 250. The in-door department of many of the smaller dispensaries has now been closed with the concurrence of the committees. Dr. Payne, however, points out that arrangements for the reception of house patients must be maintained in the dispensaries on payment routes.

4. There was some improvement in the supervision exercised by the Managing Committees during the year. The number that met once a month or oftener was 39 against 26 in 1879. The number of Committees which held no meetings fell from 35 to 24. The number of visits paid by Civil Surgeons shows a reduction. The Lieutenant-Governor agrees with Dr. Payne in thinking that it is not a rule desirable that Civil Surgeons should leave their important duties at the head-quarters of the district to visit small dispensaries more frequently than twice a year. It is not satisfactory, however, that as many as 24 dispensaries received no visit of inspection during the year.

5. The recorded number of patients treated shows an increase previous year. As was stated in the last Resolution, however, there is doubt that the figures are utterly unreliable. It is to be hoped, that the scrutiny of the monthly returns, and proper enquiries on the occasions, may gradually induce some improvement; but the evidence of the Surgeons makes it quite clear that in very many cases the D. books are systematically written up without any reference to the actually treated. It is impossible to distinguish trustworthy from imaginary figures, and no deduction regarding the condition of the public health or the usefulness of the dispensaries at large during the year can be made from the statistics. The following are the figures given for the last five years:—

1877	899,585
1878	956,256	-2,
1879	890,842	the
1880	911,662

The district figures present results similar to those noticed in the last Resolution. It may be inferred, from the remarkable absence of variation in the figures, that each dispensary continues to return what has been settled as its established number of patients. The divisional percentages of patients treated to the total population are—1879.	1880.

Burdwan	2.5	2.4	per
Presidency	2.29	2.29
Rangshahye	2.05	2.36
Orissa	1.54	1.44
Dacca	1.37	1.41
Chittagong	.58	.55	x
Batna	1.61	1.69
Bhagulpore	.87	.92	on
Chota Nagpore	.57	.51

No less than 13 districts show the same figure to one place of decimals as the previous year.

6. The general death-rate of all the dispensaries is given as 15 per cent. Boda in Julpigoree and Aurungabad in Gya had 50 per cent., Raneegunge 41.15, Sherepore in Bogra 40, Barre-hpore 37.2, Ranaghat 33.3, Deoghur 32.7, Serampore 29.9, Jajpore 29.4, Burhee in Hazaribagh 29.5, and Pooree 29.3. In some of these cases the high death-rate is explained either by the very small number treated, or by the class of patients received. Thus Boda and Aurungabad had 3 patients only during the year, and in each case 1 died. Sherepore treated 10 with 4 deaths, and Ranaghat 21 with 7 deaths. Raneegunge, Deoghur, Jajpore, Burhee, and Pooree come under the second category. They receive large numbers of pilgrims, of whom many only go to hospital in the last extremity of illness or debility, and thus they always show a large death-rate. The high death-rate at Barre-hpore in 1878 and 1879 was noticed in the last Resolution. This dispensary has now been closed. At Serampore 417 patients were treated, and of these no less than 125 or 29.9 per cent. died. The Surgeon-General reports that the fatal cases occurred among pilgrims and starved people brought by the police.

7. The Surgeon-General has properly omitted the table purporting to show the proportion which the principal diseases bore to the total quantity of sickness returned. If the gross returns are useless because they are exaggerated, the particular returns of specified diseases are doubly useless from the combination of want of truth and want of knowledge on the part of some of their compilers. Dr. Payne remarks: "Of the previous tables, it may be said that hereafter, if any approach to a true record should be made, they may serve to show the magnitude of the error which had to be corrected; but for the table which I now omit, even this inglorious fate cannot be predicted, because, though dispensary records should come in relation with the public sickness of the day, proportions of disease, as named by most of the native doctors of 1880, will never be accepted even as types of error." This is severe criticism, but it is fully justified by facts which have been ascertained beyond doubt.

The increase in the consumption of cinchona febrifuge among the interesting. There is no reason to suppose that the increased demand is due to any increase in the prevalence of fever. The figures for the years are—

				Quantity.			Value.
				lbs.	oz.	dr.	lbs.	cts.	ms.
1878-79	67	1	8	1,252	5	0
1879-80	103	9	12	1,885	15	0
1880-81	163	9	10	2,885	8	3

The number of major operations performed by Civil Surgeons as Intendents of dispensaries was 513, against 492 in 1879 and 426 in 1880. The number performed by medical subordinates was 2,037, against 2,274 in 1880 and 2,274 in 1879. The total number of minor operations, including those remaining over from the previous year, was 46,696. The Lieutenant-Governor is glad to see a steady increase in the number of operations performed by Civil Surgeons, and, if the decrease shown in the number of minor operations performed by medical subordinates is genuine, he considers the matter for regret. The Lieutenant-Governor does not doubt that Mr. Payne is justified in holding that the returns of minor operations are not trustworthy. Some of the facts which have been reported show that the returns cannot be accepted as a record of work really done; but it does not appear that the use of the new form of inspection report has led to any great increase. The form was only introduced in 1879, and the total number of minor operations under treatment was 46,683 in 1879 and 46,693 in 1880. There was a decrease, it is true, in the number of cases at sutting dispensaries; but the increase at outlying dispensaries is only a part of the total increase in attendance that the returns exhibit, and it does not call for any remark. Fictitious returns under this head are merged in the general mass of fictitious returns. The pettiness or importance of the operations causing comment is a question. So long as the actual importance of the petty operations has been as correctly gauged as it is at present, no one is likely to be misled by the returns. But the mere fact that the operations are in many cases petty, affords no ground for excluding them altogether from the returns. On the whole, it seems to the Lieutenant-Governor that an increase in the returns of minor operations calls neither for special commendation, nor for serious denunciation. As regards major operations, the Lieutenant-Governor repeats what he has said on previous occasions, that the prosecution of surgery is one great means of obtaining the confidence of the people, and thus popularizing European treatment generally; and he will be glad to see an increase in the number of major operations performed.

10. The new forms of Financial Statement have only recently been introduced, and it has not been thought desirable to delay the report for the incorporation of the accounts of the different dispensaries. A separate report is promised by the Surgeon-General on this branch of the administration of the year.

11. Dr. Payne concludes his report with a detailed statement reviewing the working of each dispensary during the year. This statement will be very valuable for purposes of comparison hereafter. Meanwhile, it will serve to show Magistrates and Civil Surgeons the work done in other districts. Dr. Payne draws special attention to the interest displayed by Mr. Anderson, Magistrate of Bankoora, in the management of the dispensaries in his district. The Lieutenant-Governor believes that all officers can do very much, with little trouble to themselves, to improve dispensary management and encourage the medical officers. The assistance of the police has been freely given with much advantage, in testing the statements on which hospital assistants base their applications for leave.

RESOLUTION ON THE REPORT OF THE ADMINISTRATION OF THE HOOGHLY BRIDGE TRUST FOR THE YEAR 1880

No. 813C.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL, P. W. DEPT.—COMMUNICATIONS.

Calcutta, the 21st June 1881.

RESOLUTION.

Report of administration of the Hooghly Bridge Trust for the year end March 1881.

Public Works Proceedings, (A) Communications for October 1880, Nos. 1-2, the report of the administration of the Hooghly Bridge for the 1879-80, together with the resolution passed thereon.

RESOLUTION.—The total receipts and expenditure on the Hooghly Bridge for the year 1880-81, including adjustment entries, &c., amounted to—

	Rs.
Receipts	4,55,141
Expenditure	4,05,811
Receipts and expenditure, excluding book adjustments and estimated amounts, were as follow:—

	Estimated. Rs.	Actual. Rs.	More. Rs.	Less. Rs.
Receipts	3,72,387	3,93,741	21,354	...
Expenditure	3,49,479	3,38,801	...	10,678

At the close of the year, the aggregate of contribution 1874-75, towards repayment of loan amounted to Rs. 4,81,800, Rs. 17,60,000 still remaining. The reserve fund invested in Government paper amounted to Rs. 3,35,989.

3. The receipts from railway traffic are in excess of the estimate of Rs. 8,250 actual receipts of the previous year; but the receipts from local lessees. The below the amount received in the previous year. This is owing to Messrs. Burn & Co. having paid for the lease of the tolls at the monthly, or Rs. 937 less than the amount paid in the previous year. The receipts from railway and local traffic are as follow:

	1879-80	1880-81
	Estimated. Rs.	Actual. Rs.
Railway traffic	305	2,39,112
Local	348	99,000
		2,56,251

4. On the expiry, at the end of February, of the lease of the bridge tolls, new tenders were received. Jamuna Narain Tewary was accepted. This agreement, upon the usual security deposit, for the tolls. No alteration have been made in the year 1881-82.

5. The ferry traffic has been maintained by the steamer Buckland. The steamer Herrah, which was thoroughly overhauled and repaired, was found to be unfit for ferry traffic, was, upon examination, found to be so that it was not considered advisable to spend on her a sum of money that would be required to put her into serviceable condition. It was then made to ascertain whether the new steamer Buckland or the ferry service in the event of the Buckland being unavailable, but her deck space being too limited for the purpose, was found that she could be handled with the flat. The engines and boilers of the Herrah and the hull has, after thorough repairs, been com-

By 1881, Messrs. Burn & Co.'s called for, and that of Baboo and he has entered into an agreement to pay Rs. 9,246-10 per mensem in accordance with the schedule of tolls.

Throughout the year it was found that the revenue for the year was in so far as the tolls are concerned.

of need. The vessel is now available as a reserve, in conjunction, for running the crossing traffic.

The Hetty has been in constant requisition for towing vessels, and has earned Rs. 16,848 during the year. Her dredging has not been much utilized for want of a second hopper barge, and arrangements for the blowing-out apparatus not having succeeded, she is employed in dredging unless barges are in attendance. She will, however, be more fully utilized as a dredger during the current year as soon as the hopper barge, now under construction, is finished.

Although 205 sea-going vessels passed up and down during the year, 113 collided with the bridge. There were, however, 113 collisions with country boats as follow :—

				In collision.	Sunk.
Land steamers	2	...
Small launches	3	...
Country and cargo boats	108	4
Total				113	4

were lost during the year.

The bridge appears to have been maintained in good order, and, with the help of the new break winches, during the year, the arrangements for opening and closing the bridge are now far more perfect than they were when the structure was first opened for traffic.

RESOLUTIONS.—Ordered that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Commissioners for information.

Ordered, also, that this resolution be published in the Supplement to the Gazette for general information.
